SUMMARY OF THE METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN BENGAL, AND OF THE METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN ASSAM, FOR THE MONTH OF APRIL 1894.

THE principal features in the meteorology of April have been—

1. The mean pressure for the month has been very slightly in defect of the normal, the usual variation having been from 0·01″ to 0·02″. The largest defects have been registered at the eastern stations, and the defect at Sibsagar has been 0·035.″

2. The mean temperature for the month has been in defect by amounts usually less than a degree at all except a few of the eastern, north-eastern and south-eastern stations, where very slight excess temperatures have been registered.

3. Winds have been decidedly less strongly westerly than usual, and the mean directions for the month have been southerly in the centre, south and west of the province, south-easterly at the south-eastern and eastern stations, and easterly at most of the northern stations.

4. Humidity has been higher than usual at the great majority of stations, particularly in Bihar, where it has been exceptionally high.

5. Cloud proportion has also been very much higher than usual in all districts.

6. The number of hot weather storms occurring during March has been about equal to those of former years, and many of them have been of moderate strength. A small cyclonic storm also formed towards the end of the month in the Andaman Sea, which advanced over Burma.

7. The amount of rain brought by these disturbances has been decidedly larger than usual in North Bengal, and rather larger than usual in Orissa and Chota Nagpur. The falls in South-West Bengal and Bihar have been about the usual quantity, but decided defects have been reported in East Bengal. One noticeable feature in the rainfall of April was the extraordinarily heavy fall in Silchar, which received no less than 23·54 inches during the month.

For the first day or two in April weather was quite settled, but from the 3rd instant slightly disturbed conditions set in, which lasted till the 7th, during which a considerable number of local storms with rain occurred. At this period a barometric depression developed over North Bengal, where pressure on the 7th became a fifth of an inch in defect. The disturbed conditions brought about by this depression apparently passed in an easterly direction over Cachar, and from the 8th to the 11th Silchar reported no less than sixteen and a third inches of rain. Weather over the greater part of Bengal during this period was fine and settled, but from the 12th to the 14th, when the disturbance in Cachar was passing away, rather numerous local storms with rain occurred in East and North Bengal.

At the end of the second and beginning of the third week in April an ordinary hot weather barometric depression developed in Chota Nagpur, and during the third week hot season storms or nor'westers with moderate to heavy rain were numerous in all districts, and these continued to a considerable extent up to the end of the month.

In the Bay, weather conditions call for no remark up till nearly the close of the month, when a small cyclonic storm of very considerable intensity was formed in the Andaman Sea. The history of the formation of the small storm here given is extracted from the Bengal Weekly Meteorological Report:—"On the 21st instant pressure was very nearly normal all round the Bay, with an area of abnormally high pressure and abnormally low temperature over the land area to the north. A slight fall of the barometer on the 22nd did not much alter the relative distribution, but transferred the line of zero deviation from normal considerably further north, a movement which was continued during the 23rd by a further slight fall of the barometer. Until the morning of the 26th no serious change had taken place, and so far as Bengal and the adjacent provinces were concerned, the distribution showed the usual isobaric curves in about normal direction. On this date, however, irregular pressure changes in Burma created an area of relatively low pressure off the Tenasserim coast. By the 27th this shallow depression had become slightly deeper, owing to a slow fall in Burma, and the effect was somewhat intensified by a slow to brisk recovery over the west coast of the Bay. The chief indications of unsettled weather, however, were the shift of wind and rising sea at Diamond Island. By the morning of the 28th pressure had given way over the whole reporting area, but especially at Saugor Island and Diamond Island, where the fall amounted to nearly one-eighth of an inch, and it became apparent that a small storm had formed in the Andaman Sea almost precisely like the one which formed last year on almost exactly the same date. This is the more noteworthy, inasmuch as a storm in the Bay is a most unusual occurrence for the month of April.

The storm developed very rapidly on the 28th and advanced into the Gulf of Martaban, so that the chart of the 29th showed a well-defined storm advancing into Burma. The centre passed about noon almost midway between Rangoon and Moulmein, and the storm broke up on the night of the 29th. It appears to have done considerable damage to native craft, but full reports have not yet been received. On the 29th the distribution of pressure was of course very abnormal, varying from a defect of over one-third of an inch at Rangoon to a defect of nearly one-tenth in Bihar. On the 30th a very rapid rise of the barometer had taken place in Burma, while it continued to fall in Assam. The area of relatively lowest pressure was, hence, once more transferred to Assam, and distribution was still of very abnormal character. Next day, however, a very rapid increase of pressure in Assam and Eastern Bengal changed all this, the defect was more than made up at all the northern stations except in the extreme north-east of Assam, and the resulting distribution almost resumed its normal character."

Pressure.—During the first week of the month pressure was slightly below the normal, and the defect averaged about 0·02". In the second week this defect had increased, and ranged from 0·03" to 0·06", and the defect continued during the first half of the third week. A rapid increase then occurred, which brought pressure largely in excess at the close of the third week. Pressure again fell during the fourth week, and the mean was not very far from the normal, but during the last few days of the month large pressure changes occured in connection with the development and movement of the small cyclonic storm. These changes have already been alluded to. For the whole month the mean pressure has shown very slight defects, the usual defects ranging from 0·01" to 0·02", and being largest at the eastern, south-eastern and extreme south-western stations, the largest defect being at Sibsagar, where it has equalled 0·035".

Temperature.—The mean temperature for the month has been a few tenths of a degree below the normal at all except a few of the extreme eastern, north-eastern and south-eastern stations, where small excess amounts usually less than half a degree have been registered. The variations from the normal have been largest in the day or maximum temperatures which have been generally lower than the normal by from 1° to 2°, except again at the eastern, north-eastern and south-eastern stations, where slight excess amounts have been registered. In the case of the minimum or night temperatures the variations from the normal have been very small, and at most stations they have been less than half a degree, the distribution being nearly the same as in the maximum, slight defects being registered except at a few of the eastern and north-eastern stations.

The highest maximum temperatures registered during the month in Bengal have been 111·9° at Midnapore and 109·8° at Cuttack.

Rainfall.—The average rainfall in North Bengal has been 4·51 inches, in East Bengal 3·18 inches, and in South-West Bengal 2·01 inches. Orissa has received about an inch and a half, and Biharand Chota Nagpur about half-an-inch. The falls have been decidedly larger than usual in North Bengal, slightly larger than usual in Orissa and Chota Nagpur, about normal in South-West Bengal and Bihar, and in moderate defect in East Bengal.

In the case of the smaller districts practically no rain has fallen in Patna, Gaya, Shahabad, Saran, Champaran, Muzaffarpur and Palamau, and very decidedly defective falls have been reported in Birbhum, Khulna, Noakhali, Chittagong, South Lushai Hills, Lohardaga and Manbhum.

In Assam, Silchar has reported the extremely heavy fall of 23·54 inches, Sibsagar 6·71 inches and Dhubri 4·49 inches.

The following table gives the summary of the temperature and rainfall data of each of the six meteorological divisions of the province for the month of April 1894:—

Explanation.—... indicates that no rain has fallen. If the return for any day has not been received, the corresponding space is left blank. If any of the returns are wanting, the corresponding spaces in the total rainfall columns are left blank. With reference to the column of rainy days, the definition of a rainy day is: when at least ·10 inch of rain has fallen.

CALCUTTA, the 15th May 1894.

SUMMARY OF THE METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN BENGAL, AND OF THE METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN ASSAM, FOR THE WEEK ENDING 8 A.M., SATURDAY, THE 12TH OF MAY 1894.

At the beginning of the week ordinary hot season conditions obtained over the whole of the province, both temperature and pressure being in slight to moderate excess, while weather was fairly settled and only a few local storms or nor'westers with rain were reported. On the 7th a rather brisk fall of pressure occurred in Central and South Bengal, while temperature increased moderately, and the number of local storms with rain which occurred increased slightly. On the 8th pressure fell over Bengal and Assam by from a tenth to a sixth of an inch, while temperature on the other hand fell slightly. On this day pressure was largely below the normal over the whole of Bengal and Assam, the amounts ranging up to 0·188″ at Sibsagar and strong winds were blowing over Bengal from the Bay, bringing up very large amounts of moisture. Hence on the evening of the 8th very numerous local storms with rain occurred, and on the 9th the great majority of stations reported moderate to heavy rain, except those in the extreme west of the Province. The pressure changes from the 8th to the 9th were decidedly irregular, and the defective pressure continued to be registered. On the other hand there was a rather brisk fall of temperature equalling 3° and 4° at many stations. Again, very numerous local storms with rain occurred on the evening of the 9th, and on the 10th again the majority of stations in Bengal reported rain. On the 10th also a rapid increase of pressure commenced, the rise at most stations exceeding a tenth of an inch, and the distribution of pressure became more normal, though pressure was still generally in slight defect. Temperatures, and particularly the night temperatures, were also distinctly below the normal. A considerable number of local storms with rain, however, again occurred on the evening of the 10th, and on the 11th the majority of stations in Bengal reported rain. Pressure, however, continued to increase and became in excess of the normal, while temperature was also increasing. Conditions had, however, become much more settled, for on the morning of the 12th May few stations reported rain, the falls being mainly confined to Assam and parts of South-West and North Bengal. On the 12th also the increase of pressure had ceased, and a rather brisk fall had commenced, so that pressure was again becoming in defect. On the other hand temperature was rising briskly, and was in excess at all except a few of the southern and central stations, the usual variation equalling from 1° to 3°. Hence weather has been decidedly disturbed during the week, and numerous local storms with moderate to heavy rain have occurred in all except the extreme western districts. Winds have been south-easterly and easterly almost throughout the week, and humidity has been exceptionally high in all districts.

Pressure.—The mean pressure for the week has hence been very distinctly below the normal, the usual defect ranging from about 0·03 inch up to 0·05 inch and 0·06 inch, and the defect being usually smallest at the south-eastern stations and largest in parts of Bihar.

Temperature.—The mean temperature for the week has been above the normal by 1° in Bengal and by 3·2° in Assam, the excess in the latter case at such stations as Dhubri and Silchar equalling between 4° and 5°. The excess in South-West Bengal has, however, been small, and has only equalled about a fifth of a degree.

Rainfall.—The average rainfall for the week in South-West, North and East Bengal has equalled from two to two and a third inches, and has been decidedly heavier than the normal fall except in East Bengal, where there is a small defect. The fall in Chota Nagpur has averaged about three quarters of an inch, and is a little larger than usual. In Bihar and Orissa, on the other hand, the falls have been from a third to a tenth of an inch, and in both Divisions have been largely in defect of the normal.

The following table gives the summary of the temperature and rainfall data of each of the six meteorological divisions of the province for the week ending Saturday, the 12th of May 1894:—

1. Notaries Public shall, in transacting business under the Act, use the forms set forth in the Appendix to this notification.

2. Besides recording declarations of payment for honour (section 113), Notaries Public shall, following the practice existing in the presidency-towns, also register notings and protests made by them. No particular form of register is necessary for these purposes, but Notaries Public shall keep a substantial blank book in which to enter copies of all the letters which they may write, presenting bills for acceptance or payment or better security; of all bills* noted or protested, or paid for honour, together with all endorsements thereon (including that made by themselves, to the effect that the bill has been noted or protested, for non-acceptance or non-payment, or want of better security); and of all protests made by themselves, and of all declarations made by payers for honour. Notaries Public shall further, after examination of each entry in the book, affix their signature thereto, and where demand of acceptance or payment, or better security was made by a clerk, shall cause him to affix his signature also to the entry relating to the demand.

3. The book shall be known as the Notarial Register, and the pages thereof shall be numbered consecutively.

4. Every Notary Public shall permit the District Judge or such officer as the Local Government from time to time appoints in this behalf to inspect his register at such times, not oftener than twice a year, as the District Judge or officer may fix.

Provided that it shall not be necessary for a Notary Public to allow the drawee of a bill of exchange time for deliberation as provided by section 63.

* In cases where the language of the bill is unknown to the Notary Public, and where it is impossible to find any one acquainted with the language of the bill to copy it into the register, an entry in the register of an abstract of the bill will be sufficient.

FINAL REPORT ON THE WHEAT CROP OF 1893-94.

The following is published for general information.

C. E. BUCKLAND,
Secretary to the Govt. of Bengal.

REVENUE DEPT.,
The 22nd May, 1894.

DEPARTMENT OF LAND RECORDS AND AGRICULTURE, BENGAL.

Final Report on the Wheat Crop of 1893-94.

N. B.—For the final report of the wheat crop of 1892-93, returns were obtained from 23 districts of these Provinces. Four districts, viz., Rangpur, Darjeeling, Faridpur and Singbhum, were added to the list in the returns of the preliminary report of the wheat crop of 1893-94, issued by this office on the 14th February 1894, as it appeared that considerable areas were cultivated with wheat in these districts. Returns of these four districts have been included in the present report also.

1. Character of the season.—The character of the early part of the wheat season of 1893-94 was described in the summary of the district returns given in the preliminary report of the wheat crop issued on the 14th February 1894.

Excessive rain fell in the two latter months of the monsoon season of 1893, which, although proving beneficial to the crops in their later stages of growth, retarded operations at the beginning of the season. Then followed a period of rainless weather, which continued up to the first week of February, relieved only by a few very light showers in the beginning of November. The wheat crop throughout these Provinces was seriously affected by this absence of the winter rains. Early in February, the prospects of the crops were somewhat improved by useful showers, which fell in Bihar, and in parts of Chota Nagpur and North Bengal. After a brief period of fine weather, rain again fell at the end of February and in the beginning of March, just as the crops were approaching maturity, and did some damage by inducing blight in the Patna and Bhagalpur Divisions.

2. Area cultivated.—The estimates of area cultivated with wheat, as reported in the preliminary forecast of the 4th February, have been changed by some District Officers. The total area under wheat, as now shown in the appended returns, amounts to 1,583,800 acres against 1,545,160 acres as given in the first forecast. Owing to this revision of estimates, there is also a difference of 51,773 acres between the present and first report of the crop in respect of the area sown with wheat in the year 1892-93. There is also a change due to the same causes in the acreages of normal area in the two forecasts, 1,843,800 acres being now estimated to be the normal area as against 1,809,454 acres given in the statement attached to the preliminary forecast. On comparing the area under the wheat crop of 1893-94 as given in column 2 of the attached returns with the area under the crop of 1892-93 as given in column 3 of the same returns, it will be seen that there is an increase of 25,200 acres, or 1·62 per cent. in the area under wheat cultivation in the former. The area under wheat cultivation in 1892-93 was reported to have been 8·3 per cent. greater than that of 1891-92. It thus appears that there has been a progressive increase during the last two years, which may perhaps indicate that the cultivation of the crop is slowly extending in these Provinces.

3. Outturn.—In accordance with the instructions contained in the letter from the Government of India, No. 8-53, dated the 23rd February 1893, estimates of outturn have been calculated for each district in the attached returns in tons, but these estimates must be received with caution. The rates of average outturn per acre adopted in the calculations are open in many cases to doubt, and the estimates of areas sown and of the outturn as expressed in annas, are also in all cases only approximate. Subject to these remarks, the gross outturn of wheat in 1893-94 may be estimated at 461,344 tons against 466,305 tons in the previous year. The decrease may be attributed to the less favourable character of the season. At the time of the issue of the preliminary forecast, it was hoped that the crop for the season which has just expired would be a full average one of 16 annas, but the want of the cold-weather rains seems to have done more injury than was then estimated, and the prospects were still further damaged by the wet and cloudy weather, which set in at the close of the season. Under these circumstances, it is very probable that the crop has not yielded more than 12 annas, or three-fourths of an average outturn.

4. Under orders of the Government of India, an abstract statement is annexed to this report, showing the prices and general conditions of stock of food-grains, as reported by District Officers.

5. In order to a better understanding of the general supply of food-grains during the year just expired, the following history of the harvests of the year has been summarized from the reports published by this Department, which are noted in the margin.*

*(1) Final report on the bhadoi crops, 1893, dated 7th December 1893.
(2) Final report on the winter-rice crop of Bengal, 1893, dated 6th December 1893.
(3) Note on the outturn of rabi crops, dated 2nd April 1894.

6. Bhadoi crops of 1893.—The season was characterized by heavy rain, which caused more or less damage to the crops generally throughout these Provinces. In some districts in East Bengal and parts of Cuttack and North Bihar, the injury was aggravated by floods The total area of food and non-food crops cultivated was returned as 15,650,099 acres, against 15,963,824 acres estimated to have been sown the previous year. A full average or more than a full crop was reported only from 13 districts.* Out of the 46 districts of these Provinces, only 8 reported a better outturn than that of last year, and 4 an equal outturn, the outturn of the remaining 34 districts being less than that of last year. The outturn for all these Provinces was probably about 12 annas against 16 annas in the year 1892.

* Bankura, Birbhum, Sadar (Hooghly), Basirhat (24-Parganas), Ranaghat (Nadia), Dinajpur, Kurigram and Gaibanda (Rangpur), Jamalpur (Mymensingh), Gopalganj (Saran), Madhupur (Bhagalpur), Purnea, Malda and Khurda (Puri).

7. Winter rice crop of 1892.—The season was favourable. The total area cropped was reported by District Officers to be 30,570,388 acres, against 29,881,460 acres cropped in 1892. Twenty-one out of 46 districts reported a full average, or more than a full average crop. Thirty-one out of 46 districts reported a better crop than that of the previous year, two reported the crop to be equal to that of the previous year, while only 13 reported worse crops. The outturn for all these Provinces was estimated at full sixteen annas against 14 annas of the previous year.

8. Rabi crops of 1893-94.—There was very heavy rain towards the last two months of the monsoon season of 1893-94, which, although beneficial to some extent, interfered with the preparation and sowing of the land for rabi crops. Then followed a period characterized by the absence of the cold-weather rains, which adversely affected all the rabi crops more or less. Prospects slightly improved (especially in Bihar and parts of Chota Nagpur and North Bengal), with the light rain that fell in the beginning of February, but were thrown back by wet weather which set in about the time of harvesting of the crops. The area sown with rabi food-grains was estimated at 9,044,300 acres, against 9,248,000 acres reported to have been cropped in the previous season, the decrease being chiefly noticeable in Central and East Bengal, where the monsoon rains were very heavy. A full average crop was not reported from a single district. The average outturn for these Provinces was estimated to be about the same as that of the previous year 1892-93.

9. Taking all the harvests of the year, it appears that the produce of food during the year 1893-94 has been a little below the average—a result probably due to excessive rain during the monsoons, and to want of rain during the cold weather, which injuriously affected the bhadoi and rabi food-grain crops.

10. Food-stocks.—The food-stocks of former harvests are not reported to be generally plentiful, but it would appear that in many districts the supplies are generally sufficient to meet demands till the next harvest. Prices seem to have ruled higher than usual.

11. Prices of food-grains.—In 30 out of 45 districts the prices of common rice were lower in the fortnight ending 15th April 1894 than in the corresponding fortnight of the previous year, and in 34 districts it was lower than the price given in the return for the fortnight ending 15th April 1892. The price of wheat also ruled lower in the fortnight ending 15th April 1894 than in the corresponding fortnight of the two previous years. The last return of prices-current shows that the price of common rice ranged from 10 to 11 seers in Mymensingh, Backerganj, Tippera and Noakhali. In Burdwan, Bankura, Midnapur, Patna, Gaya, Shahabad, Champaran, Malda, Sonthal Parganas, Puri, Lohardaga, and Manbhum rice sold at 15 to 16 seers, while in Birbhum, Bhagalpur, and Balasore the rate was still lower. Rice sold dearest in Mymensingh (10 seers), and cheapest in Balasore (17 seers).

12. From the figures quoted in the margin, showing the imports of wheat into Calcutta, it will be seen that there was a very marked decrease during the year in the exports of wheat from Bengal, which was chiefly due to a restricted demand for shipments to Europe.

In the preliminary forecast, the produce of wheat was estimated at 11 annas for the Sasaram sub-division, but the excessive rainfall in the month of November, immediately followed by strong west wind, and the crop being affected by Harda reduced the outturn to five annas.	The return from Shahabad does not appear to be reliable. The acreages under wheat have been reproduced from the preliminary wheat forecast, 1893-94.

The crop was in many places stunted in consequence, and the yield was small.	In the preliminary forecast of the wheat crop for 1893-94, the Collector returned the normal and last year's areas under wheat as 129,000 and 74,500 acres respectively ' The above figures were subsequently revised by him in the estimate of outturn of the rabi food-grains of 1893-94, The area in column 3 as now returned by him (79,700 acres) does not agree with the corresponding area as shown in the rabi estimate. The latter figure has been retained in this report.
Gaya ...	130,600	133,600	157,000	—15·98	—17·26	11	13	39,442	57,371	47,327	69,232	—31·24	—16·65	—43·02	The decrease in the area sown is mostly due to excessive rainfall at the time of sowing of the rabi crops. The estimated outturn is lower than that of last year. This is due to deficient rainfall during the time when the crop was ripening.

Saran ...	147,500	147,500	147,500	.....	.....	15	14	60,744	64,794	56,695	64,794	−6·25	+7·14	−6·25	The decrease in outturn is due to slight damage caused by blight.
Champaran ...	47,000	47,000	47,000	.....	.....	16	13	14,688	14,688	11,934	14,688	.....	+23·07	.....	.....

In the preliminary forecast, this year's outturn for Hajipur was estimated at 13 annas, but the Sub-divisional Officer now rejects his original estimate as being too low, and shows the outturn as full 16 annas: hence the difference between the present figure and the estimate given in the preliminary forecast (15 annas).
Darbhanga ...	104,600	101,100	110,200	+3·46	−5·06	13	11	34,462	45,949	30,533	48,409	−25·05	+12·86	−28·81	In the preliminary forecast the outturn was reported to be 14 annas, but as the crop suffered to a certain extent from blight caused by the wet weather which set in late in the season, the outturn has been reduced to 12 annas.
Bhagalpur ...	192,200	190,700	218,500	+6·36	−10·81	12½	12½	63,206	79,234	57,797	90,568	−30·23	+9·36	−30·21	In the Sadar and Supaul sub-divisions, the estimate of outturn has been slightly reduced since submission of the first forecast, owing to the absence of rain in December, but the outturn has been better than that of last year, as the crop has escaped the injurious effects of heavy rain in February and March.
Monghyr ...	106,500	107,100	163,000	−0·56	−34·66	14	14	40,956	46,784	41,167	71,694	−12·50	−0·35	−42·81	The estimated outturn of 16 annas as reported in the preliminary forecast has been cut down to 14 annas owing to some lands remaining under water for a long time and on account of damage from blight.

The following rates of outturn per acre have been assumed by the Collector in the present returns:—

	Per acre. lb.
Sadar ...	984
Banka ...	640
Madhipura	942
Supaul ...	960

In the final report on the wheat crop of 1892-93, 984lbs was assumed to be the rate of outturn per acre in Supaul, but the Sub-divisional Officer now changes it to 960lbs.

dowls. The general rate of outturn for Bengal (85lbs.) has therefore been adopted in calculating the outturn year. This is due to sufficient rainfall during last autumn, and to subsequent cessation of rain. There was sufficient rainfall in the Kalna sub-division. In the Katwa sub-division, owing to heavy rain last year, the sowing was rather late, and there again was no rain during winter. Want of rain at the time of flowering was the cause of deficiency in the outturn in the Ranigunj sub-division.

There was a slight increase in the outturn of the crop owing to the favourable state of the weather at the ripening season.

The deficiency of rain at the time when the preliminary forecast was prepared was partially made good by tank water by means of irrigation. This, as well as rain at the end of February, improved the outturn a little.

Complete cessation of rains after sowing affected the outturn.

The Deputy Commissioner has returned 2,500 acres as the normal area, as well as the area under wheat this year against 3,000 and 1,500 acres respectively, returned for corresponding areas in the preliminary forecast of 1892-94, but has not assigned any reasons for the change. The Chota Nagpur average (i.e., 16 annas) rate of yield per acre (46 lbs.) has been assumed to be the rate for Singhbhum in the absence of any estimate of outturn from the Deputy Commissioner.

The district average has therefore been estimated at 11 annas as reported before. Deficient rainfall in October and total cessation of rain since November last have affected this year's outturn, which otherwise would have been far better.
Rajshahi ...	64,500	77,300	64,500	+0·31	.....	12½	12½	32,400	32,503	32,450	—21·91	—21·91	—21·71	—21·71				The increase in area is due to the fact that on account of excessive rainfall at the rainy season, a larger area became fit for growing wheat. But as there has been an entire cessation of rain since the end of October 1893, not more than 12½ annas outturn is expected.

Wheat is only cultivated in scattered patches in this district. The average rate of yield per acre (540lbs.) is open to further enquiry.

Abstract of the information regarding the prices and general condition of stocks of the supply of food-grains in the Province for 1893-94 as furnished by District Officers. (Circulars dated 7th and 14th March 1888, from the Revenue and Agricultural Department, India.)

(Returns received from District Officers up to end of April 1894.)

District.	Cause of extension of wheat cultivation in recent years.	Whether the produce of the year's supply of food-grains has been much above or much below the average.	Whether the food-stocks of former harvests are plentiful or not.	Whether the prices of food-grains generally have ruled higher or lower than usual.	What have been the causes of increase or decrease of exports of wheat, and how far has the movement been influenced by a scarcity or otherwise of food-grains.	Remarks by the Agricultural Department.
Burdwan ...	.....	The produce of the year's supply of food-grains has been below the average in the Sadar sub-division and above the average in the Kalna and Katwa sub-divisions, and much above the average in the Raniganj sub-division.	The food-stocks of former harvests are not plentiful.	The prices of food-grains have generally ruled higher than usual in the Sadar, Katwa, and Raniganj sub-divisions, while it was normal in the Kalna sub-division.	Very little wheat is cultivated in this district, and what is cultivated is not sufficient for export.
Bankura ...	.....	Rice is the staple food-crop of the district. There was an average outturn of this crop during the year 1893-94. The rainfall during the year was excessively heavy, and it damaged considerably the young rice plants grown on low lands and on banks of rivers: otherwise there would have been a more than average if not a bumper crop.	Fairly plentiful throughout the whole district, except in thana Simlapal, where the partial failure of crops during the last three years has told on the stocks of the grain-dealers considerably. The number of mahajans too in this part of the district is very limited.	The price of the staple food-crop, i.e., of common rice, was rather higher in July 1893, as compared with that ruled in the corresponding months of 1892, and in the three months following there was a slight fall, but not to any appreciable extent. Since November 1893, when the new bhadoi rice came into the market, the rate per rupee rose from 13 seers 4 chitaks to 17 seers 4 chitaks and in the subsequent months of the year it ruled at the same rate with slight variations. Considering the yield of the year, the fall in the rice market is comparatively small. This is said to be due to the exportation of rice to other districts where there was a partial failure of crops.	Wheat is grown in this district on a small scale; what little is produced in it is consumed locally. A large quantity is annually imported from the North-West to meet local demands.

DISTRICT.	Cause of extension of wheat cultivation in recent years.	Whether the produce of the year's supply of food-grains has been much above or much below the average.	Whether the food-stocks of former harvests are plentiful or not.	Whether the prices of food-grains generally have ruled higher or lower than usual.	What have been the causes of increase or decrease of exports of wheat, and how far has the movement been influenced by a scarcity or otherwise of food-grains.	Remarks by the Agricultural Department.
Birbhum ...	.....	The produce of this year's supply of rice, which is the principal food-grain for this district, has been above the average, being 18 annas.	The food-stocks (chiefly rice) of former harvests are not plentiful, but they are sufficient for the need of the district. The exports for the last two years were 22,46,289 maunds in 1891-92, and 19,58,040 maunds in 1892-93.	Lower than last year, ranging from 13 to 16 seers in the rupee against 12 to 14 seers.	An inappreciable quantity of wheat is exported from this district.
Midnapur ...	.....	A little above the average in the Sadar and Ghatal sub-divisions, equal to the average in Tamluk, and a little below the average in Contai sub-division.	Plentiful	Higher in Contai and Ghatal, and lower in the Sadar and Tamluk sub-divisions.	.....	The Collector says that the food-stocks of former harvests are plentiful, but the Sub-divisional Officers of Ghatal and Tamluk hold a less sanguine opinion of the stocks in their sub-divisions.
Hooghly ...	.....	Above the average. Aus and aman were bumper crops in all parts of the district except in a portion of the Uluberia sub-division and a few hundred acres of bâsal land in Serampore. The rabi crops have not been very good.	Very short, owing to the last year having been a year almost of scarcity in most parts of the district, and neither of the two preceding years being good. The recent harvest has nearly replenished the stocks, but not, it is believed, entirely. Probably they are now not much short of the average.	Very high up to harvest, but unusually low as compared with last two or three years, ever since the harvest was assured. From March to December 1893, the prices of common rice ruled from 10 to 12 seers, and from January to March 1894 from 11 to 13 seers per rupee.	.....
Howrah ...	.....	In two stations above, and in other two below the average produce of the last year.	Not plentiful	Lower than usual	.....
24-Parganas ...	.....	About an average	Ditto	Higher than usual	.....
Khulna ...	.....	Above the average in the Sadar sub-division, but below the average in the Bagerhat and Satkhira sub-divisions. On the whole there was probably about an average crop.	Not plentiful for the Sadar sub division, but not so for the Bagerhat and Satkhira sub-divisions. On the whole sufficient, but not plentiful.	Ditto	.....
Nadia ...	.....	Below the average	Not plentiful	Ditto	Wheat is exported in very small quantity from this district, and there seems to have been no appreciable increase or decrease in its exports during 1892-93.
Jessore ...	.....	Below the average except in the Narail sub-division, where the produce has not been much above the average.	Not plentiful except in Narail ...	Ditto	.....

Murshidabad	.....	Above the average in Rarh tracts and below the average in Bagdri	Plentiful	Ditto	There has not been any very perceptible increase or decrease in the export of wheat. The wheat crop suffered from want of rain in the cold weather, and this must have somewhat reduced the outturn as well as the export.
Dinajpur	.....	Above the average, owing to the good outturn of winter rice.	Ditto	Ditto	.....
Rajshahi	.....	Below the average	Not plentiful, owing to the failure of crops for two succeeding years previous to the one under review.	Ditto	The export of wheat during 1893 was 25,203 maunds against 24,078 maunds in 1892 and 24,042 in 1891.
Rangpur	.....	Slightly above the average	Plentiful, except in the Nilphamari and Kurigram sub-divisions.	Lower than usual	Wheat is not exported from this district.
Bogra	.....	Average. The outturn of the aus crop was 10 annas against 15 annas of the previous year, but that of the aman crop was rather unusual, being 18 annas against 15 annas of the year before, the largest figure recorded in recent years. Of the rabi crops the pulses have been very poor, the outturn being estimated at six annas against 16 annas of the previous year.	Not plentiful, there being large exportation to other districts to fetch higher prices.	Higher than usual. The average rate per rupee of wheat, rice (coarse) and gram in 1893-94 were 12 seers 11½ chitaks, 12 seers 3½ chitaks, and 14 seers 10¼ chitaks, against 11 seers 9½ chitaks, 12 seers 10¼ chitaks and 12 seers 13 chitaks in 1892-93, and against an average of last five years of 13 seers 4 chitaks, 16 seers 4½ chitaks and 14 seers 1¼ chitaks respectively.	.....
Pabna	.....	About the average. The deficiency is being made up by the imports specially of paddy and rice from neighbouring districts.	Not plentiful	Higher than usual	There are scarcely any exports of wheat from this district.
Darjeeling	.....	Average	The agricultural operations of this district are largely confined to tea cultivation, and the district depends to a large extent on the plains for its supply of food-grains. The supplies in the markets were sufficient during the year under report.	Not higher than usual	Wheat is grown only in the hills to a limited extent for local consumption. It is not exported.
Jalpaiguri	.....	A little below the average, being 15½ annas.	Sufficient to meet the demands till another crop is harvested if considerable exports to other districts are not made.	A little below the rate in the preceding year (from Rs. 3-8 to Rs. 4-8 per maund).	.....
Dacca	.....	Below the average	Not plentiful	Higher than usual till November last. From December the price began to fall and continued to do so till March.	.....
Faridpur	.....	Much below the average	There was little or no food-stocks of former harvests.	Higher than usual	There was no exportation of wheat.

District.	Cause of extension of wheat cultivation in recent years.	Whether the produce of the year's supply of food-grains has been much above or much below the average.	Whether the food-stocks of former harvests are plentiful or not.	Whether the prices of food-grains generally have ruled higher or lower than usual.	What have been the causes of increase or decrease of exports of wheat, and how far has the movement been influenced by a scarcity or otherwise of food-grains.	Remarks by the Agricultural Department.
Backergunge ...	.....	Below the average, the outturn of winter rice, the chief staple of the district, being 14½ annas.	Not plentiful. The stock was drained elsewhere by the prevalent high prices and the quantity held over was small.	Higher than usual in consequence of rice being sold at about Rs. 5 per maund. The usual price is Rs. 3.	.....
Mymensingh ...	.....	Not below the average	Not plentiful	Higher than usual	.....
Tippera ...	.....	Much below the average, the outturn being only 10½ annas this year, viz., 12 annas in the Sadar, 9 annas in the Brahmanbaria, and 11 annas in Chandpur.	Ditto	Ditto	.....
Noakhali ...	.....	Much below the average	Ditto	Ditto	.....
Chittagong ...	.....	Nowhere below, and in some places above the average.	Ditto	Ditto	.....
Chittagong Hill Tracts.	.....	About 50 per cent. below the average. Unseasonably excessive rainfall during the cultivating, sowing, growing and harvesting time accounts for the low average.	There are no food-stocks of former harvests.	Higher than usual, paddy being sold generally at 2 arkis per rupee, or three rupees a maund.	.....
Patna ...	.....	Much below the average in the Sadar, normal in Barh, above the average in Bihar, and below the average in the Dinapur sub-division.	Not plentiful in Barh and Dinapur; on the whole plentiful in Bihar. In the Sadar sub-division good quantity of rice of former harvests has been stored in large quantities by the higher class of cultivators. The stock of other grains is small.	Higher than usual in the Sadar subdivision, owing to the short rabi crops in Barh, the prices have ruled lower than the preceding year, but higher than usual. This is also the case in Bihar. In Dinapur they have ruled higher.	There has been no noticeable increase or decrease in exports of wheat in the Sadar and Bihar sub-divisions. In Barh, the export was very considerable. In Dinapur, there has been no export at all as there was little cultivation of the crop here.

Gaya ...	.....	Somewhat below the average, but not very much so. The bhadoi harvest was almost a failure, and the rabi harvest was considerably below an average one, but the winter rice crop was almost a bumper crop.	The food-stocks of the harvests of the previous year are almost exhausted.	The prices of food-grains generally have ruled slightly lower than has usually been the case in late years.	There was a much heavier export of wheat in 1893 than in 1892, and this has been mainly due to a better harvest.
Shahabad ...	...	Almost an average except in the Sasaram sub-division, where the produce of food-grains is reported to be above the average.	Sufficient for requirement in the Arrah and Bhabhua sub-divisions, but in other parts of the district the food-stocks of former harvests are not plentiful.	Stationary throughout the district.	The export of wheat has during the year decreased. It is partly ascribed to diminished cultivation and partly to the influence of the American and European markets. There was no movement of any kind caused by the scarcity or otherwise of food-grains.
Darbhanga ...	.....	Much below the average. During the year the bhadoi crops yielded an outturn of 4 annas in the Sadar sub-division, 10½ annas in Samastipur, 12 annas in Madhubani or 8½ annas for the whole district. Rice gave an outturn of 12 annas in the Sadar, and 8 and 13 annas respectively in the Samastipur and Madhubani sub-divisions. The average outturn of rabi for the whole district has been estimated at 12 annas.	Plentiful in Madhubani, but not so in the case of the Sadar and Samastipur sub-divisions, where the abnormal rainfall followed by two successive floods caused severe damage to the bhadoi and winter rice crops.	The prices of food-grains do not seem to have been much affected by the partial loss of the bhadoi and aghani crops, which was confined to a limited area; they were rather easy throughout the year with usual fluctuations.	The cultivation of wheat is carried on in a limited area in the district, and it is generally consumed locally. Its export is not carried on to any appreciable extent.
Muzaffarpur ...	.....	Considerably below the average, the outturn of the crops of 1893-94 being bhadoi 6 annas, winter rice 10 annas and rabi 15 annas, or on the whole about 10 annas.	Sufficient to make up deficiencies in the outturn of 1893-94, without being really plentiful.	Higher than in 1892-93, and slightly higher than the average.	There was as usual little or no exportation of wheat from this district.
Saran	.....	Above the average	Plentiful	Lower than last year ...	Very little wheat is exported from this district.
Champaran ...	.....	The bhadoi crop had probably suffered by the flood of Sekrahna. The outturn was below the average. The rice and rabi crops yielded a good outturn. On the whole the outturn was above the average.	Sufficient for local requirements ...	Stationary	There was an increase in the exportation of wheat in 1893-94 as compared with the export in 1892-93, which was due to the outturn of the wheat crop of 1892-93 (exported in 1893-94), being larger than that of the previous year, and also to the rabi crops of 1893-94 being better than that of 1892-93.
Monghyr ...	... ..	Normal	In 1892-93 there was scarcity, and the food stock of the former harvests was therefore not plentiful.	...	Owing to a larger outturn in the produce of the wheat crop last year, the export to other places was proportionately greater.

District.	Cause of extension of wheat cultivation in recent years.	Whether the produce of the year's supply of food-grains has been much above or much below the average.	Whether the food-stocks of former harvests are plentiful or not.	Whether the prices of food-grain generally have ruled higher or lower than usual.	What have been the causes of increase or decrease of exports of wheat, and how far has the movement been influenced by a scarcity or otherwise of food-grains.	Remarks by the Agricultural Department.
Bhagalpur ...	.....	About the average. The Indian corn and bhadoi millet crops were considerably damaged by the heavy rains of June and July, the former yielding an outturn of only 7 annas and the latter 8½ annas; the wheat and barley crops also have, in consequence of the almost entire cessation of rain since October, yielded rather less than an average crop, but the rice crops, both early and late, which form the staple food of the district, yielded a very bountiful harvest, the outturn of the former having been 16½ annas, and that of the latter 17 annas for the whole district. The Sub-divisional Officers of Banka and Supaul, however, state that the produce in those tracts was less than the average.	There is a consensus of opinion among the Sub-divisional Officers that the food-stocks of the previous harvests are not very abundant, but the Sub-divisional Officers of Madhipura and Supaul say that they are adequate. No reason for their opinion is assigned by any of them, but the almost entire depletion of stocks, owing to the drought and scarcity of 1891-92, and the drain on this district out of the harvests of 1892-93, consequent upon the scarcity and high prices in East Bengal, sufficiently account for this.	The reports received from the Sub-divisional Officers are conflicting. Prices were generally lower than in the preceding year, but higher than those ordinarily ruling in this district, and also higher than the abundant harvests both of 1892-93 and 1893-94 warranted. This may be accounted for partly by the depletion of stocks of previous years and partly by exports of rice being brisk.	Exportation of wheat has decreased from the Sadar sub-division. The Sub-divisional Officer of Banka says that there has been none from his part of the district; on the other hand the Sub-divisional Officer of Madhipura and Supaul, which together make up that part of the district which lies between the Ganges and Nepaul, report an increase in the export of wheat owing to the abundant harvest of 1892-93 as compared with that of 1891-92.
Purnea ...	.....	Average	Plentiful	Higher than usual in the beginning of the year, but after the harvest of the aghani crop the prices fell to about the usual rate.	The exports at Kasba have been about the same as in 1892-93.
Malda	.....	Ditto	Ditto	Higher than usual	During the year under report, the export of wheat was on the decrease on account of its high price.
Santhal Parganas.	.....	Below the average	Not plentiful	Not lower than usual	The export of wheat was greater at Godda, less at Rajmahal, normal at Pakour. Elsewhere there are no exports or imports to speak of.
Cuttack ...	.....	The outturn of the bali and sarad crops, the principal food-crops of the district, has not been more than 10 and 11 annas respectively. Heavy and excessive rainfall at the ploughing	The outturn of the previous year's crop was below the average, and there were large exports by Bombay merchants. What remained had been stored in pits by the rice	Higher than usual. The average rate in 1893-94 of wheat, rice (common) and gram is 12*sr.* 10*ch.*, 14*sr.* 7*ch.* and 18*sr.* 10*ch.* respec-

Balasore ...	.....	and sowing season caused a large part of the area, usually devoted to these crops to be kept unsown. Again in the month of September, there occurred high floods, and this was followed by cessation of rain for some time. These were the principal causes of the reduced outturn. The outturn of the rabi crop also was below the average, being 12 annas—a result due to excess of rain at the time of sowing and to want of rain afterwards.	mahajans. This grain was much damaged by the floods and unusually heavy rains of May 1893: for these reasons the food-stocks are very low.	tively against 13*ser*. 6*ch*., 16*ser* 8*ch*. and 21*ser*. 4*ch*. in 1892-93.
		Slightly below the average	Not plentiful	Higher than usual	.....
Puri ...	.....	Below the average, being 13 annas ...	Plentiful	Almost the same as usual in 1892-93, but much higher than what the prices were in two years preceding.	.....
Angul ...	.....	Owing to the short crop of the year the produce is not more than half the average.	Not plentiful	Higher than usual ...	.....
Hazaribagh ...	.....	The produce of paddy has been much above the average, while that of khesdri and rabi crops has been below the average.	Not plentiful	Usual	Wheat is not exported from this district.
Lohardaga ...	.....	A little above the average ...	Ditto	Lower than in previous years	Wheat as produced in a small quantity in this district and is never exported. It is imported in large quantities from other districts to meet the demand of the people.
Palamau ...	.....	About the average	Plentiful	Usual	There is little or no export of wheat from this district.

District.	Cause of extension of wheat cultivation in recent years.	Whether the produce of the year's supply of food-grains has been much above or much below the average.	Whether the food-stocks of former harvests are plentiful or not.	Whether the prices of food-grains generally have ruled higher or lower than usual.	What have been the causes of increase or decrease of export of wheat, and how far has the movement been influenced by a scarcity or otherwise of food-grains.	Remarks by the Agricultural Department.
Manbhum ...	.....	The produce of the year's supply of food-grains is given below:— Annas. Bhadoi ... Winter rice ... 13 Paddy ... 9 Maize ... 5 Millets ... 6 Pulses ... 8 Rabi ... Wheat ... 8 Barley ... 8 Gram ... 6 Pulses ... 6 In the above figures, 16 annas represents a fair average crop. It will thus be seen that all the crops were below the average. The heavy rainfall of last year injured the bhadoi crops, especially maize. The winter rice crop was very promising at first, but was latterly attacked by blight, and the average outturn was therefore not more than 13 annas all round.	The food stocks of former harvests are far from being plentiful. In some parts of the district, the stock has been almost exhausted. The failure of the maize crop, which is one of the staple food-grains in this district, was severely felt by the poorer classes.	A little lower than last year. In previous years, the exportation of rice was very great, but during the year just past, such exportation was less, and for this reason the price of rice is easier now.	Properly speaking Manbhum is not a wheat-producing district.	The Deputy Commissioner does not think that any quantity of wheat is exported from his district."
Singhbhum ...	.....	Almost an average	Plentiful	Higher than usual	Wheat is not exported from this district to any appreciable extent.

FINAL REPORT ON THE OILSEED CROPS IN BENGAL OF 1892-93.

THE following is published for general information :—

C. E. BUCKLAND,
Secy. to the Govt of Bengal.

REVENUE DEPT.,
The 22nd May 1894.

DEPARTMENT OF LAND RECORDS AND AGRICULTURE, BENGAL.

Final Report on the Oilseed Crops of Bengal, 1893-94.

1. Explanatory.—The oilseed crops dealt with in this report are (1) linseed, (2) rapeseed and mustard, (3) the rabi or summer variety of til, and (4) other oilseeds, e.g., castor-oil, nigerseed or sorguza, &c. The bhadoi variety of til, which is sown during the rains and reaped early in the cold-weather, has been excluded from this report. It is feared, however, that in some districts the distinction between the two varieties of til has not been kept in view in the preparation of their respective reports.

Returns have been received from all districts, except Puri, Palamau, Singbhum, and the Chittagong Hill Tracts. The Assistant Commissioner of the Chittagong Hill Tracts has discontinued the submission of crop reports to this office under the orders of Government; this district will, therefore, no longer appear in the Crop Reports of this department.

2. Character of the season.—Unusually heavy rain fell during the first three weeks of October 1893. This, combined with the heavy rainfall in the previous months, enabled the soil to retain a stock of moisture, and was so far beneficial to the crops, but at the same time the excessive moisture thus engendered, interfered with the timely preparation of land, and retarded the sowing operations. The heavy rains of October were followed by a long period of rainless weather which, with the exception of a few very light and scattered showers in November, continued uninterruptedly till the end of January. The oilseed crops, in common with other rabi crops, were seriously affected by the failure of the cold-weather rains. A little rain fell early in February in Bihar and in parts of Chota Nagpur and North Bengal, and slightly improved the prospects of the crops; elsewhere there was no rain till the last days of February, when a period of wet weather set in throughout these provinces, which lasted till the close of the first week of March, and is reported to have caused more or less damage to the standing crops in several districts.

3. Area cultivated.—Exclusive of Singhbhum, the total area in Bengal occupied by the oilseed crops in the cold-weather of 1893-94, is estimated at 4,187,500 acres against 4,314,500 acres estimated to have been sown in the previous year, thus showing a nominal falling off of 2·94 per cent. The decrease is mainly attributed to the excessive rainfall in October, which interfered with the preparation of the land and the sowing operations.

4. Character of the crops.—Only one district (Monghyr) estimates the outturn of the oilseed crops at 16 annas; 15 districts report the crops as varying from 12 to 15 annas, and in the remaining districts the outturn is variously estimated at from 8 to 12 annas. On the whole, the outturn of the oilseed crops in Bengal may be estimated at slightly less than 12 annas or three-fourths of the average. It appears to be slightly in defect of the previous year's outturn.

5. Gross outturn of oilseeds.—It was explained in the final report on the oilseed crops of 1892-93 that in consequence of the extreme difficulty of obtaining reliable estimates of the rates of average outturn per acre of the oilseed crops for each district of Bengal, the district returns could not be prepared in the form prescribed by the Government of India in their order No. 8—53, dated the 23rd February 1893, which required estimates of the gross outturn of the crops for each district in Bengal. The required information was, however, furnished last year for Bengal as a whole. For this purpose, the rates of average outturn per acre were assumed to be six maunds for linseed as well as for rapeseed and mustard, and 4½ maunds for other oilseeds. These data have again been used in preparing the Provincial statement of outturn for the year under report (vide Appendix B). The gross outturn of oilseeds in Bengal (exclusive of Singhbhum) during the year under report would appear to amount to 598,900 tons, against 628,400 tons estimated to have been produced in the previous year. The falling off is entirely under the head of rapeseed and mustard, which appear to have suffered more from the absence of the cold-weather rains than either linseed or the minor oilseed crops.

BURDWAN ...	Burdwan ...	Linseed	28,200	27,300	26,300	9	10	In the Sadar subdivision the outturn is better than last year's owing to plentiful rainfall last autumn. In the Kulna subdivision, there was no cultivation of til this year. In the Katwa subdivision, owing to heavy rainfall in the last season, the sowing was rather late, and then again there was no winter rain. In the Raniganj subdivision the decrease in the outturn as compared with the estimate in the preliminary report is due to want of rain.

	Burbhum ...	Linseed	1,000	1,000	1,000	12	12	As in the case of other rabi crops, there was nothing particular to reduce the outturn of this crop to lower than 12 annas. The area under other oilseeds is inappreciably small, and has therefore been omitted from the statement, and the whole area shown under til.

		Total ...	107,800	100,800	85,600	10	11	The area sown this year is less than that of last year. The decrease is due to abnormal rainfall, which prevented the low-lying areas from being brought under cultivation.
	Hooghly (with Howrah).	Linseed	2,700	2,600	3,600	10	11	There is slight increase in the outturn (as compared with the preliminary forecast) owing to the crops having been benifited by rain in Howrah and Ulubaria.

PRESIDENCY	Murshidabad	Linseed	30,500	28,500	27,000	11	11	The decrease in outturn is due to want of rainfall at the sowing season.

	Jessore ...	Linseed	42,000	42,100	38,600	10	11	The fall of the outturn below average is due to cessation of rain since November. The figures in columns 4 and 6 differ from those shown in the preliminary forecast by 500 acres. In that forecast there was a double entry of 500 acres.
		Rapeseed and mustard	51,400	52,100	48,700		10

	Khulna ...	Linseed	6,000	4,500	4,800	10½	12	Prospects are slightly better than in the previous year. A little falling off in the average outturn of til in 1893-94 is owing to the excessive rainfall early in the year which retarded the cultivation of the crop in the Bagerhat subdivision.
		Rapeseed and mustard	67,000	67,000	65,000	12½	15
		Til (rabi)	3,200	3,200	3,200	14	12

	Rajshahi ...	Linseed	3,200	3,200	3,200	12½	13½	Owing to the want of rain which has not fallen in any appreciable quantity for nearly five months, and the want of the usually copious dews at night, the crops suffered much, and hence the difference in outturn between this and the preliminary forecast (13¼ annas); but a larger outturn is expected than last year's.
		Rapeseed and mustard	94,600	94,600	94,600	12½	13

RAJSHAHI ...	Dinajpur ...	Rapeseed and mustard	129,500	129,500	129,500	14	13	The decrease in the outturn (as compared with the preliminary estimate of 14 annas) is due to the fact that the oilseed crops suffered to some extent from want of rain.
		Total ...	129,500	129,500	129,500	14	13

Taking 16 annas to represent the average outturn per acre, how many annas will represent this year's outturn (1893-94)?	Remarks by the District Officers.	*Remarks by the Department of Land Records and Agriculture, Bengal.
Rajshahi—concld.	Darjeeling	Rapeseed and mustard	Acres. 7,500	Acres. 7,600	Acres. 7,500	Annas. 12	Annas. 13	The increase in the outturn of rapeseed and mustard is owing to seasonable rain. The deficiency in the outturn of til is due to excessive rainfall at the time of sowing.
		Til (rabi)	100	100	100	16	10
		Total ...	7,600	7,600	7,600	12	13
	Rangpur ...	Rapeseed and mustard	104,800	104,800	102,800	12	10	In the preliminary forecast, under column 4 against rapeseed and mustard the figure shown was 163,200 acres. Part of the figure was obtained through the Police, on whom much reliance cannot be placed as regards this matter. The figure now given under that column (104,800 acres) seems to be more accurate. Owing to want of timely rain the outturn has been less.
		Til (rabi)	800	800	800
		Other oilseeds ...	1,200	1,200	1,200
		Total ...	106,800	106,800	104,800	12	10
	Bogra ...	Linseed	19,900	19,900	18,000	14	10	The damp produced by the excessive rain of the year prevented the timely sowing of the seeds, as already reported. There has been no change since the submission of the preliminary forecast in which the outturn was estimated to be 10 annas which may remain unaltered.
		Rapeseed and mustard	103,000	103,800	100,000
		Til (rabi)	23,100	23,100	22,000

	Pabna ...	Linseed	22,500	20,600	20,600	8	8	Virtually there has been no rain in this district for the last six months; hence the decrease in the estimated outturn.	Is it correct that there are no oilseed crops other than those shown here? Are not summer til and castor-oil crops grown?
		Rapeseed and mustard	117,000	116,900	115,760	12	10
		Total ...	139,500	137,500	136,300	11½	9½

DACCA ...	Dacca ...	Linseed	12,800	8,900	8,900	10	10	Owing to want of rain there is less outturn in the Manikganj subdivision than what was reported in the preliminary forecast. In Munshiganj for want of rain the outturn was less than that of previous year. The area under oilseed crops also decreased owing to the increased cultivation of jute. In the Narayanganj subdivision the outturn this year is worse than last year, as the crop was damaged for want of rain at the time of sowing and also by insects.
		Rapeseed and mustard	110,100	97,200	97,200	10½	9½
		Til (rabi)	26,400	23,300	23,300	8	8

	Mymensingh	Linseed	42,700	36,400	35,300	12	13	The outturn is not hopeful in the Tangail subdivision for want of rain. In the Kishorganj subdivision some damage was done at the earlier part of the season for deficiency of rainfall. Hence the outturn of mustard has been less than that of last year; but in the latter part much good was done by a proper distribution of rainfall. In the Jamalpur subdivision before the seeds were gathered, a certain quantity was distroyed by insects; hence the outturn has been estimated 2 annas less than the average outturn.	Neither in the preliminary nor in this return is it explained why this year's area under the different kinds of oilseeds should be so far below the normal.
		Rapeseed and mustard	479,300	370,400	358,300		14

	Faridpur ...	Linseed	7,000	5,000	5,000	10	10	Want of rain during the period of growth affected the outturn, hence it has been poorer than what was estimated in the preliminary forecast.

	Backergunge	Linseed	30,100	29,500	29,800	8	11	The rains in February and March 1894 have done some good to these crops; hence the better outturn.
		Rapeseed and mustard	1,900	1,400	1,500	6	11
		Til (rabi)	36,500	34,200	34,300	12	13

		Total ...	68,500	65,100	65,600	10	11½
CHITTAGONG ...	Noakhali ...	Linseed	17,600	17,600	14,500	10	8	Heavy rain and hail at the time of harvest (February and March 1894) affected the outturn. The difference of 1,500 acres in the area shown in column 5 between the present return and that given by the Collector last year is owing to the fact that the area under til crop was formerly shown in the forecast of bhadoi crops, but it has been now included in the oilseed forecast.	Evidently bhadoi til is included in this report, although it was not meant to be so.
		Rapeseed and mustard	6,500	6,500	6,300	8	7½

CHITTAGONG—contd.	Tippera ...	Linseed	Acres. 27,500	Acres. 18,300	Acres. 5,040	Annas. 11½	Annas. 9½	The area and outturn of bhadoi rabi (a) were shown in the preliminary forecast. In this report only rabi (a) is returned; hence the difference between the figures for other oilseeds shown in this return and those shown in the preliminary forecast. Insects injured the plants before and at the time of flowering.

	Patna ...	Linseed	20,300	20,900	21,400	12	10½	Want of rain at the time when the crops were maturing is the cause of decrease in outturn as compared with the first forecast. The decrease in the area sown (as noticed by Director in the preliminary forecast) was for the most part due to an error in the police return for the Sadar subdivision. The figure has been amended accordingly in this return.
		Rapeseed and mustard	30,000	23,300	23,800	12	10½
		Til (rabi)	1,800	1,600	1,300	10	9

	Gaya ...	Linseed	85,400	76,900	62,300	12	11	The nature of the rainfall was not favourable to the sowing; hence less than normal area was cultivated. Untimely rain and westerly wind in February and in the beginning of March damaged the flowers and the development of seeds. The actual outturn is decidedly less than the estimated outturn.
		Rapeseed and mustard	29,500	18,300	16,300	11	11
		Til (rabi)	12,100	9,100	9,100	12	10

PATNA ...	Shahabad ...	Linseed	11,000	13,800	9,000	10	10½	In the Sadar sub-division, owing to timely rain, the outturn was favourable. In the Buxar sub-division the decrease in produce was unforeseen almost till the last moment; the diminished outturn is generally ascribed to the heavy rain in the chaitra sukhatra. Since the submission of the preliminary forecast the poppy suffered greatly on account of the dull weather, and consequently the outturn was reduced to 8 annas in the Sasaram sub-division. Til is not largely cultivated in this sub-division as it does not yield a good outturn.	The great decrease in area sown this year was not explained by the Collector in the preliminary forecast nor is it noticed in this report.

	Darbhanga	Linseed	47,700	33,700	58,200	12	11	The reduction in the estimated outturn as reported in the preliminary forecast is due to the damage done to the crops in the Madhubani sub-division by blight caused by cloudy skies. Til cultivation in this district is nominal. It is sown with other crops where the cultivators choose to grow it. It is not cultivated separately.
		Rapeseed and mustard	49,400	46,100	53,500	16	11

BHAGALPUR ...	Monghyr ...	Linseed	10,500	4,800	5,100	16	16	Owing to timely rainfall, this year has been an exceptionally good one for oilseed crops. The area sown with til is so small as may be safely left out of consideration.	Monghyr is the only district which shows a 16-anna crop. The estimates of outturn in the neighbouring district are considerably lower.

BHAGALPUR —concld.	Bhagalpur ...	Linseed	14,100	13,600	13,600	12½	11½	The figure in column 4 differ from the corresponding figure in the preliminary forecast owing to the figure given by the sub-divisional Officer of Madhipura being altered in the meat, whereas they had been altered in the preliminary forecast. The outturn figures in columns 7 and 8 differs from previous figures, as these had at first been calculated on wrong principles. The remarks made in the preliminary forecast regarding condition of weather and soil hold good.	The Collector reports that the summer variety of til is not much grown in this district; 500 acres only have been returned as under this crop in the Supaul sub-division.

	Purnea ...	Linseed	11,000	10,000	8,700	12½	13	The difference between the figures of column 6 of the statement and the preliminary forecast against "Rapeseed and mustard" and "Other oilseeds" is due to the fact that in the first forecasts of the sub-divisions separate figures for these heads were not given, and they had to be calculated in this office, taking certain proportion on the entire area sown, but separate figure having been now returned, the figure of column 6 have been corrected accordingly. The want of rain during January and February last retarded the growth of the crops, and hence the outturn is much below the average.

Explanation.—... indicates that no rain has fallen. If the return for any day has not been received, the corresponding space is left blank. If any of the returns are wanting the corresponding spaces in the total rainfall columns are left blank. With reference to the column of rainy days, the definition of a rainy day is when at least 0·10 inch of rain has fallen.

CALCUTTA, the 22nd May 1894.

SUMMARY OF THE METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN BENGAL, AND OF THE METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN ASSAM, FOR THE WEEK ENDING 8 A.M., SATURDAY, THE 21ST OF MAY 1894.

THE week opened with a rapid fall of pressure which was largest in Assam and North Bengal, where it equalled about an eighth of an inch, and hence on the 13th or the first day of the week a decided low pressure area existed over the north of Bengal and Assam, the defective pressure ranging up to 0·17″ at Darbhanga and 0·15″ at Sibsagar. Disturbed conditions hence existed, and local storms with rain were numerous in East and North Bengal and Assam. On the 14th a further small fall of pressure occurred, and over a considerable part of Central and Northern Bengal pressure was in defect by 0·16″. Disturbed conditions therefore continued, and rain storms were again reported in East and North Bengal and Assam. On the 15th the fall of pressure ceased and a brisk increase occurred, but still pressure was in defect by very considerable amounts. On the 16th a slight fall of pressure took place in Chota Nagpur and in parts of Bihar, Western and Central Bengal, while over the remainder of the province pressure was rising. A distinct barometric depression again existed therefore over Bihar and parts of Bengal, and weather in the eastern and northern districts continued disturbed with rather numerous rain-showers. On the 17th the fall of pressure extended to the whole of Bengal and Assam, the fall at Sibsagar equalling no less than 0·095″. Hence again a very distinct barometric depression existed over Bengal and Assam, the defects being largest along the foot of the hills and in Central and South Bengal. On the 18th a slight increase of pressure occurred, making the depression a little less pronounced, but on the 19th pressure had again fallen in Bihar and North Bengal, while it was rising elsewhere, so that the barometric depression was becoming more pronounced in the northern districts. Throughout, therefore, practically the whole week a distinct barometric depression has existed over Bengal and partly over Assam, and, as is usual in such cases, weather has been decidedly disturbed, and very numerous rain storms have occurred in East and North Bengal and Assam. In the west of the Province, in South-West Bengal, Bihar, Chota Nagpur and Orissa, weather on the other hand has been fairly settled. Westerly and south-westerly winds have been blowing over this part of the province towards the depression, and have been giving unusually high temperature throughout the week, and over this area temperature has been very largely in excess, but over the area affected by the rain storms, and which has been exposed to moist south-easterly winds, also blowing towards the depression, temperature has been more normal. Humidity has been unusually high over the greater part of the province, and the excess has been very noticeable in the western, south-western and central districts.

Pressure.—Owing to the low pressure area which has existed for the greater part of the week, pressure has been below the normal by about a tenth of an inch over a large part of the province. The general variation for the week in Bengal has been from a defect of about a twentieth of an inch in Chota Nagpur to more than 0·1″ at such typical stations as Burdwan, Jessore, Bankipur, Darbhanga and Purnea. In Assam the defect for the week has also been large, having equalled 0·104″ at Sibsagar, 0·091″ at Dhubri, and 0·063″ at Silchar.

Temperature.—The mean temperature for the week in South-West Bengal, Orissa and Chota Nagpur has been from four and a half to nearly six degrees above the normal, in Bihar the excess has been four degrees, while in North and East Bengal and Assam the excess has been from one to one and a half degrees.

Rainfall.—North Bengal has received an average fall of 2·65 inches or about twice the normal fall for the week, while East Bengal has received 1·84 inches or about 18 per cent. more than usual. Very slight falls but of little importance have occurred in South-West Bengal and Bihar, while Orissa and Chota Nagpur have been rainless.

In Assam, Dhubri has received 0·16 inches, Sibsagar, 2·47 inches and Silchar 2·26 inches of rain during the week.

The following table gives the summary of the temperature and rainfall data of each of the six meteorological divisions of the province for the week ending Saturday, the 19th of May 1894:—

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard, Newman's No. 86, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The directions and the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

Explanation.—... indicates that no rain has fallen. If the return for any day has not been received, the corresponding space is left blank. If any of the returns are wanting the corresponding spaces in the total rainfall columns are left blank. With reference to the column of rainy days, the definition of a rainy day is when at least 0·10 inch of rain has fallen.

CALCUTTA, the 29th May 1894.

SUMMARY OF THE METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN BENGAL, AND OF THE METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN ASSAM, FOR THE WEEK ENDING 8 A.M., SATURDAY, THE 26TH OF MAY 1894.

DURING the greater part of the previous week a decided barometric depression had existed over Bengal, the defects being largest at the northern stations, along the foot of the hills and in Assam. On the 20th a rapid fall of pressure had occurred over the greater part of the Province, the fall being largest in Assam and at the eastern stations generally, so that the low pressure area lying over Bengal and Assam again became more prominent, pressure being in defect by amounts ranging up to 0·19″ at Sibsagar. On the 21st pressure was rising slowly, the increase being largest in Assam, and the depression partially filled up. This increase of pressure continued on the 22nd, when the depression became of little importance. On the 24th, however, a fall of pressure commenced, which continued rather rapidly on the 25th and 26th, and hence the barometric depression again intensified very considerably, and on the 26th, or the last day of the week under review, the defect ranged up to more than a quarter of an inch at such stations as Darbhanga, Patna and Purnea. Hence, again, for the greater part of the week, a barometric depression has existed over the province, the defect being largest usually along the foot of the hills. With this pressure distribution there has been a strong indraught towards the depression, and hence unusually strong southerly winds have been blowing over the whole of Bengal, while the winds at the head of the Bay have been particularly strong. Indeed, towards the end of the week wind velocities increased to such an extent that a moderate gale of wind was blowing at Saugor Island, and during the 24 hours from 8 A.M. of the 25th to the 26th, wind velocity at that station had averaged no less than 37 miles an hour. In connection with this depression also very disturbed weather existed in the eastern and south-eastern districts, and rain, frequently accompanying local storms, has occurred almost daily in Assam and in East and North Bengal. The rainfall has been generally heaviest in Assam, and in the Cachar district in particular very heavy rain was falling at the end of the week, Silchar reporting no less than 5·10 inches on the morning of the 26th. With the fairly general rain which has thus been received in the east of the province, temperature over this area has been comparatively low. The area occupied by the depression and to the south and west of it has, however, received practically no rain at all during the week, and hence excessively high temperatures have been recorded, and for several days the mean temperature of the western half of the province was more than 5°, and in some parts more than 10° above the normal temperature. Thus on the 26th or the last day of the week, while the mean temperature at Sibsagar was in defect by 9·1° and at Silchar by 7·9°, in West Bengal at Bankura the excess was as much as 15·7°, while the excess was more than 10° at no less than 7 other stations. Bankura on the afternoon of the 25th indeed registered a maximum or day temperature of 115·1° or no less than 20·8° higher than the normal, while at Malda and Naya Dumka the excess was more than 18°. It has been noticeable that, except at the extreme western stations, humidity also has been unusually high during the week.

Pressure.—As described previously, a barometric depression has covered the province for the greater part of the week, the centre of greatest defect being near the foot of the hills. Thus Purnea has registered a mean defect of 0·142″ for the week and Darbhanga one of 0·146″, while at Sibsagar the defect has been 0·112″. On the other hand Chittagong shows an almost normal pressure and False Point a defect of only 0 023″.

Temperature.—The defect in the mean temperature for the week in Assam has equalled 3·2° and in East Bengal 3·1°. Large excess temperatures have, however, been registered in all other districts, the excess amounts being between 3° and 4° in North Bengal and Orissa, between 5° and 6° in South-West Bengal, and between 6° and 7° in Bihar and Chota Nagpur.

Rainfall.—Heavy rain has fallen in East Bengal, which has received an average amount of 3·21 inches or more than 50 per cent. in excess of the normal. North Bengal has received 1·44 inches or less than the usual fall by about 25 per cent. Orissa has also received 0·56 inch or about half the normal fall. Light showers averaging only 0·13 inch have fallen in South-West Bengal, while Bihar and Chota Nagpur have been rainless.

The following table gives the summary of the temperature and rainfall data of each of the six meteorological divisions of the province for the week ending Saturday, the 26th of May 1894:—

Meteorological Divisions.	Temperature.						Rainfall.

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph and from observations made at 6h, 10h, 16h, and 22h.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard, Newman's No. 86, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The directions and the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

REVISED ADVERTISEMENT.

A Dictionary of the Economic Products of India.
BY DR. GEO. WATT, C.I.E.,

Reporter on Economic Products.

Published under the authority of the Government of India in the Revenue and Agricultural Department.

The first five volumes and Vol. VI, Parts I, II, III & IV of the Dictionary are now ready at the Office of Superintendent of Government Printing, No. 8, Hastings Street, Calcutta, and will be supplied to non-subscribers on receipt of the price for the complete set, which is Rs. 45 in India, and 3 guineas in England (exclusive of the Index, for which a separate charge will be made); packing and postage, in India, 8 annas per volume; for England, Rs. 2-6 per volume. For copies bound in half calf or half morocco, Rs. 6 and 8 shillings, respectively, will be charged extra for the whole set.

The Dictionary is intended to deal with the products of India—animal, vegetable, and mineral; each product being treated after a uniform plan, the paragraphs of which give the scientific, vernacular, and European names; habitat or source; history; properties and uses (both chemical and industrial); trade statistics; markets; &c. The work is arranged alphabetically according to scientific nomenclature, but commercial and important vernacular names are also given as cross references, so that little difficulty need be experienced in finding the account of a product even when its scientific name is unknown to the reader.

An important feature of the Dictionary consists in the fact that derived information is in every instance given under quotation marks, and with a reference to the original publication. Numerous contributors have, however, furnished the results of new discoveries and confirmed the vernacular names, so that the Dictionary is not only a complete compilation of published information, but has been brought abreast of the most recent inventions and discoveries.

Volume I contains the letters A and B, and consists of 559 royal octavo pages; Vol. II embraces the letter C in 689 pages; Vol. III contains the letters D, E, F and half of G. Vol IV latter half of G to middle of L; and Vol. V contains the latter half of L to end of O; Vol. VI, which will consist of four parts), Part I, contains letters P to R. The whole work will, it is expected, be completed in nine volumes (including Parts II to IV of Vol. VI) during the current year; but a tenth volume may also be issued, consisting of an Index to all the vernacular and other names contained in the Dictionary. The Index will practically be a Glossary of the vernacular and European names of the plants, animals and minerals of India, and as such will be a work of reference, which, it is hoped, may prove of considerable value.

RESOLUTION ON THE REPORT ON THE LUNATIC ASYLUMS IN BENGAL FOR THE YEAR 1893.

MUNICIPAL DEPARTMENT—MEDICAL.

RESOLUTION—No. 2450Medl.

Dareeling, the 28th May 1894.

READ—

The Report on the Lunatic Asylums in Bengal for the year 1893.

Read also—

The Report for the year 1892 and the Resolution recorded upon it.

The report under review, which has been submitted with punctuality, shows the statistics of the asylums in the revised forms prescribed by the Government of India during the year. The additional information required by this Government as to the three classes of criminal lunatics, viz.—

(1) those tried and acquitted on the ground of insanity;

(2) those insane on admission and found incapable of making a defence; and

(3) those who became insane during imprisonment,

has been given in the body of the report.

2. The statement on the margin, which gives details regarding the population of the five native asylums during the year 1893, shows that though there was an increase of 19 in the number admitted during the year, yet, owing to the number of discharges and deaths taken together having been greater by 42, the daily average strength was 28 less than in the preceding year. The number of criminal lunatics in confinement decreased slightly: it was 445 on the 31st December 1893, against 449 on the 31st December 1892. The decrease, which has been going on steadily since 1890, when the number at the end of the year was 1,021, was principally among the non-criminal lunatics, and it is right that it should be so, for the retention of this class of lunatics is often of doubtful propriety, when they are not harmful and have relatives who ought to and could support them.

3. Of the 205 admissions and re-admissions, 103 were criminal lunatics and 102 non-criminal, against 98 and 88 respectively in the preceding year. The increase occurred in all the asylums; that at Dacca was the largest and was due to the transfer to that asylum from Cachar of fourteen lunatics, against two in the preceding year. The re-admissions during the year numbered 24, or four less than in 1892. The decrease occurred in all the asylums except Berhampore, in which eight were re-admitted, against two in the year before. It is explained, however, that of these eight re-admissions, six were those of lunatics who, having been released to stand their trial, were ordered back to the asylum after judgment had been passed. A similar explanation is given of the large number of re-admissions that occurred during 1892, in regard to which an enquiry was ordered in last year's Resolution. The Lieutenant-Governor desires that re-admissions of this class, as well as the cases of those non-criminal lunatics who are re-admitted to the asylum after having been released at the request of their friends, although not cured, may in future be distinguished from ordinary re-admissions of persons who having been discharged as cured, are afterwards re-admitted as insane.

4. The number of lunatics discharged was 163 as compared with 114 in the previous year. The increase occurred almost entirely in the Dullanda asylum. This satisfactory result is partly due to the class of cases treated, there having been an unusual number of recoveries from toxic insanity, but it is chiefly owing to the success that attended the praiseworthy efforts of the Superintendent in finding out the friends of harmless lunatics and in inducing them to take charge of them. Thirty six were in this manner made over to the custody of their friends, as against twelve so disposed of in 1892.

5. Out of the 445 criminal lunatics remaining under confinement at the close of the year, 176 belonged to the first, 242 to the second, and 27 to the third of the three classes enumerated in paragraph 7 of the report, against 179, 241 and 29 respectively in the year before. The daily average number, as well as the number remaining in confinement at the end of the year, has decreased steadily, though slowly, from 1891 onwards.

6. The extension of the Asylum at Berhampore to provide for 64 additional male lunatics was completed during the year under review. The five native asylums now provide accommodation for 1,133 patients, calculated at 50 superficial feet for each patient. There was no overcrowding except in the female wards at Dacca. It is reported that no inconvenience or injury to health resulted from this overcrowding, but as it is likely to continue, the Inspector-General of Civil Hospitals suggests that the accommodation may be increased. Separate orders will be passed on this recommendation.

7. In 55 cases out of a total of 205 admissions and re-admissions during the year, the cause of insanity is alleged to have been the consumption of ganja. It seems that whenever a lunatic is reported by the police to be a ganja-smoker, it is too easily assumed that that drug is the cause of insanity, and the Lieutenant-Governor agrees with Dr. Harvey in thinking that in past years many cases have been attributed to ganja on most insufficient grounds. The whole question of the effect of the consumption of this drug upon the social and moral condition of the people is now under the consideration of the Hemp Drugs Commission, and their report will doubtless show to what extent the use of hemp drugs is the cause of lunacy.

8. The health of the inmates of the asylums during the year under review shows an improvement; the average daily number in hospital being 49·25, against 54·06 in 1892, and the percentage of chronic invalids to average strength being 5·28 against 5·62. There was a small increase, however, in the number of admissions into hospital owing, it is said, to the treatment of a larger number of trifling cases in the hospitals. At Dullanda, Dacca, and Patna there were more admissions into hospital than in 1892, while Berhampore shows a decrease. The increase at Dullanda was due to the prevalence of fever and dysentery to a greater extent than in the year before, while that at Dacca is attributed to influenza, of which 87 cases occurred during the year, against none in 1892. The increase at Patna was due chiefly to an increase of fever. Cases of sporadic cholera occurred at Dullanda, Dacca and Berhampore, but there was no general outbreak. There were 77 deaths during the year, against 84 in 1892, and the percentage of deaths to average strength was 8·26 against 8·74. There were no great variations in the hospitals, the minimum rate being 7·04 and the highest 9·8. This rate compares favourably with the figures given by Dr. Harvey for European asylums as well as for asylums in the other provinces of India, and the Lieutenant-Governor concurs in his opinion that the results afford good evidence of the excellent hygienic condition under which the lunatics live and of the care which is taken of them.

9. There were ten cases of injuries and accidents, against eleven in 1892 and 16 in 1891. Of these ten, six occurred at Dullanda, of which three were due to accidents and three to assaults by lunatics on lunatics; in Dacca there was one case of injury by an accident, and one in which a patient struck by a jamadar and two keepers sustained a fracture of the rib. In Patna one lunatic broke his arm in a fight, and at Cuttack there was one accident. The officials through whose misconduct or neglect these injuries and accidents occurred appear to have been suitably punished in each case.

10. There were, as in 1892, two escapes—one from Dacca and one from Berhampore. Both the lunatics were recaptured, and the keepers, through whose negligence the escapes occurred, were adequately punished.

The expenditure under the head "Diet" shows a decrease of Rs. 1,314-1-11 as compared with 1892. The decrease occurred at all the asylums, except Dacca and Cuttack. The average cost of each lunatic on account of diet was—Dullanda Rs. 41-9-5, Dacca Rs. 44-11-6, Patna Rs. 32-3-2, Cuttack Rs. 38-7-1, and Berhampore Rs. 35-15-4, against Rs. 42-13-2, Rs. 40-13-2, Rs. 34-7-8, Rs. 36-6-5, and Rs. 37-12-3, respectively, in the preceding year. The cost of diet of each prisoner in the neighbouring jails in 1893 was—Alipore Rs. 27-12-6, Dacca Rs. 28-11-11, Patna Rs. 19-0-8, Cuttack Rs. 23-0-11, and Berhampore Rs. 24-10-4.

The number of inmates in the Cuttack asylum being very low, the charges on account of establishment and superintendence swelled the average cost per head. The high average at Dullanda was due partly to the payment of a larger amount on account of rates and taxes than at Dacca, Patna, and Berhampore, and partly to wages and cost of provisions, &c., being higher in Calcutta than in the other towns in which the asylums are situated. The Lieutenant-Governor agrees with the Inspector-General of Civil Hospitals that the asylums are carefully and economically managed, and that the differences in the actual cost were due to local conditions and to accidental causes which vary from year to year.

13. The number of paying patients rose from 31 in 1892 to 34 during the year under review; but the receipts from this source fell off at all the asylums except Dullanda. The Lieutenant-Governor desires to invite the special attention of all officers concerned to Government circular No. 42 of the 3rd December 1891, and to impress upon them the necessity of following strictly in future the instructions therein contained. The Superintendent of the Native Lunatic Asylum, Calcutta, has suggested that the cost of pauper lunatics should be charged to the Municipality from which they are sent. This question was considered in 1892, and it was then decided that to give effect to this suggestion legislation would be necessary, which the Government was not prepared to undertake. The Lieutenant Governor still adheres to this view.

14. The experiment of establishing diary farms at lunatic asylums was further continued during the year. As a commercial enterprise it has not generally proved successful, but since the plan ensures a plentiful supply of good milk to the inmates, the Lieutenant-Governor agrees that it may have a further trial so long as it pays its way.

15. The total population of the European asylum at Bhowanipur during the year was 64, against 61 in 1892. Of this number, 35 were under detention on the 1st January 1893, and 29, of whom two were criminal lunatics, were subsequently admitted. During the year 9 persons were discharged cured, 2 were deported to Europe under the Merchant Shipping Act, 6 were transferred to the care of friends, 1 was despatched to Europe as still insane, 1 was discharged, and 4 died, leaving 41 under confinement at the close of the year. There was no want of accommodation in the male ward, but, notwithstanding the additional accommodation provided in 1891, there was a certain amount of overcrowding among the females, whose number has been steadily increasing for the last five years. The question of still further adding to the accommodation for female lunatics has lately been under the consideration of Government, but owing to the financial exigencies of the province, the Lieutenant-Governor has been compelled to defer sanction to the proposals till a more favourable time arrives. The general health of the inmates of the asylum was good, and there were no injuries, accidents or escapes. The total expenditure for the year was Rs. 21,805, against Rs. 22,831 in 1892.

16. The Report of the Committee appointed in 1892 to undertake the revision of the rules for the control and management of lunatic asylums in Bengal, referred to in paragraph 13 of the Resolution on the Report for 1892, has been received since the close of the year, and is now under consideration.

17. The opinions of the Superintendents of Asylums and of the Inspector-General of Civil Hospitals on the rules drawn up by the Committee appointed in 1891 to consider the question of guarding criminal lunatics in asylums were received and considered during the year. It appeared that these rules were already in force at Dullanda and Patna, that the rules in force at Berhampore were necessitated by the peculiar arrangements of the buildings, that at Dacca the system peculiar to that asylum and which was approved by the Committee was adopted, and that this system was also in force at Cuttack. The Inspector-General of Civil Hospitals recommended that things should be left as they were, and the Lieutenant-Governor agreed to the proposal. To give effect, however, to the proposal of the Committee to provide amusements for the lunatics, the Superintendent of each Asylum was authorized to make such arrangements as he thought fit, and to incur expenditure up to a limit of Rs. 10 per mensem with the object of carrying out the suggestion.

18. The report is submitted by Dr. Harvey, who assumed charge of the office of Inspector-General of Civil Hospitals in November 1893. The thanks of the Lieutenant-Governor are due to him for the report and for the punctuality with which it has been submitted. His Honour also notices with satisfaction the commendatory terms in which the Inspector-General is able to speak of the work of the Superintendents of the Asylums which he visited, and of that of their subordinates.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

J. A. BOURDILLON,

Offg. Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

RESOLUTION ON THE SURVEY AND SETTLEMENT REPORTS.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT—LAND REVENUE.

Darjeeling, the 30th May 1894.

RESOLUTION No. 118T.-R.

READ—

Letter No. $\frac{377A}{4}$, dated the 28th April 1894, from the Board of Revenue, submitting the Reports of the Director of Land Records on Settlements and the Director of Bengal Surveys on Surveys, during the year ending the 30th September 1893.

Submission of reports.

THE date for the submission of these Reports to the Board was changed from the 15th November to the 15th December, but no improvement in punctuality has been thereby gained. The Settlement Report is dated the 7th March, and reached the Board on the 19th idem: the Survey Report bears date the 28th February, but was not in the Board's hands until the 29th March. The result is that they did not reach Government until the beginning of May, instead of by the 15th January, when they were due. The relaxation in the date fixed was a mistake. It is essential, not so much for the convenience of Government as for the Director's own sake, that they should have their reports written and off their minds before the active inspection work of the new season begins, that is, before the end of October. The delay has not lain with them so much as with the Settlement Officers and Survey Officers, and with the difficulty of reconciling discrepancies between the figures emanating from the two Departments: but there is no reason why the individual Settlement Officers should not have their reports ready in time and their figures in harmony with the survey figures, if they post them up from month to month, and do not postpone the compilation of statements and the rectification of discrepancies till the year is ended. Sir Charles Elliott trusts that, as greater experience is obtained and these reports are more systematized, it will be found possible to observe greater punctuality in their submission.

Charge and inspection.

2. The Director of Land Records has been relieved by Government of the charge of supervising the smaller settlements under the Tenancy Act. Under these orders 66 settlements in 12 districts have been transferred to Commissioners of Divisions. The Director states that he still receives the budget estimates for all districts for petty settlements, and is required to report on proposals for all operations under the Tenancy Act. The Lieutenant-Governor thinks that the time has come for the Director to be entirely relieved of this work, except in the cases in which a professional survey party is engaged on such smaller settlements. These duties should be performed by the Board in conjunction with the Collectors and Commissioners, and they will be rendered easier when the manual of standard procedure, which the Lieutenant-Governor desired the Board last year to have drawn up, and which has been prepared, is issued. Colonel C. Strahan, R.E., was in charge of the Bengal Surveys from the 1st to the 20th October 1892, when Colonel Sandeman, the substantive Director, returned from leave and resumed charge, retaining it for the rest of the year. The latter inspected all the large surveys, some of them more than once, and was about nine months on tour, inclusive of short halts in Calcutta when passing from one camp to another. Mr. W. C. Macpherson, C.S., who submits the Settlement Report, was in charge of the Office of Director of Land Records throughout the year without intermission. He was on tour for 164 days, distributed among every month of the year with the exception of May and June. The Lieutenant-Governor is thoroughly satisfied with the activity displayed by both the Directors in touring and inspecting, and, with one or two exceptions, no instance of any deficiency in this respect on the part of the Settlement and Assistant Settlement Officers and Survey Officers has been brought to his notice. The arrangement and general preparation of both the Reports under review are generally approved by Government with certain exceptions which will be mentioned in this review.

General results.

3. The Settlement Report shows operations in progress in every Division except the Presidency, while survey work has been carried on in six of the nine Divisions. The following arrears were under the Director of Land Records' control:—(1) for settlements of revenue in temporarily-settled tracts and Government estates (inclusive of portions of permanently-settled estates under survey), 8,895 square miles; (2) for survey and records of rights in private estates, 1,618 square miles; (3) for survey and record of rights in Wards' estates, 1,977 square miles: total 12,490 square miles. This is about one-twelfth of the whole area of the Province of Bengal.

The following statements show the general outturn and cost of the work under the control of the two Directors during the year 1892-93, as compared with 1891-92, according to the reports received:—

* Inclusive of 364 square miles of revision survey of the irrigation survey of 1878 in Orissa (scale 32" = a mile).

N.B.—The report on settlements includes some small surveys which were not conducted under the Director of Surveys; and the report on surveys includes some surveys with which the Director of Land Records was not concerned.

These figures show that the work done has increased as compared with the previous year, its character varying as the larger operations pass on from Chittagong and Orissa to Bihar. The settlement operations in progress have for their object the preparation of a record of rights, and those in temporarily-settled estates have as a further object the reassessment of the land revenue. The cost of surveys and settlements incurred by Government from the beginning of the operations up to the 30th September 1893, in the three large areas under settlement of land revenue, viz., Orissa, Chittagong and the Western Duars, has increased from about 19 lakhs to nearly 27 lakhs of rupees; but it is too early as yet to frame a general estimate of the increase of revenue which will be obtained in Orissa and Chittagong. The total expenditure on account of survey and settlement proceedings in Wards' estates in 1892-93 is shown as Rs. 85,952 (but this is exclusive of the expenditure in the Sarail pargana, which has not been included, as it should have been, in Appendix I to the Report of the Director of Land Records) against Rs. 71,147 (exclusive of survey expenditure in the Burdwan Raj estates) returned for 1891-92. In private estates in which settlement operations were conducted under the Director of Surveys and Land Records in 1892-93, the expenditure incurred was Rs. 3,98,861 against Rs. 32,914 expended in the preceding year; the higher figures indicating the extent of the work undertaken in the Maharaja of Hill Tippera's estates and in North Bihar.

Statistics and reports.

4. The statistical tables furnished in the Director of Surveys' report are excellent, and the Director of Land Records will be desired to improve his formal statements up to the same standard. There is, however, room for improvement in the arrangement of the information in both reports, and some suggestions will be useful to both Directors in drawing up their reports for the present year. The cardinal point to remember is that survey and settlement work is divided under six main heads: 1) Traverse survey, (2) Cadastral survey, (3) Record-writing or khanapuri, (4) Attestation and draft publication, (5) Case work, 6) final publication. Of these the first two stages are under the Director of Surveys exclusively, the last three under the Director of settlement exclusively, and the third under both combined. Colonel Sandeman's treatment of the first two stages leaves little to desire, but for the third stage he should record the amount of inspection done by Survey and Assistant Survey officers and by Inspectors, showing the number of officers, the number of villages inspected, and the number of fields, the entries of which have been tested by them on the spot. The figures in all tables in both the reports should be separately given for each separate district, not for the whole of North Bihar or Orissa. The report of the Director of Settlements should carry on the story from the khanapuri stage, and it might be somewhat abbreviated by omission or curtailment of the statistics of traverse and cadastral survey already included in the Survey report. With regard to the third or khanapuri stage, he should give similar information as to the number of Settlement and Assistant Settlement Officers engaged in inspection, and the amount done by them. With regard to the next stage, attestation, he should show for each district (a) the number of officers employed, b) the number of plots, (c) of tenants, (d) of villages, e) of square miles attested, and f) the number of draft publications of records. Here would follow remarks on the adequacy of the amount of work accomplished and on those officers who have done best or worst in this respect, with explanations of the causes which may have led to any failure to work up to the programme. Under the next head should be reported for each district the amount of case-work performed, such as (a) boundary disputes, (b) settlements of fair rents under section 104, (c) objections preferred under section 105 of the Tenancy Act, (d) disputes decided under section 106, (e) cases appealed, (f) decisions upheld, (g) decisions reversed. As regards settlement of fair rents, a table should show the number of villages in which the cases have arisen, the number of tenants involved, the existing rents and the rents settled by decisions of courts. In connection with decisions appealed against, information should be given of the class of decisions and the grounds for reversal whenever any point of importance or of general interest is involved. Under the last head would come information as to the number of villages whose records had been finally published, the fairing of records, and the apportionment of costs, if any has been made. The reports submitted by the Settlement Officers also admit of improvement in substance and arrangement in some cases. They are not always as full as they might be. They should recount the principal matters which have occupied attention during the year; show the progress attained under chief heads and compare it with the programme; state the expenditure as compared with the estimate, and work out the rates of costs per square mile and acre. The Director of Land Records should be instructed to prepare abstract forms for exhibiting the principal facts thus summarized, and such others as he may think necessary. Appendices I and II of his report should be continued, but they combine the results for the whole province; and what is referred to here is the information required as to the main results in each district in the body of the Report. The Lieutenant-Governor understands that the Board have already had under consideration the method of preparation of the annual reports of Settlement Officers and the statistical forms to be attached thereto. In the Survey Report the estates should be dealt with in the groups and order followed in the Settlement Report for the year 1892-93.

Survey and Settlement Procedure.

5. In the Government Resolution on the Survey and Settlement Reports of 1891-92, considerable space was devoted to a description of the more uniform procedure for conducting survey and settlement operations throughout Bengal, which had been introduced under Sir Charles Elliott's authority, by the Directors of Bengal

Surveys and Land Records; and a contrast was drawn between, on the one hand, the disadvantages of the Chittagong procedure, under which the two Departments worked separately and without any mutual support, and, on the other hand, the improvements effected in Bihar and Orissa by the new procedure, which, by the amalgamation of the two Departments as parts of one establishment working jointly towards a common end, ensured greater despatch, precision and cheapness. Colonel Sandeman in his present report for the season 1892-93 has dwelt fully on this subject, and is much impressed by the advantages ensured by the "new system" under which—

"the amalgamation of the two Departments of Survey and Settlement, as parts of one establishment working jointly to a common end, was insisted on as the radical principle on which all concerned should act. Thus each cadastral camp became de facto the settlement office, and the survey inspectors and amins or patwaris became the Settlement Officers' establishments for all the purposes for which two separate establishments had previously been employed in the field. The Extra Assistant Superintendents and Sub-Assistant Superintendents of Survey supervised the construction of the maps, and, acting under the orders of the Settlement Officer, the writing of records, which proved a tangible accession of strength to the Settlement Officer, under whose responsibility the record-writing was done. The Deputy Superintendent of Survey acted jointly with the Settlement Officer and supervised all the professional work. Such a system made it possible to have one process in the field and in office instead of several, and one establishment for the execution and supervision of the maps and records in place of two. In the one operation all that is necessary for the completion of the records was done, and the final attestation is the only after-stage. This is now proceeding at the Settlement and Assistant Settlement Officers' camps."

and he further writes:—

"There is a radical difference between this procedure and that formerly* prevailing, when the survey officials were held responsible for the accuracy of the record-writing, which was not completed in every particular, but only certain columns of the khasra were filled in at the khanapuri stage."

*i. e., in 1891-92.

The Board, however, in reviewing the present Reports, profess themselves unable to see any difference in principle between the old and the new procedure, and they have contradicted, while they have made no reference to, what was written on this subject in last year's Resolution.

His Honour understands the Board's contention to be, in the main, that the two Departments of Survey and Settlement were always intended to be amalgamated and to co-operate in the field in professional surveys, as is necessarily the case in non professional proceedings. They are to a certain extent correct in this contention, and while Mr. Collin was in charge of the experimental survey in Muzaffarpur, no serious defects seem to have existed; but later on the practice seems to have diverged from the original lines, and until the year 1891, in tracts where a professional survey was engaged, not only were these intentions often not carried out, but the arrangements made were often such that it was not possible that they should be carried out. Too frequently a Settlement Officer was not appointed until the record-writing had already been taken in hand and considerably advanced by the Survey Department; and then the Settlement Officer, appointed too late, set to work to pull to pieces and find fault with those records. Thus the Settlement Officer of the Dakhin-Shahbazpur estates reports (page lxxxii, Settlement Report) that the survey party finished its work and made over its records to him between November 1891 and May 1892. "But as the tenures and complications of interests were not properly understood by the party, the records were incomplete and defective and had to be done nearly all over again." Again on page lxxi of the Report will be found the following remark by Babu Sukumar Haldar, Settlement Officer of the Burdwan Raj estates: "The inaccurate state of the survey records, due partly to the original record-writing having been done in Urdu by amins ignorant of the local language, partly also to the khanapuri being carried out without the supervision of a Settlement Officer, partly to the fact that the tenants were not supplied with parchas at the time of the survey, has made this work one of great difficulty." The same procedure tainted and delayed the work in the Western Duars, in Sarail, and in other places where professional parties were employed: and it was actively in progress in Orissa when the Lieutenant-Governor first visited Cuttack in March 1891. The two Departments were working as separate units between which there was no harmonious action, but constant friction; they went over the same ground separately. The Survey Department made the cadastral survey, and only recorded the facts of undisputed possession in the khasras. Far from co-operating, the Settlement Officers held themselves in no way responsible for the record-writing of the survey, and it was not till the season of 1891-92 had nearly ended that precise instructions for the record-writing were drawn up by the revenue officials and placed in the hands of the Survey Officers. The system which had the support of the Settlement Manual of the time, and which was followed in former seasons, was to depute a second establishment of munsarims and muharrirs to go over the whole ground again, after the Survey Department had left the field, in order to correct mistakes and effect a preliminary attestation. This establishment often worked under far less effective control than the distrusted survey amins. This dissociation of interests culminated in the system adopted in Chittagong, where the work was broken up into four distinct sections. First, the Survey Department made the cadastral survey showing on the map all the minute sub-divisions of the fields, and gave a tracing of the map to the Settlement Department; secondly, the Settlement Department took the trace and prepared the khasra, leaving the area column blank, and marked the true fields on the trace, striking out the superfluous lines of sub-division; thirdly, the Survey Department inked the maps, extracted the areas, numbered the fields, and returned the maps with area lists to the Settlement Department; fourthly, the Settlement Department entered the areas in the records and proceeded with the record-writing and subsidiary work. In 1892-93, on the other hand (except in Chittagong), the Revenue Officers, of whom a strong staff was appointed for the purpose in Orissa and Bihar, took over the survey establishment, and through this one establishment under their own supervision and responsibility, completed the record-writing in all particulars inclusive of the separation of interests in the land, the recording of rents, and, as far as possible, the settlement of disputes at the khánapuri stage. Precise rules approved by both Departments were drawn up, and there were complete co-operation and mutual support. In addition to more harmonious working, there is no doubt that far greater accuracy has been obtained in the record-writing, as well as greater economy. The attestation officers, who have taken up the records written in 1892-93, are employed on attestation work proper, and not chiefly in completing records only partly written at the khanapuri stage. The working of the procedure of 1892-93 is referred to by the Settlement Officer of Orissa in paragraph 6 of his report of the 10th May 1893, in the following words:—

"The object of the new system was to have the khanapuri so supervised at the time that it is being done by the Assistant Settlement Officers that the records will be sufficiently correct to enable final attestation to be done at once from them without the necessity of sending irresponsible, ignorant and untrustworthy muharrirs into each village before final attestation to correct errors preliminarily and to settle as many disputes as possible. The process consists in the Assistant Settlement Officers, aided by select kanungos and head Inspectors moving rapidly about among the villages as kanapuri is in progress, and immediately correcting such errors as they find the khanapuri amins making, and bringing the mistakes to the notice of the camp officers, so that general corrective orders may be issued. .....It may confidently be anticipated that the system has done much good by correcting broad errors made by amins and Inspectors."

The fundamental difference between the procedure of 1892-93 and that previously in force was therefore that it was sought in that season, by the appointment of a strong staff of Revenue Officers, to inspect the khanapuri as it was being carried on in the villages, and to decide disputes and difficulties as they arose, and by the fusion of the survey and settlement staffs to obtain more correct and complete records at the initial stage of the work.

Training of local surveyors.

6. The anticipation formed last year that the employment of local agency on surveys and settlements would materially reduce the cost has not been realized. The attempt to utilize such agency was chiefly made in Bihar. In Muzaffarpur very little was done in this respect, and the survey was mostly carried out by amins from the North-Western Provinces, who were not, however, here (as in Bengal) under the disadvantage of not knowing the language. In Champaran great hopes were entertained that the work in Bettiah could be done by the patwaris, or at least by their relatives or substitutes, local men who knew the raiyats and the tenures, and whose knowledge of surveying and of the records would, it was hoped, be useful either to the estate or to Government afterwards. It was found, however, impossible to compel them to turn out an adequate amount of work. In April 1893, the difficulties which were experienced in working with the unregistered, unreformed and uncontrolled patwaris in Bettiah were reported by the Director of Surveys, and questions arose as to the legal powers which could be exercised over the patwaris. During the recess the registration of the patwaris was ordered, but afterwards, when it was found that the zamindars did not support the scheme, it was decided to work through professional amins in future instead of the patwaris. Some 200 local men have been instructed as amins, but the service is not popular. Colonel Sandeman reports that the divorce of the patwari from a share in the operations finally dissolves the hope of obtaining a low rate of cost, as compared with that of a survey made by similar agency in other Provinces. The Survey Schools, whether of Patna or of Cuttack, have been found so ineffectual in providing a staff of local men fit for employment of this class, that some doubt has been entertained as to the utility of these schools, and the Director of Public Instruction has been consulted about their retention.

7. In the following paragraphs the progress made in the larger survey settlements will be reviewed in the same order as last year.

Bihar.

By the end of the season, of the whole area of 12,524 square miles of the four districts in North Bihar which have been notified for survey, 7,159 remained for traverse, 11,165 for cadastral survey, and 11,419 for record-writing. The work done during the season is exhibited in the following statement:—

including (a) 803, (b) 414, (c) 319, done in 1885-86.

It appears from the Settlement Officer's report, to which the Board have drawn attention, that under a system which has since been discontinued, the large sum of Rs. 29,947 was advanced in Champaran during the year under report by landlords and paid to patwaris and coolies; this amount (or at any rate so much of it as represents work done) will have to be either allowed as a set-off in the apportionment of expenses, or otherwise recouped to the landlords. The Lieutenant-Governor trusts that accounts have been kept of these advances, and that they can be properly adjusted. Various reasons, including those mentioned in the preceding paragraph, are given to explain the high cost of the work in North Bihar during the first season, and it is expected that the rates of cost will diminish as further experience is gained and larger areas are completed. At present the daily outturn of survey work performed by the amins, and the number of fields entered in the khasra by amins or muharrirs, is far below what is expected of a staff thoroughly trained and acquainted with the language and tenures of the people. The parties which in the present programmes are set down to cover 500 square miles in the season ought to be able to cover 750 square miles, and the Lieutenant-Governor has no doubt that Colonel Sandeman, in the course of time, if sufficiently left to himself and unhampered by changes of system, will be able to get this work out of them, and will thereby bring down the entire cost of all survey operations, not only to Rs. 160 per square mile, but considerably below that rate.

The operations in Bihar.

8. The satisfactory progress attained in the record-writing in Bihar is attributable largely to the careful instructions drawn up by the Settlement Officers and by the Director of Land Records after a careful study of local facts and conditions. The unit of map and record is the village as pointed out by the people, but where the area of the village, as it stands at present according to the boundaries pointed out and accepted by the people themselves, differs substantially from the old revenue survey village, the boundaries of the old revenue survey village have been also marked on the new maps to connect them with the old revenue survey. The general explanatory notice of the objects of the survey and its procedure, drawn up with the approval of Government in February 1893 and widely circulated in English and the vernacular, was calculated to reassure the people. There was much less obstruction to the traverse survey than in the previous year, but it is difficult to make the people understand that the traverse lines cannot be taken exactly along the boundaries, and do not prejudice their rights. The Director of Land Records considers the attitude of the people generally in North Bihar towards the survey and settlement operations to be at least as favourable as could have been expected. Much interest has been shown by the raiyats in obtaining parchas and in ascertaining that their rights have been correctly recorded, though this feature has been less noticeable in Champaran than in Muzaffarpur. He has been much struck by the patient attendance of landlords and tenants during the record writing and the attestation proceedings. The Lieutenant-Governor concurs in Mr. Macpherson's opinions as here quoted. On his inspection visits to the settlement and survey camps, he has seen no trace of the ignorance and indifference to their rights, which the Champaran raiyats are said to have displayed. They seemed to him to be as interested and intelligent as those of the Muzaffarpur district.

Bihar—Settlement.

9. The settlement work done in Bihar during the year under review may be summarized as follows:—

In Muzaffarpur the records were attested by the Settlement Officer, Mr. P. C. Lyon, and three Assistants for an area of 66 square miles, comprised in 320 villages with 35,799 tenants. The number of plots is not stated. Draft records were published for 59 square miles. 311 villages. No records were finally published. Eighty-five applications for settlement of fair rents affecting 1,015 tenants were preferred, and 66 affecting 713 tenants were decided. The former rental of these 713 tenants was Rs. 5,138, and their rents as settled amount to Rs. 5,527, an increase of 7·57 per cent. Almost the whole of this increase was given in cases in which the raiyats acknowledged that they had taken up new lands in excess of those settled with them, and agreed to pay a small increase of rent. Under section 106 of the Tenancy Act, 187 cases were decided: and 868 objections were dealt with. The total expenditure in this district has been Rs. 1,92,519, viz., Rs. 34,301 on settlement and the remainder on the survey.

In Champaran the records were attested by the Settlement Officer, Mr. E. G. Colvin, and one Assistant for an area of 41 square miles, 72 villages, 34,340 khasra numbers. In this area 66 applications for settlement of fair rents affecting 4,362 tenants were presented by landlords: 38 of these applications were disposed of, with the result that the rents of 1,385 tenants were raised from Rs. 5,768 to Rs. 5,946, or 3 per cent. In many cases the tenants filed solehnamas, agreeing to pay rent at existing rates per bigha for the whole area shown to be in their possession by the survey, on condition of allowance to be made to them at the rate of two cottahs in the bigha to cover differences of measurement. The cost of the survey in the district from the commencement has been Rs. 1,21,330, and of settlement Rs. 21,732, total Rs. 1,43,062, to which must be added the sum of Rs 29,947 (or at least a large part of it) advanced by landlords and paid to patwaris and coolies as mentioned in paragraph 7 above. The Board have called for an explanation of the fact that while only 2½ per cent. of the entire body of tenants are non-occupancy raiyats in Muzaffarpur, 43 per cent. of the tenants holding under tenure-holders are non-occupancy raiyats in Champaran, and why it is that the percentage of non-occupancy raiyats under tenure-holders is so much larger than that of those holding under proprietors direct. His Honour would wish to see the explanation furnished by the Settlement Officer in accordance with the Board's orders. The Board also remark that with reference to Rule 23, Chapter VI of the Tenancy Act Rules, and section 35 of that Act, the Settlement Officer should satisfy himself that admissions are in accordance with actual facts. This suggestion seems hardly correct, for section 35 refers to enhancement of rent by suit, not to the question of a raiyat's status; and rule 23 lays down that the raiyat's admission, after the law has been explained to him by the Revenue Officer, shall be accepted.

* For completion of previous year's work.

The survey of Orissa during the last two seasons has been made chiefly by Hindustani amins. The record-writing has been done by Uriyas. Field maps have been made and records written and delivered by the Survey Department as follows:—In Puri, for the whole area under survey, comprising 1,060 villages and 14½ lakhs of plots; in Cuttack, for 2,277 square miles, 4,862 villages and 40½ lakhs of plots; in Balasore, for 1,093 square miles, 2,042 villages and about 26 lakhs of plots. These figures give totals of 4,355 square miles and 8,864 villages, which do not quite coincide with the totals of 4,394 square miles and 8,868 villages mentioned in another passage of the Settlement Report.

The expenditure includes large arrears of the previous season, so that the total cost rate of survey for the Division of Rs. 172-8-0 per square mile compares unfavourably with the rate of 1891-92, which was shown to be Rs. 157 per square mile. The higher rate is attributed to the necessity for completing the traverse records of past seasons before consigning them to the Surveyor-General's office: this work should have been done year by year. The Lieutenant-Governor bears in mind, however, that some of the delay and expense of the Orissa survey is due to the inefficiency of a survey officer during the past season, and to the bad work of another who was employed in the earlier stages of the work. These cases, like that of another officer in Champaran, are a warning as to the serious mischief which may be caused by placing an incompetent survey officer in charge of extensive establishments and large operations. Instead of the Hindustani amins employed, the Director of Surveys would have preferred to employ the local Uriyas, who would, he thinks, have worked as cheaply and as well. The Lieutenant-Governor concurs in this opinion. The records were prepared during the year under review in accordance with the following principles, which briefly summarize the new procedure referred to in paragraph 4 above, viz., (a) joint control of Survey and Settlement Officers; (b) the completion of the records, including rents and status in the first instance, with the exception of the Settlement Officer's personal entries; (c) the responsibility of the Survey Officer for the maps and of the Revenue Officers for the records; (d) the simultaneous preparation of the three records, viz., khasra, khatian and parcha; (e) the revision of the khowat. The want of precise instructions for the record-writing in Orissa until June 1892 was noticed in last year's Resolution, and the orderly system introduced during the year under review was of great advantage to the work. The people displayed no keen interest in the proceedings, and the officers complained of non-attendance. The survey of the towns of Balasore and Cuttack (including the khas mahal lands) and the French possessions in Balasore and the Temple lands in Puri will be of considerable administrative advantage.

Orissa—Settlement.

11. The settlement was under Mr. W. Maude for the greater part of the year. He succeeded to the post on the death of Mr. H. R. Reily by an accident, and found that he had a heavy task to accomplish before he could introduce accuracy and method into the working of the office and staff. Supervision of the record-writing and attestation of the initial records prepared by the survey establishment have formed the principal work of the year for the Revenue Officers. The outturn of attestation is shown as follows:—

* Subsequently reported to be 618 square miles.

No applications for settlement of fair rents were made during the year, and no fair rents were fixed. Mr. R. Nathan, C.S., Assistant Settlement Officer, prepared soil maps and experimental assessment sheets based thereon for a number of villages in the Kotdesh pargana in Puri, and submitted a careful report in which he discussed the proper mode of treatment of different kinds of tenures and rights, and the methods and principles to be followed in the assessment of fair rents. His proposals have recently come under the consideration of Government. On his recent visit to Orissa Sir Charles Elliott made enquiries into the proper principles of reassessment of the land revenue, and has offered some suggestions for the consideration of the Board and the local officers. The cost of the settlement operations, Rs. 1,87,669, distributed over the area attested, about 618 square miles, gives a rate of nearly Rs. 304 per square mile, or about 7½ annas per acre. The Lieutenant-Governor has reason to be well satisfied with the thoroughness of the attestation work done in 1892-93 and since; but from calculations made of the average performances of each Assistant Settlement Officer, he has deduced that the rate of progress was slower than the previous year, and the cost rate, as the Board have pointed out, is excessively high. Progress in attestation has been much hampered in Orissa by the inaccuracy and incompleteness of the records written in 1889-91. The larger outturn of 1891—92 was obtained, it is apprehended, at some sacrifice of thoroughness and accuracy in the attestation work. There is now some danger lest in his praiseworthy desire to obtain accuracy the Settlement Officer should go into the extreme of too much refinement, and of aiming at an unattainable degree of perfection. The Board remark that if the khasras and khatians had been correctly prepared by the Survey Department, much better progress might have been made in attestation at a much lower cost rate. They could hardly have supplied a stronger instance of the evil effects of

11 officers: each attested 212 villages, 166,807 plots, 64,007 acres, or 100 square miles.
1892-93.
16 officers: each attested 92 villages, 64,448 plots, 14,469 tenants 22,776 acres, or 36 square miles.

the old system and the necessity for the adoption of the new procedure (of amalgamated working) discussed above. Had the khasras and khatians been prepared by both the Survey and Settlement Departments together, they would have been more accurate and the cost would have been lower.

Chittagong.

12. The system of procedure in Chittagong has been continued on the lines of the previous year, as it was considered too late to make any changes. The Lieutenant-Governor cannot agree with the tenor of the Board's remarks that it would have been advisable to introduce a new system, in a small portion of the work, at the end of the operations, against the opinions of the local officers. When officers have become habituated to one system, and have established it over some hundreds of square miles, it is not worth while to insist on their adopting unwillingly a new system for the last 150 square miles. It should be remembered how hard it is for officers and their establishment, thoroughly imbued with one system, to change suddenly to another. The outturn and cost rates of the year were as follows: —

Traverse Survey.				Cadastral Survey.
Number of villages.	Square miles.	Cost.	Rate per square mile.	Number of villages.	Square miles.	Cost.	Rate per square mile.
1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8
		Rs	Rs. A. P.			Rs.	Rs. A. P.
17	88	1,491	69 6 5	70	159	32,859	206 9 7

The Lieutenant-Governor agrees that the rates of cost for mapping only, without any record-writing, are high; but he understands that they are attributable in some measure to the complications in procedure as well as to the nature of the country. The cadastral and skeleton boundary survey of this district were complete by the end of the year under review.

Chittagong—Settlement.

13. The khasra writing of 155 villages and 410,454 plots was completed by the Settlement Department during the year, the work for 875 villages having been done in previous years. The khatians of 354 villages which remained to be written were completed, so that the initial record-writing of the district was finished for the 1,030 villages surveyed This work was carried on principally under the eye of the Settlement Officer, Mr. C. G. H. Allen, himself, the attestion work being mainly carried on by his 17 Assistants. During the year records for 532 villages, containing 507,575 khatians and 1,531,437 plots, were attested. At the end of the year records for only 123 villages remained to be attested. The attestation work fell short of the programme by 160,000 fields, but the programme was a high one, requiring every officer to attest 25,000 fields in each month. Still the work done in every branch of settlement duty in Chittagong was larger than in Orissa; seven officers in Chittagong attested records for 15 lakhs, 16 officers in Orissa attested records for 10 lakhs of plots. Each of the seven officers in Chittagong attested records for 76 villages, 72,510 khatians, 218,777 plots. The area is not given, but as the area of 1,048 villages is 1,866 square miles, the area of 532 villages may be taken to be about 1,000 square miles, so that each officer attested records for 135 square miles. To this must be added the case-work and soil maps for 428 villages comprising 411 square miles prepared in the year. Fair rents were settled for 1,041 tenure-holders in Ramu and for 782 tenants in Jaldi and Belgaon. The rents of the former have been increased from Rs. 37,926 to Rs. 46,890, and of the latter from Rs. 15,044 to Rs. 16,813. The case-work of the year comprised 792 boundary disputes, 43,981 objection cases, 1,059 settlements of fair rents, 627 disputes tried as civil suits. The settlement work of the year cost Rs. 1,54,863, making a total expenditure from the beginning of the operations of Rs 5,21,766 on survey and Rs. 3,85,050 on settlement. Assuming that the attestation work extended over 947 square miles, the cost rate was Rs. 163 per square mile, or annas 4 per acre But the data are insufficient for accurate calculations. The total cost-rate for the operations in Chittagong had exceeded 12 annas an acre down to the end of September 1893.

Assessment of Land Revenue.

14. The terms of settlement for 2,521 taluks had expired in or before 1892-93; for 4,359 they fell in during 1893-94; for 6,501 they will fall in during the year 1894-95; and for 18,335 they will expire between 1895 and 1898. These figures show the necessity of pressing on the settlement of fair rents as quickly as possible; for already much revenue has been lost by delay. It is much to be regretted, and it is the chief blot on the progress made during the year, that no advance has been made towards the resettlement of the land revenue, either here or in Orissa. A mistake was made originally in Chittagong by giving the assessment of a small tract (the Ramu thana) to an inexperienced assistant. The Lieutenant-Governor visited Chittagong during the winter of 1892-93 with the Hon'ble Mr Stevens, in order to inspect the settlement work, and specially to look into the assessment proposals for Ramu: it was conceived that most of the difficult questions were disposed of on this occasion, but no orders appear to have issued during the year, and matters appear still to stand where they were The resettlement of the land revenue is a class of work of which, since the Bengal Tenancy Act was passed, Settlement Officers have necessarily had little opportunity of gaining experience, and it is the more obligatory that the Settlement Officer himself should learn the work and feel his way, and not make it over to a subordinate before he has acquired power to guide him. It is unwise also to concentrate attention on one class of work at a time, and to carry it on by stages over the whole area of operations. Both in Chittagong and in Orissa, attestation and settlement of rents and resettlement of revenue should have been going on simultaneously in different parts of the districts, so that experience might be acquired at leisure and the proper system developed (as is always the case) through many experiments more or less abortive till the right path is struck out.

Western Duars.

15. In the Western Duars of Jalpaiguri the survey work was all completed by May 1892, and some mapping only remained to be finished during the year under report. It is unfortunate that the details of the tea land surveys, i.e., of the blocks reserved for future tea cultivation, which have been in progress for some years under the district authorities, could not be utilized for the topographical maps on account of their inaccuracies. In the circumstances, there is no help for it but to leave blank in the large scale maps the topography of the grants, and only to use the materials of the tea survey so far that the tea blocks shall be identifiable and traceable on the professional survey maps. It is desirable that the geographical maps should contain as many of the thana and tahsil boundaries, towns, markets, ferries and other local names as can be inserted. The area under settlement in this tract has been nearly 767 square miles, within which 9,324 revenue-paying jotes have been settled; for 7,891 of these jotes the records had been previously attested, and for the remaining 1,433 they were attested during the year. The Settlement Officer also dealt with 389 jotes on the late Colonel Hidayat Ali's grant, and with 1,000 blocks of khas land. Rate reports were prepared during the year for all the parganas for which rates had not been already sanctioned by Government; the new jamabandi was published for 9,268 jotes out of the 9,324; new leases were issued and kabuliyats taken. The total number of tenants in the area settled is 63,369, of whom 22,802 are adhiars or under-tenants paying rents in kind. It is satisfactory to observe that, in all the 816 cases appealed to the Commissioner, the decision of the Settlement Officer, Mr. D. Sunder, was upheld without exception. The revenue at the last settlement of the four tahsils and one pargana amounted to Rs. 2,33,999; by the new settlement it is Rs. 3,70,316 – an increase of Rs. 1,36,317. This increase is chiefly due to the extension of cultivation in the Duars, by which the number of jotes has risen from 6,953 to 9,324. It is also to some extent due to the enhancement of rates in the more advanced parts of the Duars, and to the assessment of revenue-free lands. The facility with which collections are being made show that the settlement rates, while productive of higher revenue, are not excessive. The cost of settlement has been Rs. 1,36,854, and of survey Rs. 3,75,105 up to 30th September 1893, total Rs. 5,11,959, i.e., about Rs. 667½

the square mile, or between a rupee and 17 annas the acre. Mr. Sunder's work has been highly commended by all the revenue authorities, and the Lieutenant-Governor awaits his final report with interest.

Smaller Government estates

16. Survey and settlement operations were carried on during the year under the supervision of the Directors in the Government estates shown in the following statement, which gives particulars of the amount of survey work done and of the cost incurred:—

	Traverse survey.				Cadastral survey.

Noakhali churs . . .		Ditto in 1891

The cost in the Pataspur estates was high owing to the want of demarcation, the poor work turned out by the Bengali amins, and the expenditure on the minute survey of village sites. The 18 temporarily settled estates of pargana Pataspur now under resettlement were transferred from Balasore to Midnapore in 1825, and have been settled for short terms since the last regular settlement expired in 1884. Khasras were written during the year for 38 villages completely and partly for 17 more. Khatians were prepared fully for 23 villages and partly for 3 others. Then the Survey establishments were withdrawn, and it was arranged that the Settlement Department should during the following season continue doing the work which it had not been possible to finish. The total estimate of cost of survey and settlement was Rs. 22,313, but the share debitable to the Survey Department was exceeded, and an explanation should be submitted.

The eight Jaipur estates in Bogra and Dinajpur cover an area of 44 square miles, and contain 153 villages. The original estimate for the survey was Rs. 6,900, and the total estimate for survey and settlement was Rs. 11,659; but the total survey expenditure alone is expected to reach Rs. 12,122, or 6 annas 10 pies per acre, and no settlement work was done during the year. The reasons why the programme of work could not be accomplished have been stated to be—delays in starting, inclemency of the weather, want of adequate establishments, scarcity of labour and necessity of importation, the objections made to khanapuri. Some allowance may be made for these difficulties, but some of them might have been foreseen, as the Board observe. It has been, for instance, unfortunately a common practice in Bengal to order and enter upon a survey too late in the season to admit of its being finished before the rains, so that expenditure has been incurred unnecessarily; but the Lieutenant-Governor trusts that there will be no repetition of such a mistake. His Honour is very averse from any of these operations being undertaken or expenditure incurred until all preparations are complete. The Board notice the want of Bengali amins for the Jaipur survey; but the Lieutenant-Governor is aware that the Director of Surveys has always expressed his desire to train and employ local agency, whether Biharis, Bengalies or Uriyas, wherever possible. Amins from the North-Western Provinces were imported to Bogra because there was no time to train local men.

The survey and the initial record-writing in respect of the 17 Government estates in Backergunge, comprising an area of 82¾ square miles under settlement during the year, had been completed before October 1892, and the records had been attested. Rents had been settled in the previous year for 2,735 out of the 6,565 tenants, and for 3,830 tenants were settled during the year. The rental of these 6,565 raiyats of all classes has been raised from Rs. 1,30,933 to Rs. 2,02,194, and the former revenue from Rs. 40,808 to Rs. 1,00,887, an increase of Rs. 51,078. The increased demand is chiefly due to increased cultivation, more accurate record of the assets, and the increase of revenue is also in part due to the fact that some of the estates have been taken under khas management. During the year Rs. 1,767 were spent on settlement, and the whole cost of the operations is expected to amount to Rs. 47,931, or a rate of 14½ annas an acre. The Lieutenant-Governor must request that greater attention be paid to the cost of the operations, and that full explanation be submitted when it exceeds 8 annas an acre. He desires to know on what work the Deputy Collector in charge of the settlement is still engaged, and a final report should be submitted to Government.

The two Noakhali chars only comprise an area of 12 square miles, and would, under the recent orders regarding control of smaller settlements, have been left to the Commissioner. The non-professional survey was completed in 1891, and the records were attested and fair rent settled by September 1892. Appeals were then preferred by the tenants to the Special Judge, which had to be decided before final publication of the records could be made; and the final stage of the operations had not been reached in the case of either estate by the end of the year. An increase of revenue has been obtained, but some has already been lost by diluvion, to which such lands are always liable.

The survey-settlement of the Government Palamau Estate of 428 square miles (of which about a quarter is estimated to be cultivated) comprised in 383 villages was undertaken in consequence of the expiry of the thikadari settlement. The increase in cultivation since the last settlement is estimated at 50 per cent., but no estimate of the increase of revenue expected has been furnished to Government. Traverse survey was commenced late in the field season of 1892-93, and 38 square miles were traversed at a cost of Rs. 1,001. It is satisfactory to observe that 65 surveyors had been locally trained and took the field at the close of the year.

Wards' Estates.

17. The extent of the operations undertaken on Wards' estates and the progress made during the year, as well as the cost per square mile, will appear from the following statement. The survey in most cases had been previously completed.

The Burdwan Raj khas mahals situated in Burdwan, Bankura, Hooghly and Midnapore were under settlement. The settlement of Sujamutha pargana in Midnapore, with an area of nearly 43 square miles, was completed, except one village, in January 1893. The settlement cost Rs. 22,505, and the survey Rs. 16,000, total Rs. 38,505, or Rs. 1-6 an acre. The result has been a decrease of rent of Rs. 4,766. The late Commissioner of the Division recorded his opinion that the "settlement was a fiasco; it cost an enormous sum; it resulted in a heavy decrease of rent, and practically it left untouched those fraudulent tenants who by dint of chicanery had annexed abandoned holdings and held them without payment of rent." The Board have controverted these views on the grounds that there was no real decrease in rent, and that the object of the operations was to clear up confusion and not to enhance rents, and imply that the settlement is thought ill of because Mr. Power is supposed to have held that "the primary and main object of every survey and settlement should be to enhance rents." The Lieutenant-Governor does not conceive that the Commissioner was actuated by such an impression. It should not be forgotten that Sir Charles Elliott himself inspected the work in Sujamutha, and recorded his condemnation in strong terms of the manner in which it had been effected. Mr. Power was probably quoting from the Lieutenant-Governor's inspection note of 1st March 1891, in which the following words occurred: "If settlements are conducted by officers so untrained and inexperienced, and so unhelped by their superiors, we must expect fiascos to occur." Sir Charles Elliott is satisfied that Mr. Power's censure is well deserved.

The completion report of the Hukumapur estate was submitted during the year, and reviewed by Government in a Resolution dated the 27th March 1894. Very slow progress was made in the settlement of rents in the Burdwan and Hooghly districts, and no progress was made in the Bankura district during the year. The causes of the slow rate of progress attained have been stated to be (1) the confused state of the rent-rolls hitherto maintained in the Raj offices; (2) the numerous claims made by occupants to hold land rent-free which have been resisted, but often unsuccessfully, by the manager; (3) the numerous applications filed by the manager for settlement of fair rents; (4) the incorrectness of the records originally written by the Survey Department; (5) the defects in the system of attestation at first adopted, which was altered during the year under report.

The area of the Talipabad estates under settlement according to the most recent information is 71 square miles, with 117 villages. The operations were undertaken, on the application of the Magistrate of Dacca, to avert disputes between the landlords and tenants. No applications for fair rents have been filed. There is said to be much uncertainty as to existing rents, and those named by the landlords and tenants are apparently often the result of compromises effected for purposes of record in the settlement papers.

In Dakhin Shabazpur, the professional survey was finished in March 1892. The preparation of the record of rights has been difficult owing to the extreme intricacy of the tenures, the same tenant frequently holding several different interests in respect of the same land. Measures were adopted to reduce the number of khatians by amalgamating those relating to land held by a tenant under one interest though under separate landlords, but the result has not saved so much labour as was expected. Attestation and the subsequent settlement operations have been continued during the year. In explanation of the slow progress in the settlement of fair rents, it is stated that time was granted to the Manager to endeavour to come to an amicable arrangement with the raiyats of 11 villages. In the case of 66,736 tenancies the previous rental of Rs. 1,95,227 has been increased by Rs. 9,848. Since the beginning the total cost of survey has been Rs. 41,639, an average cost of 7 annas per acre, and of settlement Rs. 33,834, i.e., an average of annas 5-9 pies per acre.

In the Cossimbazar Ward's estate in Sarail pargana in the Tippera district the survey was completed in 1890-91, and the settlement records were finally published by September 1892. The completion report is believed to have been submitted by the Settlement Officer during the year under report, but has not yet been forwarded to Government. The rental of the estate has been increased from Rs. 2,11,362 to Rs. 2,67,066, i.e., by Rs. 55,704 or 26·3 per cent., of which Rs. 52,069 are said to be due to extended cultivation. Difficulties, however, have been anticipated in the enforcement of the new jamabandi, errors have been discovered in the records, and the Settlement Officer has been sent back, under the Board's orders, to revise his work. The proceedings cost Rs. 1,05,588 for survey, Rs. 47,547 for settlement, i.e., a rate per acre of 9½ annas in the former case and annas 4-2 pies in the latter.

In the case of the Tikari estate in Gaya, the orders of Government sanctioning the survey were issued on the 1st March, and the traverse survey began in April. By July 1893, when the survey detachment left the field, the traverse of 271 square miles had been completed.

In Kujang in Cuttack the settlement was completed before April 1892. The Board having sanctioned a reduction of the rents settled, the records were revised by the sub-manager, and by the end of the year the revision had been completed, except for one village. The original rent-roll was Rs. 1,01,094: the settlement gave a rent-roll of Rs. 1,09,851: the revised rent-roll amounts to

Rs. 1,03,500, so there still remains an increase of Rs. 2,405 from raiyati lands. The rents settled in the case of invalid lakhiraj tenures and excess lands after revision amount to Rs. 6,473 more. The total cost of the settlement from the beginning has been Rs. 0,207 or at the rate of annas 3-3 per acre, and of survey Rs. 50,648 or at annas 5-6 per acre.

In Kanika, also in Cuttack, the professional survey had been completed before the year under report, with the exception of six new villages, and only those six villages and some extensions of cultivation were surveyed during the year; attestation was finished during the year. The rental of this estate has been increased from Rs. 99,943 to Rs. 1,24,478 in the villages where the work was completed. The increase of rental has chiefly been obtained from increased cultivation, but in some villages rates have been raised. The cost of survey has amounted to Rs. 66,624, or 6 annas an acre; the settlement is expected to cost Rs. 23,027, or 2 annas an acre: so that a considerable increase of rental has been obtained at the cost of 8 annas an acre. The two last-named settlements have not been judicial settlements made under Chapter X of the Tenancy Act, but have been effected by amicable arrangement between the managers and the tenants.

Private estates.

18. Besides the operations in Bihar, some important private estates were under survey and settlement during the year. The area of the estates of the Maharaja of Hill Tippera in Chakla Roshnabad is now stated to be 553·7 square miles. The following work, at the cost stated, was done during the season :—

	Number of villages.	Square miles.	Cost.	Cost rate per square mile.	Cost rate per acre.
1	2	3	4	5	6
			Rs.	Rs. A. P.	A. P.
Traverse survey ...	1,077	404	29,963	62 1 2	1 6
Cadastral „ ...	742	289	64,960	259 14 5	6 6

The number of square miles represents the area in each case of the actual traverse and cadastral survey, but the cost rates are the aggregate of the rates obtained by dividing the cost of each head of the work (including demarcation, record-writing, &c.) by the area of that particular head. The cost was increased by the high rate of wages of local labour, the difficulty in procuring it, and the high freight for station marks. The traverse survey of the estate has been finished, and more than half the cadastral survey. The initial records were written for 205 square miles.

The difficulties experienced in the record-writing have been great. The tenures are complicated, and the Maharaja's staff have very little information as to the areas occupied by the various talukdars and tenure-holders who pay rent to His Highness. The weather also was inclement in April and May 1893. The Survey Officers stayed in the field until the 11th July 1892, which was very creditable to their sense of duty. The Lieutenant-Governor does not wish officers and their establishments to be exposed to climatic discomfort so late in the year. In this case the survey detachment had been delayed in coming from Chittagong, and wished to complete their programme before going into recess. No attestation work was done, as the Settlement Officer's whole time was employed in supervising the difficult record-writing and settling disputes. The work was undoubtedly very difficult for the officer first appointed to it, Babu Kali Sankar Sen. He has since been succeeded by a Statutory Civilian, Mr Barada Charan Mitra, who had had two years' experience in the Orissa settlement. But the difficulties have still not been overcome. It is understood that only a very small amount of attestation work has been done even up to the present time: the delay will have to be fully explained. The total cost incurred on the operations up to the end of the year was Rs. 1,11,162.

The survey of the Mollarpur estate in the Birbhum district, consisting of 38 villages with an area of 55 square miles, was ordered in November 1889, to put a stop to the disputes between Mahant Gopal Das and his raiyats. The survey was carried out in 1890 and 1891, and the records were attested before September 1892. Case work was the principal occupation during the year of the Settlement Officer, Munshi Nandji (who was also employed as an Assistant Settlement Officer during the field season in the Muzaffarpur district). Fair rents were settled for 3,103 raiyats, their former rental being raised from Rs. 39,447 to Rs. 43,478, or by 10·21 per cent.; the increase being obtained, not by enhancement of rates, but by the assessment of excess lands found in possession of the tenants. The proceedings were characterized by protracted litigation between the Mahant and his tenants. The whole cost has been Rs. 30,493, or at the rate of Rs 1-5 an acre. The final report of this settlement should be submitted to Government without further delay.

The Ulania taluks in Backergunge, in 31 villages and comprising 17 square miles, were brought under survey and settlement on the application of the patnidars and darpatnidars. It appears that much of the traverse and cadastral survey was carried out between April and September 1892, and the Lieutenant-Governor is constrained to remark that, unless there is some special reason for making a commencement this is not the proper season of the year for doing such work. The survey and initial record-writing were finished during 1892-93, and considerable progress was made with the attestation. Applications for settlement of fair rents were disposed of in 108 cases, and the existing rents raised from Rs 2,281 to Rs. ,051, or by about 33 per cent. The total cost of the operations is likely to be very high in consequence of the strained relations between the landholders and the tenants.

In the Sonthal Parganas, the survey and settlement of 548 villages, in 23 parganas and taluks, covering 391 square miles, were undertaken on the application of the zamindars. The operations were entirely conducted by Mr. J. A. Craven with the help of two Assistant Settlement Officers The whole area was surveyed in the field season of 1892-93, and attestation was completed in October 1893 for all the villages. The rental of Rs. 78,009 was raised to Rs 1,11,367: a large enhancement. In all the 5,964 cases of various descriptions there were no appeals: and all were disposed of within the year The operations were conducted with remarkable despatch, and cost Rs. 73,951, i.e., Rs. 189 the square mile, or less than 5 annas an acre.

Maintenance of settlement records

19. The Director of Land Records has summarised the information available as to the extent to which settlement records recently framed have been maintained and corrected, as to how far the settlement khatians have been adopted as the working rent-rolls for collecting rents, and as to the value attached to the settlement records by the Courts. It is evident that, where estates were settled while under the Court of Wards, little or nothing has been done since their release to record mutations of tenures and holdings. On a recent enquiry it appeared that no real attempt had been made to maintain the settlement records and correct the maps in the Srinagar-Banaili estates, although definite rules had been issued for the purpose. Further suggestions have been made to the Managers of the estates, though in such cases it is not open to Government to interfere effectively. But it is satisfactory to hear that in some cases, such as, for instance, in the area of the Muzaffarpur experimental survey of 1885-86, the Sankarpur, Churaman and Maldwar estates, the Dubalhati Raj estate, the Srinagar-Banaili estate, and the Hukumapur property of the Burdwan Raj, the settlement khatians have been adopted by the landlords for the most part as the working jamabandi for the collection of rents. In the area surveyed in Muzaffarpur in 1885-86, nothing has been done to keep the settlement records up to date; but the Officiating Lieutenant-Governor, Sir A. P. MacDonnell, drew special attention in one of his Minutes to the fact reported to him that the Civil Courts have invariably decreed rents in the surveyed area in accordance with the record of rights prepared by Mr. Collin, except in a very few instances in which the raiyats, when sued for higher rents, admitted the claims of the plaintiff The Board write that such measures as are practicable are being taken to keep the records corrected in estates under the direct management of Government, and the Lieutenant-Governor is aware of the correspondence which has passed with regard to Angul and Banki, which were recently surveyed and settled, though not under the Tenancy Act. But he is not at all satisfied, since the unsatisfactory operation of the rules issued in November 1892 for the maintenance of the records in Khurda lately came to his notice, that really effective measures have been adopted in Government estates which have come under survey and settlement, and he must ask the Board again to take up the case of each of the important estates separately, and ascertain whether further orders are required, and what is necessary to ensure compliance with rules. From the value attached to the settlement papers of 50 and 60 years ago in Chittagong and Orissa, His Honour is fully convinced of the advantages of settlement proceedings, even though no provision is made for the maintenance of the records; but the importance of the annual record of mutations was prominently brought out in the Calcutta Conference of last cold weather on the maintenance of records, and there can be no question that the settlement proceedings are the more useful the better they are maintained up to date. It is unnecessary at present to make any observations on the question of the compulsory maintenance of records in private estates brought under survey and settlement, as a Bill for the purpose is known to be under the consideration of the Government of India and the Secretary of State.

Services of officers.

20. The Lieutenant-Governor has again to record his very high appreciation of the services rendered to Government by Colonel Sandeman and Mr. W. C. Macpherson, C.S., as Directors of Bengal Surveys and Land Records throughout the year 1892-93. They have fully deserved the encomium on their great industry, enthusiasm and harmonious co-operation expressed by the Board. His Honour is aware of the arduous nature of their duties, of the range and importance of their charges, and of the energy with which they have guided the extensive operations under their supervision. He notes with pleasure the names of the officers mentioned by the two Directors, and selects the following Settlement and Survey Officers as specially deserving of thanks for their good work during the year:—

Sir Charles Elliot also desires to express his obligations to Mr. T. M. Gibbon, C.I.E., Sir W. B. Hudson, K.C.I.E., Mr. E. Macnaghten, Mr. C. W. McMinn, and the numerous civil officers, managers, planters and zamindars, who have in various capacities and degrees rendered assistance to the officers and establishments in charge of the survey and settlement operations in progress throughout Bengal.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

C. E. BUCKLAND,

Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

LIBERALITY OF THE LATE BABU BHUDEB MOOKERJEA, C.I.E., LATE INSPECTOR OF SCHOOLS IN BENGAL, IN CREATING A MUNIFICENT TRUST FOR THE PROMOTION OF SANSKRIT LEARNING AND OTHER CHARITABLE OBJECTS IN THE PROVINCE OF BENGAL

No. 407 G., dated Calcutta, the 31st May 1894.

From—C. E. BUCKLAND, Esq., Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal, General Dept.,
To—The Director of Public Instruction, Bengal.

I AM directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 2176, dated the 2nd April 1894, reporting the creation by the late Babu Bhudeb Mookerjea, C.I.E., for many years Inspector of Schools, Bengal, of a trust consisting of (1) debentures to the value of Rs. 1,50,000, yielding interest to the amount of Rs. 8,000 a year, (2) the Budhoday Printing Press, and (3) the Education Gazette, for the promotion of Sanskrit and for other charitable objects in the province of Bengal.

2. The Lieutenant-Governor has much pleasure in acknowledging the munificence of the Trust emanating from an old and distinguished servant of Government, and he regrets that the donor's death occurred before his liberality and public spirit received this recognition from Government.

3. The correspondence will now be published in the Calcutta Gazette, and a copy should be forwarded to the sons of the donor for their information.

No. 2176, dated Calcutta, the 2nd April 1894.

From—SIR ALFRED CROFT, K.C.I.E., Director of Public Instruction, Bengal,
To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal, General Department.

I HAVE the honour to report, for the information of Government, the creation by Babu Bhudeb Mookerjea, C.I.E., late Inspector of Schools in Bengal, of a munificent trust for the promotion of Sanskrit learning and other charitable objects in the province of Bengal.

2. From the trust-deed executed by Babu Bhudeb Mookerjea, a copy of which, together with its translation I enclose, it will be seen that the donor has transferred to the hands of trustees (1) debentures to the value of Rs. 1,50,000, now yielding interest to the amount of Rs. 8,000 a year, (2) the Budhoday Printing Press, and (3) the Education Gazette, from the income of the debentures or of any other investment into which they may afterwards be converted, one fifth is to be reserved annually for investment and addition to the fund. The remaining four-fifths, or Rs. 6,400 a year, are to be devoted to the following objects:—

(1) The maintenance of the Biswanath Chatuspathi, a Sanskrit tol established at Chinsura by the donor in memory of his father, with a teacher on Rs. 20 a month at least, and not less than five students at Rs. 30 a year each—in all a minimum annual sum of Rs. 390.

(2) The maintenance of the Brahmamoy Bhesajaly, a charitable dispensary established by the donor in memory of his mother, with a Homœopathic Doctor on a salary of not less than Rs 10 and an Ayurvedic Doctor on a salary of not less than Rs. 10, together with an allowance of Rs. 250 a year for medicines—in all an annual expenditure of Rs. 490.

(3) With the income of the printing press and, if necessary, a further sum of Rs. 300 a year from the fund, Sanskrit works are to be published and distributed.

(4) The Education Gazette is to be maintained on its present lines so long as it receives a grant from Government or sufficient support from the public; and it may be assisted, if necessary, by a further grant up to Rs. 800 from the fund.

(5) Provision is made for establishment charges and for the salary of a Superintendent; the cost under each of these heads not to exceed 5 per cent. of the income of the fund, or up to a maximum of Rs. 640 a year.

3. These quasi-fixed charges amount to a maximum of Rs. 2,620 a year. The remainder, or not less than Rs. 3,780 a year, is to be devoted to the payment of stipends to selected teachers of sruti, smriti or darsan at the rate of not less than Rs. 50 a year each, and to selected students of the same subjects at the rate of not less than Rs. 30 a year each. The teachers and students are to be selected as a rule from all parts of Bengal, Bihar, and Orissa, but students from other parts of India may be admitted to the benefits of the trust if found deserving; and special preference is to be given to those who intend to study the Vedanta at Benares, Nasik or other places famous for that branch of Sanskrit learning. It will be seen from paragraph 21 of the trust-deed that, in the event of failure of the trustees, the donor expresses a hope that the Local Government may take possession of the Trust Fund and carry out the conditions of the trust.

4. I have thought it right to bring this munificent trust for the promotion of Sanskrit learning to the notice of the Government in the hope that some public recognition may be accorded to its founder. After an honourable and distinguished career in the service of Government, Babu Bhudeb Mookerjea, who now, I regret to say, lies in a very precarious state of health, has devoted his private fortune to an object of public interest and utility, in the furtherance of which the Government also has closely interested itself. It will be a pride and satisfacton to the donor to know that his liberality and self-denial have met with the approval of the Government whom for the best years of his life he so faithfully served.

Explanation.—... indicates that no rain has fallen. If the return for any day has not been received, the corresponding space is left blank. If any of the returns are wanting, the corresponding spaces in the total rainfall columns are left blank. With reference to the column of rainy days, the definition of a rainy day is when at least 0·10 inch of rain has fallen.

CALCUTTA, the 5th June 1894.

SUMMARY OF THE METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN BENGAL, AND OF THE METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN ASSAM, FOR THE WEEK ENDING 8 A.M., SATURDAY, THE 2ND OF JUNE 1894.

DURING practically the whole of the previous week a barometric depression had been lying over Bengal and parts of Assam, the greatest defects being reported along the foot of the hills. On the 27th of May, or the first day of the week under review, pressure was falling slowly, but the decrease was largest at the south-western and western stations. The depression over Bengal was still very pronounced on the 27th, and in the centre of the province and over a considerable part of Bihar a defect of more than 0·25″ was registered. From the 28th, however, the depression began to fill up, and a rapid increase of pressure was reported, the rise exceeding a tenth of an inch at some of the north-eastern stations, and the seat of largest defect was thus transferred in a south-westerly direction. On the 29th the rapid increase of pressure continued, and over a large part of Bihar and parts of Central Bengal the increase was again larger than a tenth of an inch. A further but not quite so rapid increase occurred on May 30th, but on this day at the eastern stations in Assam pressure was beginning to fall. These changes had the effect of driving the low-pressure area again in a south-westerly or southerly direction, and while on the 30th the pressure over the greater part of Bengal had become fairly normal, a distinct low-pressure area had drifted over parts of South-West Bengal and over Orissa. On the 31st the rise of pressure continued over the western and south-western parts of the province, though the falling pressure had extended from Assam over the eastern parts of Bengal, and on the 31st the low-pressure area had drifted down the west coast of the Bay, and probably extended towards the centre of the Bay itself. The changes on June 1st and 2nd rather tended to establish the previous pressure conditions, for pressure began to fall in all districts, the fall being largest in the north of the province. Hence at the close of the week pressure had again become in defect by amounts ranging up to about 0·08 inch at the western stations.

During the earlier part of the week, while the depression occupied the north and centre of the province, the conditions which had obtained in the previous week continued to hold good. That is, to the east and south-east of the depression weather was unsettled and numerous rain storms were occurring, so that the eastern districts of Bengal and Assam were receiving considerable amounts of rain, and temperature was hence decidedly low. On the other hand, over the area occupied by the depression and to the west and south of it, weather was fine and practically rainless, and unusually high temperature was experienced. As an instance it may be mentioned that the temperature reported on the morning of May 28th showed that while at the extreme eastern stations the mean temperature of the previous 24 hours had been in defect by amounts ranging up to 6·9° at Sibsagar, over Bengal generally temperature was in large excess, by amounts ranging up to the exceedingly large amount of 16·2° at Bankura. On this morning no less than 15 stations reported maximum temperatures of 110° and upwards, while at Bankura a temperature of no less than 117·1° was reported, which is no less than 23·3° above the normal maximum temperature of that day. As the depression began to drift south-westwards and southwards the conditions changed with it, a wave of comparatively cool weather with rain storms began to flow over the province from east to west, reaching as far as South-West Bengal on the 30th and 31st May, while the rainfall reached parts of Bihar about June 1st. As stated above, however, conditions again began to revert to the former state of things at the close of the week, and hence rainfall ceased at this time in the western and south-western districts, and temperature again began to increase.

Pressure.—The mean pressure for the week has been in defect of the normal, the usual defect equalling nearly a tenth of an inch, and indeed at some stations slightly exceeding this amount, particularly in South-West Bengal and Orissa, where the largest defects have been registered.

Temperature—Has been excessive in the western districts, the excess in Chota Nagpur equalling 7·1° and in South-West Bengal 4·1°, while it has been more nearly normal in North Bengal. In East Bengal a decided defect has been registered, while in Assam the defect has equalled no less than 3·7°. For the whole of Bengal the variation for the week has equalled an excess of nearly 3°.

Rainfall.—East Bengal has received an average fall of nearly three inches, South-West Bengal and North Bengal of nearly an inch, and Orissa a fall of half an inch. Bihar and Chota Nagpur have received the smallest falls, and have averaged rather less than a third of an inch. The fall in East Bengal has been distinctly above the normal amount, but in all other divisions the falls have been rather largely in defect of the normal.

The following table gives the summary of the temperature and rainfall data of each of the six meteorological divisions of the province for the week ending Saturday, the 2nd of June 1894:—

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard, Newman's No. 86, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The directions and the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

o, overcast; g, gloomy; t, thunder; p, passing temporary showers; d, drizzling rain.

THE Portmaster, Brisbane, has given notice (No. 10 of 1894) that owing to recent small changes in the channel near Stewart island, the following directions must be observed, viz:—

Vessels from the southward after passing the white triangular leading marks on Stewart island are to bring them in line astern, and keep them so until near to a white beacon on Stewart island, then haul to the eastward, opening the leading marks mentioned about three times their own width, and proceed with them in that position until past the red beacon, when proceed as usual.

A black beacon has been placed on the end of the spit, off the south end of Stewart island, previously marked by a black buoy.

RESOLUTION ON THE ADMINISTRATION REPORT OF THE JAIL DEPARTMENT FOR THE YEAR 1893.

JAILS—No. 493P.D.

Dated Darjeeling, the 7th June 1894.

RESOLUTION.

READ—

The Report on the Administration of the Jail Department for the year 1893.

Read also—

The Reports for the years 1891-92, and the orders of Government recorded thereon.

Surgeon-Major D. W. D. Comins was in charge of the Department until the 6th September, on which date he proceeded on three months' privilege leave. During his absence Mr. A. D. Larymore, Superintendent of the Alipore Jail and Deputy Inspector-General of Jails, officiated for him until the 6th December, when Dr. Comins resumed charge.

2. Judicial Statistics.—The only changes made in the classes of jails during the year were the conversion of the subsidiary jail at Barasat into an intermediate jail, and the raising of the intermediate jail at Bankura to the status of a first class district jail. With these exceptions the number of central, district, intermediate and subsidiary jails remained unchanged. The following table shows the number of prisoners of all classes confined in the jails and subsidiary jails of the province during the year, and compares the figures with those of the preceding ten years:—

	1883.	1884.	1885.	1886.	1887.	1888	1889.	1890.	1891.	1892.	1893.

* One civil prisoner, who remained in confinement on the 31st December 1892 at the Khurda subsidiary jail, was by an oversight shown as discharged in the statistics for the year 1892.

The daily average population of all classes of prisoners rose from 17,180 in 1892 to 17,724, but the total number of admissions during the year fell from 95,523 to 91,842, and the balance remaining in jail at the close of the year from 17,794 to 17,530. Twenty out of the 45 central, district, and intermediate jails show an increase in the number of direct admissions, the largest increase (225) being in the Faridpur Jail, which last year showed the greatest decrease in crime in the whole province. Twenty-five jails show a decrease in the number of direct admissions, the decrease being greatest in the jails at Mymensingh (394), Darbhanga (315), Champaran (241), and Calcutta (226).

3. Releases.—The total number of releases under the various heads during each of the last eight years is shown in the following table:—

* Excluding 33 moribund prisoners who were released under rule 488 of the Jail Code and included among the number of deaths in Jail.

The 44 prisoners released on medical grounds include those released under Rule 488A of the Jail Code, but not the 33 moribunds who were released under Rule 488 of the Code, and who, under the orders of the Government of India, have been shown this year for the first time among the prisoners who died in jail. The Lieutenant-Governor is glad to observe that the improvement noticed last year in the number of releases on appeal has been maintained (thus showing greater care in the decisions of the Lower Courts), and that the number of such releases is smaller than it has been in any year since 1887.

4. Numbers transported and executed.—The number of prisoners transported from the Bengal jails to the Andamans rose from 104 to 120, of whom 13 were females. The number of executions decreased from 32 to 30, and of these 6 and 5 were in the Backergunge and Chittagong Jails respectively.

5. Classification of convicts.—Out of 37,265 convicts admitted direct into jail during the year, 21,705 or 58·25 per cent. were Hindus, 13,899 or 37·30 per cent. were Muhammadans, and 421 or 1·13 per cent. were Christians. Of the total number 32,426 or 87·02 per cent. were wholly uneducated, and of the remainder only 1,763 or 4·73 per cent. were able to read and write well. The number of juveniles under 16 years of age admitted to jail rose from 453 to 458. The Inspector-General reports that several juveniles who should have been sent to the Reformatory had to be detained in jail, as the schools at Hazaribagh and Alipore were full throughout the year. Twenty-five additional cubicles are under construction in the Hazaribagh Reformatory School, but there is abundance of room in the school, and more accommodation for boys should be provided without delay. The number of prisoners previously engaged in agricultural pursuits fell from 22,951 in 1892 to 21,431, and the percentage of such prisoners to other classes from 61·94 to 59·93. The number of female convicts admitted direct to jail was 1,510 compared with 1,484 and 1,265 in 1892 and 1891 respectively.

6. Re-convictions.—Although the number of admissions to jail was smaller during the year under review than in the preceding year, the number of re-convictions rose from 3,888 to 3,969, and the ratio per cent. from 10·08 to 10·65. The Inspector-General considers that there is still much room for increased accuracy in registering re-convictions, but the improvement already effected is satisfactory, and with the extension of the anthropometrical system for the identification of habitual offenders, a further improvement may be expected. The system has made rapid strides during the year, and the Inspector-General reports that all possible efforts have been made by the Jail Department to assist the police in working it effectively. Copies of measurements are now recorded on the backs of police-registered slips which accompany warrants, and the system of weekly inspections by the police, of prisoners admitted during the previous week and of those to be released in the following week, was introduced at the close of the year in place of the ordinary walk round at the Sunday parade. The number of persons sent to jail in default of giving security for good behaviour has been steadily increasing for some years, and in 1893 it was 1,761 as compared with 1,448 and 1,507 in 1891 and 1892 respectively.

7. Sentences.—The number of sentences of simple imprisonment shows an increase from 2,472 in 1891 and 2,769 in 1892 to 2,965 during the year under review. Most of these are excise cases, and the Lieutenant-Governor has hardly ever found, in his inspections of jails, any instances in which simple imprisonment has been imposed where it would have been more judicious to inflict rigorous imprisonment. The number of prisoners sentenced to rigorous imprisonment has fallen from 35,441 to 33,483. Of the 16,394 convicted prisoners remaining in jail on the last day of 1893, 7,609 or 46 41 per cent. had sentences not exceeding one year, against 8,226 or 49·41 per cent. on the last day of 1892. The number of prisoners with sentences exceeding one year was 4,222 as compared with 4,327 in the preceding year.

8. Under-trial prisoners.—The Lieutenant-Governor is glad to observe that the improvement in the detention of under-trial prisoners noticed in the Resolution on last year's report has been maintained during the year under review. The average detention in sessions cases was 39·99 days, and in all other cases 10·98, or practically the same as in the preceding year; whereas the figures for 1890 were 45·88 and 12·28 respectively. The districts which show the best results as regards the detention of under-trial prisoners in other than sessions cases are Gaya (4·91 days), Balasore (6·60), Cuttack (6·97), Darjeeling (7·13), Muzaffarpur (7·34), and Dinajpur (7·92). The districts with the worst results are Jessore (21·54 days), Purulia (19·97), Bogra (16·22), Faridpur (15·48), and Dacca (15·19). The number of deaths among under-trial prisoners in 1893 was 32, and the ratio per mille of such deaths to the total daily average population was 25·7. In this respect the year compares very favourably with 1892, the corresponding figures for which were 69 and 53·5. The three deaths among under-trial prisoners at Arrah, and the two at Khulna, are responsible for the high ratios shown against jails at these places: in the former instance especially the number is regrettably large and bears out what has so often been said as to the unhealthy condition of a large proportion of prisoners when they enter the jail.

9. Civil prisoners.—There were 72 prisoners in confinement on the last day of 1892, and the number of admissions during 1893 fell from 873 to 751. Of these 8 were transferred, 1 convicted and 757 released, and 57 remained in confinement at the end of the year.

10. State prisoners.—The Lushai State prisoner Nikoalo, who murdered one of his fellow-prisoners in jail in July 1892, but who was subsequently acquitted by the Sessions Court on the ground of insanity, continued to be detained in the Alipore Central Jail, and it is reported that he now gives but little trouble, although he is listless and dull and weaker in body. Two other Lushai Chiefs were detained in the Hazaribagh Jail throughout the year. The health of these prisoners is good, and they appear to be comfortable and well looked after.

11. Jail buildings.—Excluding a sum of Rs. 5,878 expended on the Presidency Jail Press and of Rs. 2,426 for the Reformatory School at Alipore, the total expenditure for 1893 was Rs. 84,310 compared with Rs 1,56,543 in 1892. Among the principal works of the year were the construction of cowsheds and godowns, and the extension of the workshops in the Alipore Jail, at a cost of Rs. 18,686, the extension and repairs of the Hazaribagh Jail at a cost of Rs. 12,836, the supply of drinking water to the Arrah Jail (Rs 9,809), and the construction of a new jail at Palamau at a cost of Rs 6,674. Provision was also made for enlargements and alterations in the Khulna Jail, and for the construction of a subsidiary jail at Narainganj, but it was subsequently decided to drop these proposals and to utilize the money in providing further accommodation in the Buxar and Bhagalpur Jails. Plans and estimates for a new double-storied barrack on an improved form in the Bhagalpur Jail were drawn up and received the sanction of Government on the 26th January 1894, too late to admit of the commencement of the work during the past financial year. The daily average number of convicts employed on jail buildings fell from 997 in 1892 to 951.

12. Guards.—Owing to the conversion of the subsidiary jail at Barasat into an intermediate jail, and the raising of the status of the Bankura intermediate jail to that of a first class district jail, the total strength of the permanent warder guard was raised to 1,643 men of all grades, being an increase of one head warder and 22 warders as compared with last year. It is satisfactory to find that the Inspector-General is again able to report favourably on the way in which the warder guards as a body have done their work, notwithstanding the high prices of food, the smallness of their pay, and the ever-increasing amount of work required of them. In spite of the increase in the number of warders, the number of punishments inflicted on them (in which are included warnings and censure) shows a satisfactory falling off from 1,935 in 1892 to 1,879 during the year under review. The only instance of dissatisfaction or inclination to insubordination noted occurred among the warders of the Chapra Jail, and this is attributed to the excited state of feeling in the district in consequence of the anti-kine-killing agitation. Two head-warders of the Barasat Jail were sentenced to seven years' rigorous imprisonment each for taking out prisoners at night for the purpose of stealing. Dr. Comins again bears tribute to the smartness and efficiency of the warder guards at many jails, but he has omitted to mention whether anything has been done to give effect to the suggestion contained in last year's Resolution, that the warders should combine with the regular police in firing and ordinary drill exercise.

13. Escapes.—There were 26 escapes of convicts as compared with 34 in 1892, and of this number 1 was from a central jail, 8 from district jails, 8 from intermediate jails, and 9 from subsidiary jails. Twelve prisoners escaped from inside and 14 from outside the jail, the corresponding figures for the previous year being 21 and 13 respectively. Of the 26 convicts who escaped, 20 were recaptured during the year in addition to 5 who had escaped in 1892.

14. Prison discipline.—Under the orders of the Government of India, warnings are now registered as punishments, and are included in statement VI annexed to the report. The number of warnings in 1893 was 11,871, and excluding these the number of punishments was 33,205 as against 34,750 in 1892. The number of cases of punishment by solitary confinement remained practically the same, but the Lieutenant-Governor notices with satisfaction that, in spite of the increased jail population, the number of prisoners whipped fell from 335 to 320, and the percentage of whippings to the daily average number of prisoners from 2·2 to 1·9. The number of prisoners punished with fetters also shows a falling off from 11,522 in 1892 to 10,418.

15. Convict officers and mark remissions.—The number of prisoners employed as convict officers during the year rose from 2,198 to 2,409, and the number of convict warders from 409 to 425. Notwithstanding this increase, the number of convict officers punished fell from 1,783 to 1,637, and the percentage punished to the average number employed from 204 to 174. The number of prisoners released during the year, who were on the mark system, was 1,771, and of these only seven failed to gain remission under it.

16. The gross expenditure of the Department for the last ten years is shown in the following table:—

The increase in the head "General Supervision" is due to the appointment of Mr. Larymore to act as Inspector-General of Jails during the absence of Dr. Comins on privilege leave, and to the payment to both these officers of exchange compensation allowance Including all heads of expenditure, except that of Public Works, the average cost per prisoner was Rs. 72-5 as compared with Rs. 74-10-6 in 1892.

17. Average rates.—The average prices paid for the chief articles of diet during the year 1893 as compared with those of the five previous years are shown in the following table:—

The average price of rice during the year was higher than in any of the preceding five years, but with this exception the price of food-grains shows a decrease as compared with 1892. The Inspector-General's report on the results of the system of the timely storage of grain at the cheap season of the year is not altogether satisfactory. In some instances excellent arrangements are said to have been made, especially by Mr. Leonard and Jailor Babu Bishto Chunder Chatterjee at the Bhagalpur Jail, Dr. Kelly at Naya Dumka and Dr. R. M. Blaker at Dinajpur. At the Purnea Jail also, by the timely storage of grain, the cost of diet per prisoner has been reduced from Rs. 34-7-2 to Rs. 23-11-7. The Lieutenant-Governor regrets, however, to hear that in some jails the reverse has been the case, and that the storage system has not always been carried out to the best advantage The rise in the cost of diet in the Backergunge Jail from Rs. 21-2-10 to Rs. 29-8 per prisoner is ascribed in a great measure to bad management on the part of the jailor, Babu Gopal Chunder

Mukerjee, and to his failure to store grain at the proper time. Sir Charles Elliott desires once more to draw attention to the remarks contained in last year's Resolution on this subject. The storage system, if worked judiciously and with the exercise of ordinary care, should prove a useful means of reducing jail expenditure, and His Honour trusts that next year he will be able to receive a more satisfactory report on the results attained.

The high rate of expenditure in the Barasat Jail is due to the fact that the jail was only opened late in the year, when the storage season had passed, and that vegetables and condiments had to be purchased from outside. The increase in the cost of food in Mymensingh and other jails of Eastern Bengal is due to the failure of the crops and to the high prices of food prevailing. The average expenditure per prisoner on food purchased for diet throughout the province was Rs. 24-12-8 against Rs 25-10-6 in 1892.

19. Supply of vegetables.—Owing to excessive rain which spoilt many of the early garden crops, vegetables to the value of Rs. 2,447, and condiments to the value of Rs. 2,122, had to be purchased for 18 and 23 jails respectively. The total value of the products obtained from the jail gardens, fish-ponds, and dairies during the year was Rs. 1,12,571, against Rs. 91,441 in 1892. No credit is taken for this in estimating the expenditure in the different jails, but it is really an addition to the cost of rations, which in Statement X appended to the Report is shown as Rs. 4,17,519 for the whole year, so that the actual cost of feeding each prisoner, given in the preceding paragraph, should be raised by about 25 per cent., making the average cost a little over Rs. 30 per head. The value of the products of the jail dairies increased from Rs. 26,312 to Rs. 35,876, and of grain grown in jail lands from Rs. 5,786 to Rs. 6,574. Experiments have been made during the year in selected jails on the outturn of different crops grown in the jail gardens, and the results of the experiments will be reported to the Director of the Department of Land Records and Agriculture according to rules and in a form prescribed by him for the purpose.

20. Establishment, &c.—Expenditure under this head rose from Rs 3,88,293 to Rs. 3,94,399, and this is chiefly due to an increase of Rs. 5,039 under the head warder staff, and of Rs. 1,650 under the head "Jailors, Deputy and Assistant Jailors," consequent in both cases on the raising of the status of the Barasat subsidiary jail, and the conversion of the Bankura intermediate jail into a first class district jail, and in the former case also to the entertainment of five additional warders in the Hazaribagh Jail, owing to the great increase of population. Hospital charges rose from Rs. 47,368 to Rs. 52,157 in consequence of an increase in the cost of medical stores, and the average cost per head of daily average sick increased from Rs. 71-9-11 to Rs. 84-5-2, which was chiefly due to the issue of a more liberal scale of diet to the sick, convalescents, and weakly prisoners. The falling off in clothing charges from Rs 73,427 to Rs. 63,493 is partly accounted for by the transfer to Imperial charges of the cost of clothing for transportation prisoners.

21. Controllable expenditure.—The total average cost per prisoner on account of diet, hospital charges, and clothing together, for all jails (except Midnapore, which has been omitted from the list given in paragraph 60 of the report,) was Rs. 31-13-11 as compared with Rs. 33-1 in 1892. In 32 jails the cost per prisoner was below this average, and in 15 it was above it. It is interesting to compare these figures with the mortality rates. The average death-rate for convicts in all the jails of the province was 32·9, and of the 32 cheaply managed jails, in 15 the mortality was above the average, and in 17 it was below it. Of the 15 expensively managed jails, in 9 the death-rate was above, and in 6 it was below the average. These figures demonstrate that the assertion that has been made, that a high rate of mortality accompanies cheapness of food in Bengal jails, is without foundation. Gaya heads the list of cheaply managed jails—a result due partly to the good management of Jailor Babu Dolgobind Chowdhary, and partly to the lower price of food-grains, the storage of grain in the cheap season, and the increased value of the products of the jail dairy and garden. Malda, the second jail in order for cheapness, and Pabna, the tenth in order, had no deaths at all during the year.

22. Employment of prisoners and manufactures.—The total daily average number of prisoners sentenced to labour on working days was 10,219, being an increase of 606 as compared with last year. The daily average of sick, convalescent and infirm fell from 1,926 in 1892 to 1,873. The number of prisoners employed on unremunerative labour increased from 985 to 1,080, and the average number employed on works of public utility under the Public Works Department, District Boards and Municipalities from 212 to 220. There was a further satisfactory increase in the net cash earnings from Rs. 3,14,021 in 1891 and Rs. 3,23,211 in 1892 to Rs. 3,81,086 during the year under review.

23. Average earnings in Central Jails.—The following table compares the average earnings per prisoner sentenced to labour in central jails for the last two years:—

	1893. Rs.	A.	1892. Rs.	A.

In the Alipore Jail the profits on manufactures for the year amounted to Rs. 58,051 as compared with Rs. 55,580 in 1892. In the Presidency Jail the profits increased from Rs. 1,50,011 to Rs. 1,56,921, and towards this the printing industry chiefly contributed. In the Buxar Central Jail there was a marked increase in the earnings from Rs. 38,953 to Rs. 58,278, owing partly to the greater activity in the tent department, the number of tents made having risen from 657 to 897. In the Bhagalpur Jail the year's results were less favourable, the profits having fallen from Rs. 30,794 to Rs. 26,611. This is accounted for partly by a falling off in the demand for blankets and woollen clothing by the Police, Jail and Commissariat Departments, and partly in consequence of the closing of the factory for about a month for repairs at the commencement of the year. It is, however, satisfactory to hear that the quality of the articles supplied by the factory has improved. In the Midnapore Jail, although the average earning per prisoner sentenced to labour was the same as in 1892, the profits on manufacturing operations fell from Rs. 22,411 to Rs. 20,816, and this is accounted for by the decrease in the jail population and the unusual sickness which prevailed among the prisoners during the year. The improvement in the Rajshahi Jail in the results of the year's operations is satisfactory, and the loss of Rs. 3,562 on manufactures in 1892 has been converted into a profit of Rs. 7,026, of which the castor-oil industry is credited with Rs. 3,478. In the Dacca Jail mustard-oil pressing and the weaving of prison clothing are the chief industries, but in consequence of a smaller outturn under the latter head, the profits of the year show a falling off from Rs. 10,418 to Rs. 7,154. In District Jails there has been a further improvement in profits on manufacturing operations, the amount of such profits having increased from Rs. 61,174 in 1891 and Rs. 68,263 in 1892 to Rs. 72,690 during the year under review.

24. Quinine and its distribution.—This industry was transferred from the Hazaribagh Reformatory School to the Alipore Central Jail in December 1892, and by the end of January 1893, all the post-offices in the Bengal, Bihar and Eastern Bengal Circles were supplied with a stock of quinine as a permanent advance. The quantity of quinine distributed was 1,677¼lbs., and the cash receipts were Rs. 18,078. The value of the filled five-grain packets in stock at post offices, &c., at the close of 1893 was Rs. 11,401-0-9, and taking this into consideration, the profits on the year's operations amount to Rs. 3,753-4 4. The Inspector-General remarks that this is an improvement on the original estimates, which allowed little or no margin of profit, and he ascribes the improvement mainly to the use of a lighter and cheaper paper instead of the heavy and expensive paper first selected. It must, however, be remembered that this profit is an estimated one only, based on the assumption that Rs. 11,401, the value of the packets in stock, will be realised, and it makes no allowance on account of possible losses from damp or other causes. It is not the object of Government to make a profit out of this industry, and if it continues to be worked at a profit a more durable paper will be supplied. It is impossible to reduce the price below one pice per packet, or to increase the dose above five grains, but it might be possible to allow some larger commission or reduction in price to purchasers of large quantities. The total number of five-grain packets sold by post-offices in all districts up to the end of 1893 was 1,266,220, and the Lieutenant-Governor considers that the results of the year's operations are very satisfactory, and that the increased facilities for obtaining a supply of quinine at nominal prices will be hailed as a boon by the inhabitants of the rural districts of the Province.

25. Subsidiary Jails.—In consequence of the raising of the status of the Barasat subsidiary jail, the number of such jails was reduced from 86 to 85, and of these 16 were visited by the Sub-divisional Officers, who are ex-officio Superintendents, less than 70 times, the minimum number required being at the rate of twice a week as long as they are at head-quarters. In 1892, in nine subsidiary jails, only the number of visits paid by the Superintendents fell below the required standard. The Lieutenant-Governor regrets to notice this falling off, and he desires to draw the attention of District Magistrates to the matter, and to the necessity of seeing that this important duty of inspection is not neglected. The number of convicts admitted into the subsidiary jails during the year fell from 17,385 to 16,843, but the daily average number confined rose from 362·52 to 377·39. The average detention of convicts was 7·74 days against 7·26 in 1892. In the Angul and Khondmals subsidiary jails, the average detention was 41 31 and 37·88 days respectively, and in the Alipore (Jalpaiguri) Jail it was 16·30 days, the rules regarding the transfer of prisoners having been relaxed in these jails, in accordance with the orders of Government, to enable the Superintendents to employ the prisoners in extra-mural labour. The Lieutenant-Governor is of opinion that a similar relaxation of the rules might with advantage be made in other subsidiary jails also, and that it would be useful as a means of relieving over-pressure in many district jails. The average detention of under-trial prisoners for 1893 was 11·46 days against 11·30 days in 1892 and 13·55 days in 1891. In seven jails the average detention was over 15 days. Under the orders contained in the circular of 5th August 1891, Magistrates should receive a fortnightly return of under-trial prisoners detained in subsidiary jails for over 14 days, and they should not fail to make immediate enquiry whether the detention was unavoidable or not.

The total expenditure on subsidiary jails rose from Rs. 1,08,994 in 1892 to Rs. 1,10,027. The increase of Rs 525 under the head "Rations" is attributable to the high prices of food grains, and that of Rs. 2,404 under the head "Contingencies" to the additional expenditure on account of transfer charges, and of travelling allowance of warders, as well as to the issue of hurricane lanterns to replace those unserviceable through long use. The total credits from manufactures amounted to Rs. 25,743 as compared with Rs. 24,129 in 1892, and the net profits for the year rose from Rs. 3,734 to Rs. 4,183. The total amount expended on subsidiary jail buildings was only Rs. 10,118 against Rs. 54,692 in 1892.

26. Accommodation in Jails.—The daily average strength of the convict population of the central, district and intermediate jails of the Province was 16,050, of whom 15,656 were males, the corresponding figures for 1892 being 15,471 and 15,111 respectively. It will thus be seen that the daily average strength of convicts, both male and female, has increased, and the Inspector-General reports that the increase has strained the resources of jail accommodation to the utmost. The unhealthy jails at Rangpur, Dinajpur and Purnea remained depleted throughout the year, and prisoners were also transferred from other unhealthy to healthier jails for the benefit of their health. Partly for this reason, and partly owing to the narrow margin between the average jail population of Bengal and the maximum capacity of the jails, it was not always possible to keep the population of the jails within their sanctioned capacity. The central jails have been full throughtout the year, and in spite of transfers of prisoners, wherever possible, to jails, however distant, in which there was any available room, and after deducting the daily average number of sick prisoners (641·97) for whom accommodation is provided in hospitals, it was found that in 14 jails the daily average number of convicts exceeded the ordinary sanctioned sleeping accommodation. In order to relieve the overcrowding of the sleeping wards in these jails, the excess prisoners were allowed to sleep in the workshops and out houses, or, where the accommodation permitted, in the hospital wards. The daily average strength of under-trial prisoners in all jails, excluding subsidiary jails, was 789 as compared with 813 in 1892; but in spite of this decrease, in 10 jails the capacity of the under-trial wards was exceeded. The convict population on the first day of 1894 was 15,978 as compared with 16,151 on the first day of 1893, and the Lieutenant-Governor hopes that we have now entered on a descending scale. The necessity of providing additional accommodation in the jails of Bengal is fully recognized by Government, and much has already been done, and is still being done, to meet this difficulty and to correct errors of site and plan on which many of the Bengal jails were originally constructed. The capacity of the Hazaribagh Jail for convicts has recently been increased from 547 to 917, and a proposal to provide further accommodation in the Bhagalpur Central Jail by the construction of new sleeping wards has received the sanction of Government.

27. Water-supply.—Dr. Comins' remarks on this important part of jail administration are meagre, and the Lieutenant-Governor would have liked fuller information as to what has been done during the year. Under the orders of Government a qualitative analysis of the water supplied in every jail should be made every year on certain specified months of each year, and if the supply is changed or the health of the prisoners deteriorates, or if the supply is not under the control of the authorities, a quantitative analysis should also be made. The Inspector-General was requested to carefully note and compare the results of these analyses in his Annual Administration Reports on the working of the department, but in his present report he has made no remarks on this point. At his recent inspection of the Cuttack Jail, the Lieutenant-Governor found that the order requiring the water to be analysed every year had not been observed, and he fears that this may have been the case in other jails also. Sir Charles Elliott is, however, glad to receive the assurance of the Inspector-General that careful attention has been paid to the question of the purity of the water-supply during the year. Among other useful reforms, pumps and pipes have been supplied, improved methods to prevent pollution or contamination before use have been adopted, and 24 jails have been provided with the excellent new boiler for drinking-water invented by Mr. A. D. Larymore of the Alipore Jail, which secures the water being really boiled, not merely heated.

28. Clothing, &c.—The supply of clothing has been much the same as in former years, but medical officers have been allowed to use their own discretion for the supply of extra clothing in cases which they consider require it. This discretion should be freely exercised, especially in the case of old and sickly prisoners and in unhealthy jails. The Inspector-General reports that, as recommended by the Jail Committee of 1889, the system of issuing jail clothing as required, instead of on a particular date, is being introduced.

The system of granting gratuities to Civil Hospital Assistants for specially deserving work has been continued, and is said to have had a sensible effect in encouraging efforts to keep prisoners in good health. The Lieutenant-Governor observes, however, that in paragraph 55 of the Report it is stated that the decrease in the cost of establishment under the head "Civil Hospital Assistants and Compounders" is due to the difference in the amount of rewards granted in 1892 and 1893. Sir Charles Elliott considers that more might have been said on this subject, and he desires that in future reports the number of Civil Hospital Assistants rewarded, and the amount of the rewards disbursed, may be specified. It has been ascertained that in 1893 Rs. 4,006 were thus disbursed.

29. Mortality among prisoners.—The following table, reprinted from paragraph 93 of the Report, shows the mortality among prisoners for each year, as well as for each decade, from 1844 to 1893:—

Years.	Daily average number of prisoners.	Daily average sick.	Ratio per mille of daily sick.	Number of deaths— From cholera.	From all other causes.	Total number of deaths.	Death-rates per mille of average strength— From cholera.	From all other causes.	From all causes.	Remarks.

From the above figures it will be seen that the death-rate has fallen from 67·3 and 98·8 per mille, the average of the first and second decades respectively, to 40·7 per mille, the average for the decade ending with the year 1893. Taking the average for the last five years, the decrease is still more marked, the death-rate being 37 per mille, while in 1893 it fell as low as 32·3 per mille.

The figures for 1893 include the 33 moribunds released under rule 488 of the Jail Code, and if out of these we exclude 10 who were alive at the beginning of 1894, the average death-rate for the year will be 31·7, which can claim to be the lowest on record. No doubt, as the Inspector-General remarks, it is sometimes fallacious to include among deaths persons released on medical grounds, and he quotes an instance of a prisoner who was released from the Hooghly Jail in 1892 in order that he might die quietly and peacefully among his friends at home, but who reappeared in jail in 1893 with a sentence of seven years' imprisonment for house-breaking—a result by no means creditable to the Medical Officer's diagnosis of the case. The average death-rate for the year per mille from cholera was only 1·1, also the lowest on record, and this the Inspector-General attributes to the improvement effected of recent years in the water-supply for the jails.

The daily average of sick among convicted and under-trial prisoners decreased from 687 to 642, and the proportional number of admissions to hospital from 1,120·9 to 1,046·1. The jails which showed the largest proportion in the number of admissions to hospital were Barasat (4,569·6) and Malda (4,354·3), but these are small intermediate jails, and the average population confined in them was only 58·21 and 53 05 respectively. The high proportion of sick prisoners confined in the Barasat Jail is due to the fact that the population was largely recruited from the unhealthy districts of Khulna and Jessore. No death among convicts occurred in the Malda Jail during the year, nor in the Pabna and Presidency (European) Jails.

30. Principal diseases causing sickness and death.—The following table shows the principal diseases from which prisoners suffered during the year:—

Diseases.	Number of admissions into hospital.	Number of deaths.	Ratio per mille of deaths to admissions.
Intermittent fever	5,634	6	1 0
Dysentery and diarrhœa	4,471	208	46·5
Remittent and continued fevers	861	19	22·0
Other fevers	21	11	523·8
Respiratory diseases	852	89	104·4
Anæmia and general debility	363	22	60·6
Ulcers and boils	314	...	...
Scrofula and phthisis pulmonalis	127	58	456·6
Cholera	54	20	370·3
Small-pox	5	...	...

The number of deaths from dysentery and diarrhœa has risen from 177 in 1892 to 208 in 1893, and the ratio per mille from 11·1 to 12·6, and it will be seen that these diseases are responsible for the greater number of deaths in the Bengal jails. The jails which show the highest death-rate per mille to average strength from these causes are Bankura (52·9), Burdwan (36·4), Noakhali (36·3), Singhbhum (36·1), Mymensingh (29·5), and Midnapore (26·0). In the Midnapore Jail, the death-rate has always been excessive, and out of 501 deaths which have occurred during the past 12 years, no less than 254 are due to dysentery. Since the close of the year, the Inspector-General has paid a special visit of inspection to Midnapore, and has submitted a careful report on the causes of the high mortality and the measures which in his opinion should be adopted to improve the sanitary condition of the jail. In the Dacca Jail, the death-rate for which for the first time fell below the recorded death-rate of the district, 15 out of the 31 deaths that occurred during the year were due to dysentery. The Lieutenant-Governor notices with approval the many useful measures taken by Dr. Cobb, the late Superintendent of this jail, to prevent the spread of this disease, and he presumes that although no special mention is made of the necessity of good food and clothing, great attention would be paid to these when once the disease has been diagnosed. The remark of Dr. Gordon Price of Burdwan, that admissions for dysentery are chiefly among prisoners who have previously suffered from malarial fevers, dysentery, and diarrhœa in their own homes, and in whom any slight seasonal changes is often sufficient to cause a relapse, is worthy of notice. Dr. Buchanan of the Midnapore Central Jail, in an interesting note which has been forwarded to Government, has shown the connection between tubercle of the lungs and dysentery, and he has drawn attention to the frequency of the termination in tubercular phthisis of cases of chronic dysentery, and to the remarkable fact that no special symptoms occur to draw attention to it. This view is confirmed by the observations of Dr. Nott when he was in charge of the Birbhum Jail; and the close connection between these diseases and malarial cachexia helps to explain to some extent the fact that so few deaths from dysentery or phthisis and so many from malarial fever are returned as such in the district registration returns. The number of deaths from respiratory diseases decreased from 100 to 89, and from cholera from 115 cases with 60 deaths in 1892 to 54 cases with 20 deaths in 1893. There were only five cases of small-pox during the year, none of which were fatal, against 45 cases with 14 deaths in 1892. Under revised rule 447 of the Jail Code, all convicted prisoners, whether protected or not, are now required to be vaccinated on the first convenient opportunity after their arrival in jail, and re-vaccination has been ordered whenever it appears to be necessary. The Lieutenant-Governor desires that the effect which has been given to these orders should be specially mentioned in future reports.

NOTE.—Including moribund prisoners who were released under rule 448 of the Jail Code during the year 1893.

Under the orders of Government, dated the 16th October 1893, a Committee consisting of the Inspector-General of Jails, the Commissioner of the Division and the Sanitary Commissioner, Bengal, was appointed to enquire into the sanitary condition of the jails at Puri, Jessore, and Mymensingh, as well as of those at Purnea, Dinajpur, Jalpaiguri, Malda, Rangpur, Shahabad, and Saran, in which the death-rate for 1892 was excessive. The Committee concluded their enquiries after the close of the year, but the result has not as yet been formally communicated to Government. Nevertheless the Lieutenant-Governor considers that the Inspector-General should have briefly stated in the present report what the Committee discovered at these jails, and especially at Puri, in which the death-rate for the year is so much higher than in 1892. The high death-rate in the Bankura, Darbhanga, Gaya and Hazaribagh Jails is due chiefly to the transfer from the damp, unhealthy districts of Eastern Bengal of prisoners suffering from malarious diseases.

Of the 527 convicts who died in jail during the year, 155 were received into jail in good health, 192 were found to be in indifferent health, and 180 in bad health. The Inspector-General reports that some jails were particularly unfortunate in this respect. Thus, of the 61 convicts who died in the Midnapore Jail, only 5 were admitted in good health. In the Bankura Jail, out of 24 deaths, only 2 were those of prisoners who were received in good health. Of the 19 convicts who died in the Rajshahi Jail, only 3 were received in good health. In Puri, which heads the list of jails with a high rate of mortality, only one was admitted in good health. In this connection there is another point which, in the Lieutenant-Governor's opinion, is worthy of notice, and that is, how many of the deaths occurred immediately after the prisoners' admission into the jail. At his inspection of the jail at Balasore, which has a high death-rate, His Honour noticed that of the four deaths that occurred during the year, one was from cholera caught on the road, one was from ague which proved fatal within 24 hours of the prisoner's admission, while one was the result of an accident. It would obviously be unfair to charge any of these deaths to the unhealthiness of the jail.

Of the central jails, the healthiest is the Presidency (Native) Jail, the mortality in which has been reduced to the record figure of 11·8 per mille, a result which is in no small measure due to the unremitting efforts of Dr. H. W. Pilgrim to secure the health of the prisoners under his charge.

32. Inspections.—Dr. Comins was absent from head-quarters on tour for 108 days during the portion of the year in which he was in charge of the Department, and four central jails, 19 district jails and nine subsidiary jails, as well as the Reformatory Schools at Alipore and Hazaribagh, were inspected by him. Mr. A. D Larymore, while officiating as Inspector-General of Jails, inspected four central jails, five district jails and one subsidiary jail. The number of visits paid by non-official visitors was 107 as against 104 in 1892, but the number paid by judicial and magisterial officers fell from 269 and 1,967 to 239 and 1,904 respectively. The question of the more extensive appointment of non-official visitors to jails has been under the consideration of Government for some time, and a proposal to increase the number of such visitors has been accepted by His Honour, and the local officers have been asked to submit nominations. The Lieutenant-Governor regrets to observe the omission on the part of the Commissioners of Divisions to visit the jails at Bogra, Gaya, and Shahabad, and of District Judges to visit the jails at Shahabad, Cuttack, Balasore, and Puri. Sir Charles Elliott himself inspected the jail at Chittagong and the subsidiary jails at Cox's Bazar, Barasat, Diamond Harbour, Naogaon, Hajipur, Bettiah and Alipur (Jalpaiguri).

33. Officers of the Department.—The Lieutenant Governor is glad to receive the assurance of the Inspector-General that Medical Officers have spared no efforts to minimise the sickness and mortality in their jails, not only by a careful consideration of general arrangements, but also by the care and attention bestowed by them on individual prisoners. Among those who have been specially commended are Dr. U. C. Mukerji at Bankura, Dr. A. H. Nott at Hazaribagh, Dr. H. W. Pilgrim at the Presidency Jail, and Dr. Sunder at Purnea. The Inspector-General also acknowledges the assistance given to him by Mr. J. W. Hanlon, and the good work done by him not only in maintaining the quality of manufactures, but in bringing work from other departments. Sir Charles Elliott also desires to take this opportunity to convey to Mr. A. D. Larymore the thanks of Government for the valuable services rendered by him, and for his ingenious inventions which will no doubt prove of the greatest value to the department. Among these are a boiler which really boils and whistles to announce the fact, a lifter to raise water and to let it flow over the jail, and a cooking range for use in small jails.

34. The thanks of the Lieutenant-Governor are due to Dr. Comins for his interesting report and for his careful administration of the Department under his control.

Ordered also that a copy of this Resolution, and a copy of the Report, be submitted to the Government of India, in the Home Department.

The results of observations at the Alipore Observatory are not rigorously comparable with the registers of past years (at the Park Street Observatory). The barometer is about 8 feet higher at Alipore, and, other things being equal, reads therefore ·003 lower. The diurnal range of temperature is also greater at Alipore, and the mean temperature apparently about 0·5 higher; and, finally, the thermometer which furnished the record of temperature at the Surveyor-General's Office during 20 years and upwards is found to read 0·6 higher than the Kew standard thermometer, which is the standard of reference at the present Observatory.

SUMMARY OF THE METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN BENGAL, AND OF THE METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN ASSAM, FOR THE MONTH OF MAY 1894.

At the end of April a small storm which may have formed in front of a preliminary advance of monsoon winds had advanced up the Gulf of Martaban and had passed into Burma close to Rangoon. It was, however, practically too far away from Bengal to affect the weather, except perhaps to a slight extent at the eastern stations, which at the close of that month and during the first two or three days of May were receiving rain showers. Practically, however, from the beginning of May ordinary hot-season conditions obtained over Bengal. Both temperature and pressure were in slight to moderate excess for the first week, while weather was fairly settled, and only a few unimportant local storms or nor'westers with rain were reported. On the 7th and 8th of May, however, a brisk to rapid fall of pressure occurred, and a distinct low-pressure area formed over the province, the defect ranging up to 0·188″ at Sibsagar on the 8th. Hence unusually strong southerly winds set in at the head of the Bay, bringing up large amounts of moisture to the province, and local storms began to be much more numerous at the eastern and northern stations, and they afterwards extended to the south-west and west of the province. From the 8th to the 10th, however, pressure increased, and the small depression practically filled up. On the 13th and 14th again a brisk fall of pressure occurred, and the low-pressure area reappeared, pressure on the 14th being in defect by 0·16″ over a considerable part of Central and Northern Bengal.

On the 15th and 16th the changes of pressure were irregular, and the depression filled up to a small extent, but on the 17th a fall of pressure extended over the whole of Bengal and Assam, and again a very distinct barometric depression existed over these areas, the defects being largest along the foot of the hills and in Central and South Bengal. From the 17th to the 19th the pressure changes were again somewhat irregular, but their tendency was to make the barometric depression rather more pronounced in the northern districts. On the 20th a further rapid fall of pressure occurred, and the depression became still more prominent, the defect ranging up to 0·19″ at Sibsagar. On the 21st and 22nd, owing to an increase of pressure, the depression had become of little importance, but from the 24th to the 26th pressure fell briskly, and the depression reappeared in a rather more intense form, the defect ranging up to more than a quarter of an inch on the 26th at such stations as Purnea, Darbhanga and Bankipore. On the 27th of May pressure was falling slowly, but the decrease was largest at the south-western and western stations. The depression over Bengal was still very pronounced on the 27th, and in the centre of the province and over a considerable part of Bihar a defect of more than 0·25″ was registered. From the 28th, however, the depression began to fill up, and a rapid increase of pressure was reported, the rise exceeding a tenth of an inch at some of the north-eastern stations, and the seat of largest defect was thus transferred in a south-westerly direction. On the 29th the rapid increase of pressure continued, and over a large part of Bihar and parts of Central Bengal the increase was again larger than a tenth of an inch. A further but not quite so rapid increase occurred on May 30th, but on this day, at the eastern stations in Assam, pressure was beginning to fall. These changes had the effect of driving the low-pressure area again in a south-westerly or southerly direction, and while on the 30th the pressure over the greater part of Bengal had become fairly normal, a distinct low-pressure area had drifted over parts of South-West Bengal and over Orissa. On the 31st the rise of pressure continued over the western and south-western parts of the province, though the falling pressure had extended from Assam over the eastern parts of Bengal, and on the 31st the low-pressure area had drifted down the west coast of the Bay, and probably extended towards the centre of the Bay itself.

It will hence be seen that throughout the greater part of May a very decided barometric depression has existed over Bengal and parts of Assam, the depression generally being most clearly marked and deepest at the northern stations and along the foot of the hills. This distribution of pressure has practically controlled the weather during the whole month. With the depression overlying the northern districts, winds at the south-western and western stations have been generally south-westerly, while at the southern and eastern stations winds have ranged from southerly to easterly; also the winds blowing in the west of the province have been comparatively dry, while the winds at the south-eastern and eastern stations have been loaded with moisture. With this pressure distribution also there was an unusually strong indraught towards the depression, and hence during the greater part of the month, and especially during the period when the depression equalled about a quarter of an inch, strong southerly winds were blowing over the province. With the increasing depth of the depression the force of the winds also increased, so that winds became stronger up till about the 26th, when at the head of the Bay almost a moderate gale of wind was blowing for several days, and wind velocity at Saugor Island from 8 A.M. of the 25th to the 26th registered the high amount of 37 miles an hour. Again, also, in the matter of rainfall and local storms conditions were determined by the existence of the barometric depression. To the east and south-east of the depression weather was unsettled, and numerous rain-storms occurred during a large part of the month, so that the eastern and northern districts of Bengal and the whole of Assam received considerable amounts of rain, and temperature was hence decidedly low. On the other hand, over the area occupied by the depression and to the west and south of it, weather was generally fine and practically rainless for the greater part of the month, and unusually high temperature was experienced specially towards its close. As an instance it may be mentioned that the temperature reported on the morning of May 28th showed that while at the extreme eastern stations the mean temperature of the previous 24 hours had been in defect by amounts ranging up to 6·9° at Sibsagar: over Bengal generally temperature was in large excess by amounts ranging up to the exceedingly large amount of 16·2° at Bankura. On this morning no less than 15 stations reported maximum temperatures of 110° and upwards, while at Bankura a temperature of 117·1° was reported, which is no less than 23·8° above the normal maximum temperature of that day. Hence rainfall was fairly general and rather heavy during a considerable part of the month in Assam, North Bengal and East Bengal, while on the other hand rainfall was light, and only occurred in certain definite periods over the remainder of the province. The first period was from the 8th to the 12th after the depression had in the first instance become well defined, when local storms or nor'westers became fairly general over the province, while the second period of rainfall was apparently connected with the movement of the depression from the north of Bengal and Assam. As the depression began to drift south-westwards and southwards towards the end of the month, as explained previously, the conditions changed with it, a wave of comparatively cool weather with rain-storms began to flow over the province from east to west, reaching as far as South-West Bengal on the 30th and 31st May, while the rainfall reached parts of Bihar about June 1st. Hence the amounts of rain in May have been moderate only in South-West Bengal, and small in Bihar, Orissa and Chota Nagpur.

During May it is usual for two or three strong advances of south-west monsoon winds to take place in the south of the Bay, the indications of which are to be found in the increased wind velocities at the Ceylon stations. In front of such advances also cyclonic storms are frequently if not usually found. In the present year these advances have been conspicuous by their absence, and no strong advance of monsoon winds was registered at all. A slight strengthening of the winds at the Ceylon stations was noticed from about the 1st to the 5th of May, but if this did represent an advance of monsoon winds, it was of a most feeble character. Later on, about the 29th to the 31st, there were indications of the existence of squally, unsettled weather in the centre of the Bay, which may have formed in front of a feeble inrush of moist winds over the Bay, but again if this did represent an advance of the monsoon current, it was also of extremely feeble character. Practically therefore there was no real advance of monsoon winds in the Bay in May.

Pressure.—The mean pressure for the month has hence been rather largely below the normal, the defects at the great majority of stations ranging from 0·05″ to 0·07″. The defects have been smallest at a few of the southern and south-western stations, where they have equalled from 0·03″ to 0·05″.

These defects have been fairly persistent throughout the month. The average pressure for the first few days of the month was nearly normal, but for the week ending May 12th the usual defect ranged from 0·03″ to 0·05″ and 0·06″, the defects being smallest at the south-eastern stations and largest in parts of Bihar. In the week ending the 19th the defect had increased, and varied from a twentieth of an inch in Chota Nagpur to more than a tenth of an inch at such typical stations as Burdwan, Jessore, Bankipur, Darbhanga and Purnea, while in the week ending May 26th the defect ranged from more than 0·14″ at the foot of the hills to 0·023″ at False Point and to nearly a normal pressure at Chittagong. Again, towards the close of the month the general pressure of the province became more nearly normal.

In Assam the defect in the mean pressure for the month has averaged more than 0·06″ at Dhubri and Sibsagar and 0·014″ at Silchar.

Temperature.—As has been explained previously, temperature has been low at the eastern stations and high in the west of Bengal. The variations of the average mean temperature are from a defect of 1·3° at Sibsagar to an excess of 4° and 5° at such stations as Chaibassa, Bankura, Gaya, Hazaribagh, etc. The general mean temperature of all the stations in Assam has been very nearly normal (an excess of 0·3° only), while on the other hand in Chota Nagpur there had been a mean excess of 4·6°, and in Bihar one of 3·6°. For the whole of Bengal the mean temperature of the month was 2·7° in excess of the normal. This excess has been fairly equally distributed in both day and night temperatures in the manner indicated by the above figures, except over parts of West Bengal and the east of Bihar, where the average day, or maximum, temperatures for the month have been about 5° to 6° higher than usual, the excess having been 6° and upwards at Midnapore, Bankura and Naya Dumka.

Rainfall.—An average fall of 7·66 inches of rain has been received in North Bengal, and one of 5·94 inches in East Bengal, but even these rather large amounts are less than the usual amount by a quarter to one-sixth the usual falls. South-West Bengal has only received 3·13 inches, or not much more than half the normal fall, while Bihar, Orissa and Chota Nagpore have each received average falls of only about four-fifths of an inch of rain, and these represent only about a third or a quarter of the usual falls.

The actual falls have been heaviest in South-East Bengal, where the districts of Chittagong and South Lushai Hills have received about sixteen and seventeen inches of rain. Another area of heavy precipitation also exists in North Bengal, where average falls of 11 to 14 inches are reported in the Darjeeling and Kuch Bihar districts. On the other hand, no rain at all has fallen in Palamau and 0·01 inch in Puri, while amounts averaging only about a third of an inch and less are reported in Lohardaga, Saran, Shahabad, Patna, and Muzaffarpur.

Notwithstanding the generally defective falls, however, rainfall has been decidedly in excess of the normal in Chittagong, Noakhali, and South Lushai Hills and in slight excess in Pabna, Dacca, and Tippera.

The following table gives full data for comparison of the actual and normal rainfall of the month of May for all districts of the province. The figures are derived from the average and actual rainfall of the rain-reporting stations in each district, due allowance being made for the area which each station represents. This gives a more accurate average than the arithmetical means given in the weekly and monthly tables. The first column gives the normal or average district rainfall as determined from the observations of the past 15 years. The second column gives the actual district rainfall as determined from the weighted actual rainfall of the month at the reporting stations in each district. The third column expresses the ratio of the actual district rainfall of the past month to the normal rainfall as a percentage. The fourth column gives the same information as the third in a slightly different form, stating as a percentage how much the district rainfall of the month varied in excess or defect from the normal.

Explanation.—... indicates that no rain has fallen. If the return for any day has not been received, the corresponding space is left blank. If any of the returns are wanting the corresponding spaces in the total rainfall columns are left blank. With reference to the column of rainy days, the definition of a rainy day is when at least 0·10 inch of rain has fallen.

CALCUTTA, the 12th June 1894.

SUMMARY OF THE METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN BENGAL, AND OF THE METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN ASSAM, FOR THE WEEK ENDING 8 A.M., SATURDAY, THE 9TH OF JUNE 1894.

At the close of the previous week pressure, which had been low in the south-western districts and at one time over the Bay itself, became more normal, and the lowest pressure was again reported from the north-western stations. On the 3rd of June the pressure changes were a little variable, though usually the barometer was falling, and pressure became generally in defect by amounts ranging up to 0·08″ in the west of Bihar. The changes of pressure on the 4th were unimportant, and the previous pressure distribution remained unchanged. During this period rain was being received at the eastern and northern stations, but weather was fine generally elsewhere. On the 5th pressure had fallen at a few stations in Bihar and East Bengal, and had risen elsewhere, the increase being largest at the central and south-western stations. A very distinct low-pressure area existed over the west of Bihar on this day, while elsewhere pressure was nearly normal, and with this distribution the local storms and rain which had been previously confined to the eastern half of the province extended in a westerly direction, and on the morning of the 5th showers were reported from most stations in South-West Bengal in addition to East and North Bengal and Assam. On the 6th the pressure changes were small, but the distribution of pressure was irregular, and again local storms with rain occurred in the western and south-western districts. On the 7th pressure fell briskly over the whole province, the fall usually exceeding a twentieth of an inch, and pressure again became in defect by amounts ranging up to 0·06″ at the northern stations. Winds therefore became rather more westerly at the western stations, and the winds blowing from the Bay of Bengal rather strengthened. Conditions, however, remained disturbed, and there were numerous rain showers in all districts. On the 8th a rather large increase of pressure occurred in the north-eastern districts of Bengal, while a small rise only occurred at the south-western stations, and again conditions remained disturbed with numerous rain showers. Finally, on the 9th pressure had fallen in Assam and risen over Bengal, the increase equalling 0·07″ to 0·08″ at the western stations. Conditions continued disturbed, and fairly general rain fell at the eastern and northern stations, while a few local showers were reported in all other districts. Hence during practically the whole week conditions have been favourable for moderate to rather heavy rain in the eastern and north-eastern districts, while very numerous showers have occurred in all other districts.

Feeble monsoon winds due to the Arabian Sea current made their appearance on the Malabar coast on the 4th and 5th of June, and have slowly advanced northward along the Bombay coast during the week, and have also penetrated partly into the interior. This advance on the whole appears to have been decidedly weaker than usual. In the extreme south of the Bay the first rather strong advance of monsoon winds due to the Bay current occurred on the 1st of June, on which date winds became strong and light to moderate rain fell at the Ceylon stations. This branch of the monsoon current has continued to blow with moderate strength only at the Ceylon stations and at the stations on the South Coromandal Coast throughout the week. Again, on the whole the strength of the winds appears to have been rather smaller than usual. Towards the end of the week this current appeared to be creeping up the east and centre of the Bay, and had probably reached Burma. Quite at the close of the week probably it was approaching the north of the Bay. It had not apparently passed over the south-eastern portions of Bengal to any appreciable extent, and the rainfall occurring in the central and western parts of Bengal up to the close of the week was practically confined to local showers, though these were decidedly numerous, and the general and heavy rain accompanying the first burst of the monsoon had not occurred.

Pressure.—The average pressure for the week has shown considerable and decidedly irregular variations from the normal, pointing to the decidedly disturbed conditions which have existed. Thus over parts of South-West Bengal pressure has been below the normal, and over another part it has been in excess; also the amount of variation at neighbouring stations has been very unequal. On the whole more stations show defective than excessive pressure, and the largest defects are shown in Bihar and Chota Nagpur. The extreme variations are from a defect of 0·048″ at Gaya to an excess of 0·030″ at Chittagong.

Temperature.—The mean temperature for the week has been nearly 2° in defect in East Bengal and Assam; in South-West and North Bengal temperature has been nearly normal, though slightly in defect, but in Bihar and Orissa an excess temperature of from one to one and-a-half degrees is recorded; Chota Nagpur has also shown a larger excess, and over this area temperature has been 3·3° higher than usual.

Rainfall.—East Bengal has received an average fall of 4·90 inches of rain during the week, or about a sixth larger than usual. North Bengal has received 3·91 inches, or about a seventh larger than the normal, while in South-West Bengal the fall has been 2·18 inches or about the normal amount. Chota Nagpur has received 1·16 inches, or nearly a fourth larger than usual, but in the case of Bihar the falls have been again almost normal, though Bihar has received only 0·83 inch. The only Division in which a defective fall is reported is Orissa, which has received only 0·77 inch, which is less than half the normal fall.

The following table gives the summary of the temperature and rainfall data of each of the six meteorological divisions of the province for the week ending Saturday, the 9th of June 1894:—

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph, and from observations made at 6h., 10h., 16h. and 22h.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard, Newman's No. 86, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The directions and the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

o, overcast; g, gloomy; d, drizzling rain; t, thunder; ≤, lightning; lr, lightning reflection; p, passing temporary showers.

Ditto	ditto	No. $\frac{31}{1336-1345}$, dated the 23rd August 1884.
Ditto	ditto	No. $\frac{3}{101-107}$, dated the 16th January 1885.
Ditto	Notification	No. 1817, dated the 3rd July 1888.

Resolution.—The Secretariat Clerical service of the Government of India and attached offices has for some years past been divided into an Upper and a Lower Division,—the former comprising appointments the pay of which is Rs. 200 and upwards, and the latter those of which the pay is below that sum. The last published rules relative to the filling of the appointments are contained in the Notification No. 1817, dated 3rd July 1888, as revised up to date. The rules lay down that the head of the office concerned shall have an absolute power of selection for the posts of Registrars, Superintendents, Personal Assistants, and generally for appointments in which control or supervision of other clerks is vested. Subject to this proviso, the method of filling up appointments is partly by open competition and partly by selection. One-half of the appointments in the Upper Division and two-thirds of the appointments in the Lower Division are recruited by open competition. To every alternate vacancy in the Upper Division and to every third vacancy in the Lower Division the head of the department or office may appoint any person possessed of certain qualifications.

2. The system of open competition for the recruitment of both the Upper and Lower Divisions of clerkships was introduced by the Resolution of this Department of the 31st

August 1882, and has been found to work very satisfactorily as regards the Lower Division. As a means of supplying vacancies in the Upper Division, however, it has been unsuccessful. Two non-official candidates would by the competition of 1884 have obtained clerkships in the Upper Division, but both of them preferred to take up employment elsewhere. Since 1884 only one non-official candidate has been successful in competing for an Upper Division clerkship. This clerk proved unequal to the duties of the post, and has left his appointment. Such outside candidates do not possess the office experience necessary for the proper performence of the duties attached to the clerkships in the Upper Division, and consequently require to undergo a lengthened period of training before they become really efficient. The candidates who have hitherto presented themselves for vacancies in the Upper Division have differed in no respect as regards social standing, education and University qualifications from those competing for the Lower Division, and experience has proved that vacancies in the latter division possess sufficient attraction to ensure the selection for them of men who, after going through a training in the inferior appointments, are well qualified to fill posts in the Upper Division.

3. The Governor-General in Council considers that, having regard to the class of clerks now recruited for the Lower Division, it is unnecessary to reserve for appointment by open competition any fixed proportion of Upper Division clerkships. It has been established that the head of an office can from the intimate knowledge of the capacity of the men working in it, which he necessarily acquires in the course of daily experience, fill up such vacancies when they occur (which is but rarely) without difficulty from among clerks in the Lower Division. When a clerk has proved his capacity by his daily work, it is evidently unnecessary to resort to a competitive examination in order to establish his competency. Such an examination is useful only in the case of untried men of whom nothing is as yet known. The ordinary rule, therefore, will be that posts in the Upper Division will be filled by selection from posts in the Lower Division.

4. In the very rare cases where no clerk in the Lower Division of an office is considered qualified to fill a post in the Upper Division of that office, His Excellency in Council is of opinion that the principle of competition must be maintained, and the post thrown open to outsiders. It is not, however, necessary to lay down beforehand rules for the competitive examination to be held in such cases, as the post to be filled will often demand special qualifications. Rules will be framed and published as may be required on each occasion.

5. The rules published with the Notification of this Department, No. 1817, dated the 3rd July 1888, have been revised in accordance with this Resolution, and are now republished.

ORDER.—Ordered, that a copy of the above Resolution, with a copy of the rules as revised, be forwarded for information and guidance to the Departments of the Government of India (except the Foreign Department) and to the heads of offices under the Home Department marginally noted; that a copy be forwarded to the Governments of Bengal, the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, and the Punjab for information; that a copy be also forwarded to the Secretary to the Board of Examiners, and that the Resolution and the rules be published in the Gazette of India for general information.

Sanitary Commissioner with the Government of India.
Surgeon-General with the Government of India.

[True Extract.]

C. J. LYALL,

Secretary to the Government of India.

Rules for the Regulation of appointments in the Secretariat Clerical Service of the Government of India and attached offices.

1. The Secretariat Clerical Service shall be separated into an Upper and a Lower Division,—the former comprising all appointments the pay (or, in the case of appointments carrying progressive pay, the minimum pay) of which is Rs. 200 and upwards; the latter all appointments (other than those of copyists, to whom these rules do not apply) the pay of which is below that sum. No clerk will be entitled to promotion from the Lower to the Upper Division as a matter of course or otherwise than in accordance with these rules.

2. The head of the office concerned shall have an absolute power of selection in the case of appointments of Registrars of Offices, Superintendents of Branches, Head Assistants, Personal Assistants, or appointments involving the control or supervision over divisions of an office. The remaining appointments in the Upper Division will usually be filled by the Head of the office concerned by selection from among the clerks in the Lower Division. If, however, no clerk in the Lower Division of an office is considered fit for promotion to the Upper Division, a vacancy in the latter division shall be filled by competition open to the public.

3. The mode of recruiting two-thirds of all the appointments in the Lower Division shall be by open competition.* The rest of the appointments in this division may be filled in accordance with Rules 14 and 15.

* The Head of a Department has discretion to fill any vacancy which is not expected to last more than three months in the manner which he considers to be most suitable (Home Department Resolution No. $\frac{17}{1116-1126}$, dated the 21st June 1889).

4. Special regulations respecting the examinations for appointments in the Upper Division, which it may be necessary to hold under Rule 2, will be framed and notified on each occasion before such an examination is held.

5. An examination of candidates for the Lower Division of the Secretariat Clerical Service will be held at Calcutta, Allahabad, and Lahore, and at such other places as may hereafter be appointed, in January of each year. The examination at Allahabad will be confined to persons domiciled* in the North-Western Provinces, Oudh, the Central Provinces, Rajputana, and Central India; and that at Lahore to persons domiciled in the Punjab and Baluchistan. Candidates who desire to compete for vacancies offered for competition at Allahabad and Lahore must prove to the satisfaction of the Secretary to the Board of Examiners that they are domiciled in one of the provinces enumerated above, permanent residence in which would entitle them to appear at either of the centres. Natives of Bengal, who are temporary residents of, and not domiciled in, any of those provinces, will be permitted to present themselves at the examinations at Allahabad and Lahore, but they will be treated as competing for the vacancies offered at Calcutta, and not for those offered at Allahabad and Lahore.

6. The arrangements for the examination prescribed in the last preceding rule will be made by the Board of Examiners, Fort William, who will be assisted by paid Examiners, and act in communication with the Secretary to the Government of India in the Home Department. Before the examination commences, a distinguishing number will be given by the Secretary to the Board of Examiners to each candidate, with which the candidate will mark each of his papers of answers.

7. The nature of the examination for the Lower Division will be as follows:

(1) Dictation and Handwriting.

This will be a preliminary test. The examination in these subjects will not be competitive, but marks will be assigned for the purpose of testing proficiency. The papers of candidates will be examined as soon as possible after this examination; and the Examiners will require any candidate who fails to obtain two-thirds marks in each subject to withdraw from the further examination.

		Marks.
(2)	English Composition (Essay-writing and Drafting) ...	100
(3)	Precis-writing	100
(4)	Geography	50
(5)	History (English and Indian)	50
(6)	Arithmetic; Euclid, 1st Book; Algebra up to Simple Equations	50

No candidate will be credited with marks in either subject (2) or subject (3) unless he obtains at least one-fourth of the marks in the subject; nor will he be credited with marks in subject (4), subject (5), or subject (6) unless he obtains one-fifth of the marks in the subject. Any candidate obtaining less than one-fourth marks in either subject (2) or subject (3) shall be disqualified. Candidates will not be eligible for the Lower Division of the Financial Department or for the Office of the Accountant-General,* Military Department (if, with reference to Rule 20 below, the Department or Office adopts these rules), and of the Accountant-General, Public Works Department, unless they obtain at least one-third of the full number of marks in Arithmetic.

* Home Department Resolution No. $\frac{30}{2970\text{-}2994}$, dated the 13th November 1888.

8. Every candidate for an appointment in the Lower Division must send a written application for permission to appear at the examination to the Secretary to the Board of Examiners between the date of issue of the Notification announcing the number of vacancies to be competed for, to which reference is made in Rule 10 of the rules, and the 15th December (inclusive).

Home Department Notification No. 156, dated the 28th January 1892.

9. The application under the last rule should be in the form given on the margin, and be accompanied by a treasury receipt for the sum of Rs. 10. This sum he is required to pay into the treasury nearest his place of residence by way of examination fee. With the application must also be forwarded—

[FORM.]

To the Secretary to the Board of Examiners, Fort William.

SIR,

I request permission to present myself at the ensuing examination of candidates for appointments in the Lower Division of Government Clerkships. If successful, I should elect to serve in the Office of the

A treasury receipt for the fee of Rs. 10 is forwarded herewith.

I am, etc.

(1) Evidence (except in the cases provided for by Rule 11) that the candidate at the date of making his application is not less than eighteen and not more than twenty-four years of age. The date of the candidate's birth must be stated.

* The term "domiciled" should be understood in its ordinary legal sense (vide the Indian Succession Act, 1865, Part II), and no person can be considered to be domiciled in any of the provinces enumerated unless he has fixed the habitation of himself and his family in that province, not for a mere special or temporary purpose, but with the intention of making it his permanent home (Home Department Resolution No. $\frac{14 \text{ Public}}{890\text{—}902}$, dated the 14th May 1891).

(2) In case the candidate has been educated at a school in which students' good conduct registers are kept, the candidate's register for the last year of his attendance at school, when a year has not elapsed since he left school. In other cases a certificate that the candidate is of good moral character from the head of the institution in which he has last been educated, or from some respectable house-holder to whom he is well-known in private life, and who is himself known to a District or Subdivisional Magistrate or to the head of some Government office,—this last fact being certified by the counter-signature of the officer in question.

10. The number of candidates to be selected by the Examiners for the Lower Division will be notified in the Gazette of India by the Home Department on or before the 31st October. This number will be determined in communication with the heads of the offices concerned, with reference to the number of vacancies existing or estimated as likely to occur within the course of the following year (and which it is not intended to fill under the provisions of Rules 14, 15, and 16), plus a margin of 10 per cent. for casualties. One-half the number of vacancies offered will be reserved for candidates domiciled in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, the Punjab, and the Central Provinces, Rajputana, Central India, and Beluchistan, provided that a sufficient number of duly qualified candidates to fill these appointments appear from those territories.

11. Persons who have at any time held a permanent appointment in any of the offices referred to in these rules, but who may have lost such appointment owing to its abolition or on reduction of establishment, may present themselves for the examination for the Lower Division under these rules, provided they are under forty years of age.

12. As soon as practicable after the open competitive examination for the Lower Division, the Board of Examiners will report the result to the Home Department. The report will take the form of a list giving the names of selected candidates and the exact dates of their births, the distinguishing numbers of unsuccessful candidates and the number of marks obtained by each candidate, whether successful or unsuccessful, in each subject of examination. The Home Department will then circulate a list of selected candidates to the heads of the offices concerned. Candidates will be given their choice of departments as far as possible, and the Home Department will intimate such choice, if made, to the head of each office. The head of each department will, however, be at liberty to offer a vacant appointment which may occur in his Department to any selected candidate remaining on the list. This offer should be made through the Home Department, which will keep each Department of the Government of India informed as the names of selected candidates are removed from the list. No candidates selected in a later year shall be offered an appointment until the offer has been made to, and refused by, selected candidates of an earlier year remaining on the list.

13. When an outside candidate for the Lower Division attains the age of twenty-five years, or when two years have expired from the date of the entry of his name on the list, or when any candidate has refused the offer of an appointment in the Department in which he has elected to serve, or has twice refused the offer of an appointment in any other Department or Departments, his name shall immediately be removed from the list.

14. Every third vacancy in the Lower Division may be filled by the head of a Department without reference to the preceding rules.

15. Appointments made under the last preceding rule shall, if the person appointed is not in Government service, be made subject to the conditions that the person appointed—

(a) is at the time of appointment not less than eighteen and not more than twenty-five years of age;

(b) can give satisfactory evidence that he possesses a minimum educational qualification equivalent to the Entrance Standard of one of the Indian Universities;

(c) must produce satisfactory evidence that he is of good moral character.

16. Any officer already in Government employment may be appointed to any vacancy such as is referred to in Rule 14 without regard to the qualifications specified in the preceding rule.

17. The heads of offices to which these rules apply are at liberty to arrange transfers from the Lower Division of one office to that of another. The transfer of an officer from a post in an office to which the rules apply to a vacancy in another office to which these rules also apply shall, for the purposes of Rule 14, be held to be the filling up of a vacancy.

18. Before a person who is not already in Government service is actually employed in any office, he must produce a certificate from a Government medical officer of or above the rank of Surgeon to the effect that he is in good health and of a sound constitution.

19. All candidates for the Lower Division, whether selected by examination or nominated, who receive appointments, and such candidates for the Upper Division as are recruited by open competition, will be on probation for twelve months; and if at any time during that period, or at its close, their work is not considered satisfactory by the head of the office in which they are employed, they will receive their discharge, and will have no claim to gratuity or compensation on that account.

20. The above rules will apply to the Secretariat Offices * of the Government of India, except the Foreign Department, and the Department† of Finance and Commerce, and the Office of the Accountant-General, Military Department, whenever the latter Department or office fill vacancies by recruitment of officers already holding clerical appointments in any Government Account Office. When the Department of Finance and Commerce, and the Office of the Accountant-General, Military Department, do not recruit in this manner, the rules will apply. They will also apply to the Offices of—

NOTIFICATIONS.

ACCOUNTS AND FINANCE.

PUBLIC DEBT.

No. 2918A., dated Simla, the 8th June 1894.

From—STEPHEN JACOB, Esq., Officiating Secretary to the Government of India, Finance and Commerce Department,
To—The Comptroller and Auditor General.

I AM directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 1223D., dated the 27th March 1894, on the subject of the payment of interest on Government Promissory Notes which have been enfaced for such payment in England, but on which the last Indian endorsement has not been certified.

*These rules do not apply to the Traffic and Statistical Sections of the Railway Branch of the Public Works Secretariat and the Office of the Consulting Engineer to the Government of India for Railways, Calcutta, when these sections and office fill vacancies by recruitment of officers already serving in the Offices of the Traffic Superintendents and District Officers on the State lines (Home Department Resolution No. $\frac{22}{1368-1382}$, dated the 5th August 1889).

†These rules do not apply to classes VII (Rs. 50—75), VIII (Rs. 35—50), and IX (Rs. 25—35) of appointments in the Statistical Branch, and to classes IX (Rs. 25—35) and X (20—25) in the General Branch of the Department of Finance and Commerce That Department has also authority to recruit, without reference to the rules in the case of appointments in class VIII (Rs 35—50) in its General Branch, at any time when it considers it necessary to do so; but ordinarily recruitment to that class will be from passed candidates. No clerk, other than a passed candidate, who enters the classes now exempted from the operation of the rules after the date of this Resolution is eligible for promotion to the classes above class VII in the Statistical and class VIII in the General Branch, except in accordance with Rule 14 of these rules (Home Department Resolution No. $\frac{23}{1455-1468}$, dated the 15th September 1891).

‡These rules do not apply to the Office of the Statistical Officer to the Government of India in the Sanitary and Medical Departments (Home Department Resolution No. $\frac{14}{1031-1033}$, dated 21st May 1890).

§Three appointments in the Office of the Inspector General of Ordnance, Eastern Circle, and two in that of the Inspector-General, Western Circle, are reserved for soldiers possessing technical knowledge of Ordnance duties (Home Department Resolution No. $\frac{15}{1070-1071}$, dated the 31st May 1890).

2. In the notification in this Department, No. 61, dated the 12th November 1858, laying down the rules for the enfacement of rupee paper for the payment of interest in London, it was provided that notes should be so enfaced only at Calcutta, and that notes bearing any endorsement must be renewed in the name of the then holder before being enfaced. It was also expressly stipulated that "any endorsement made in India of an enfaced note will not be recognised in England."

3. By a later notification, No. 79, dated the 15th September 1859, the provision as to the renewal of notes before enfacement was modified; and it was provided that holders of notes transferred for payment of interest to Bombay or Madras might "have such notes enfaced and registered by the Accountant-General, Bombay (or Madras, as the case may be), on the condition that a certificate be affixed on the back of such notes by the Accountant-General of the Presidency concerned that all existing endorsements have been examined by him and are valid and correct, and that the note itself is genuine and outstanding; and on the understanding that no endorsement made subsequently to the date of the Accountant-General's certificate will be recognised in England."

4. This later order did not expressly refer to Calcutta, but since its issue the recognised practice in Calcutta, as in Madras and Bombay, has been for the Public Debt Office to certify to the genuineness of the notes and of the endorsements, if any, upon them at the time of enfacement for payment of interest in London, renewal being effected only when desired by the holder or when necessary for any special reason.

5. It now appears from a letter, dated the 16th January 1894, from the Chief Accountant, Bank of England, to your address, that a very large number of the notes lodged at the Bank do not bear the prescribed certificate as to the correctness of the endorsement; and that as the Bank considered that the refusal to recognise uncertified endorsements might occasion trouble, it has hitherto admitted the notes on such evidence as could be procured in England of the genuineness of the endorsements. The Bank has, however, now raised the question whether its present practice is correct or whether it would be justified, and would be carrying out the wishes of the Government of India, in refusing to pay interest on notes on which the last Indian endorsement has not been duly certified.

6. I am to point out that the practice followed by the Bank of England, as stated in the Chief Accountant's letter, is not only irregular and not in accordance with the prescribed rules, but is also open to objection, since it is desirable that the genuineness of endorsements made in India should be decided in this country; the practice now brought to notice must in some cases operate with unfairness, as the proof required by the Bank might be easily obtainable in some cases, while in others it would not be possible to furnish it without a reference to India. The Government of India have accordingly decided that the practice should cease, and that in accordance with the authorised procedure notes on which the last Indian endorsement has not been certified should not be recognised in England.

7. The Government of India recognise the fact that the sudden cessation of the existing practice, however irregularly it has been allowed to grow up, might cause some inconvenience, and have accordingly decided that notice should be given in the form of the prescribed certificate of endorsement that endorsements made in India after the date of the certificate will not be recognised in England. The two following forms of notice are now prescribed by the Government of India for this purpose; and I am to request that in future one or other of the forms may be stamped on all Government Promissory Notes enfaced for payment of interest in England, Form A being used for notes bearing endorsements and Form B for clean notes:

A.

Certified that the above endorsement has been examined, valid and correct, and that the note is genuine and outstanding. Any endorsement made in India subsequent to the date of this certificate will not be recognised by the Bank of England (vide Government of India Notifications No. 61, dated the 12*th November* 1858, and No. 79, dated the 15*th September* 1859).

Superintendent.

Dated 189 .

B.

Certified that this note is genuine and outstanding. Any endorsement made in India will not be recognised by the Bank of England (vide Government of India Notifications No. 61, dated the 12*th November* 1858, and No. 79, dated the 15*th September* 1859).

8. I am to add that the attention of the Bank of England will be invited to the rules on the subject as laid down in 1858 and 1859, and the Bank will be requested to give notice of the above orders in such manner as may appear most suitable on the occasion of the next payment of interest on any loan; and thereafter to refuse payment of interest upon, and to return under objection, all notes in which the rule as to endorsements in India is infringed, unless the endorsements have been previously recognized under the practice described in paragraph 5.

Ordered, that the letter be published in the Gazette of India for general information.

INDIA.

Uniform system of buoyage.

THE following Notice to Mariners (No. 234 of 1894), issued by the British Admiralty, is republished :—

The following uniform system of buoyage was adopted for Indian waters in 1892, and the Government of India has given notices that it has since been carried out at the undermentioned ports, viz., Karachi, Bombay harbour, Madras harbour, Balasor river, Akyab harbour, Bassein river, and Rangoon river.

The system is as follows:—

1. The Mariner, when approaching the coast, must determine his position on the chart, and must note the direction of the main stream of flood-tide.

2. The term Starboard Hand shall denote that side which would be on the right hand of the Mariner, either going with the main stream of flood, or entering a harbour, river, or estuary from seaward; the term Port Hand shall denote the left hand of the Mariner under the same circumstances.

3. Buoys showing the pointed top of a cone above water shall be called Conical, and shall always be Starboard Hand buoys, as above defined.

4. Buoys showing a flat top above water shall be called Can, and shall always be Port Hand buoys, as above defined.

5. Buoys showing a domed top above water shall be called Spherical, and shall mark the ends of Middle Grounds.

6. Buoys having a tall central structure on a broad base shall be called Pillar buoys, and like other special buoys, such as Bell buoys, Gas buoys, Automatic Sounding buoys, etc., etc., shall be placed to mark special positions, either on the coast or in the approaches to harbours, &c.

7. Buoys showing only a mast above water shall be called Spar buoys.

8. Starboard Hand buoys shall always be painted a single red colour.

9. Port Hand buoys shall be painted of another characteristic colour, either black or parti-colour.

10. Spherical buoys at the ends of Middle Grounds shall always be distinguished by horizontal stripes of white colour.

11. Surmounting topmarks, such as staff and cone, &c., shall always be painted of one dark colour.

12. Staff and Cone shall only be used on Starboard Hand buoys; Staff and Cylinder on Port Hand; Globes at the outer ends of Middle Grounds; and Half Globes, round part uppermost, at the inner ends.

13. Buoys on the same side of a channel, estuary or tideway, may be distinguished from each other by names of consecutive numbers or letters, commencing from seaward, and when necessary by a staff surmounted by the appropriate top mrk.

14. Fairway buoys shall always be painted in horizontal stripes of white colour, and shall be surmounted by a staff only.

15. Buoys intended for mooring, etc., may be of shape or colour according to the discretion of the authority within whose jurisdiction they are laid, but for marking Submarine Telegraph Cables the colour shall be green with the word Telegraph painted thereon in white letters.

Buoying and marking of Wrecks :—

16. Wreck buoys in the open sea, or in the approaches to a harbour, or estuary, shall be coloured green, with the word Wreck painted in white letters on them.

17. When possible the buoy shall be laid near to the side of the wreck next to mid-channel.

18. When a wreck-marking vessel is used, it shall, if possible, have its top-sides coloured green, with the word Wreck in white letters thereon, and shall exhibit :—

By day—Three balls on a yard 20 feet above the sea, two placed vertically at one end, and one at the other, the single ball being on the side nearest to the wreck.

By night—Three fixed white lights, similarly arranged, but not the ordinary riding light.

19. In narrow waters, or in rivers, harbours, &c., under the jurisdiction of local authorities, the same rules may be adopted, or, at discretion, varied as follows :—

When a wreck-marking vessel is used, she shall carry a yard on a mast, with two balls by day, placed horizontally, not less than 6 nor more than 12 feet apart, and two lights by night, similarly placed.

When a barge or boat only is used a flag or ball may be shown in the day-time.

The position in which the marking vessel is placed, with reference to the wreck, shall be at the discretion of the local authority having jurisdiction.

Special Notices to Mariners, Nos. 267 and 562 of 1892, and Nos. 36, 37, and 264 of 1893, have already been given for Karachi, Bombay, Akyab, Bassein and Rangoon.

The Reports for the year 1892, and the orders of Government recorded thereon.

The Alipore School.—The daily average number of boys in this Reformatory rose from 168 in 1892 to 211 in 1893. There were 70 admissions during the year, and 27 releases and 4 deaths. Notwithstanding the increase in the daily average number of boys, it is satisfactory to notice that the number of offences fell from 76 to 73, and that the average number of punishments to each boy was only ·35 as compared with 1·02 in 1890, 0·66 in 1891, and 0·45 in 1892.

The average number of boys entitled to marks was 148·46 against 113·5 in 1892, and the weekly average earnings rose from Rs. 4-3-3 to Rs. 5-1-9. Owing to the unhealthiness of the year, due to the excessive rainfall, the number of admissions to hospital rose from an average of 2·96 in 1892 to 5·04. There were four deaths, one of which was from chronic dysentery, two from malarial cachexia, and the fourth from spleen and cancer of the tongue. No boy escaped from the Reformatory during the year.

2. The additional quarters completed for the warder staff in 1892 were made over for their use in 1893, and a godown for the storage of rice, &c., for the boys' rations was constructed. The arrangements for the education, work and recreation of the boys continued the same as in past years. The boys exercise at gymnastics for one hour daily, and as much as they please during play hours and on Sundays, and under the instruction of a duly qualified teacher they are reported to have made great progress.

3. Reports regarding 66 boys who had been released from the Reformatory were received from Magistrates during the year. Of these eight had been reconvicted and sent to jail, one bore a bad character, one had died, and 56 bore good characters. Out of 257 boys released since the opening of the school, regarding whom reports have been received, 39 have been reconvicted and imprisoned, 43 have been reported as bearing bad characters, and 205 as bearing good characters. Of the total number only 31 are said to be following the trade learnt by them in the Reformatory. Every effort is, however, made to encourage the boys to take up the trade for which they show the most inclination.

4. In consequence of the larger number of boys confined in the school, the total expenditure for the year rose from Rs. 18,298-1-4 in 1892 to Rs. 21,113-9-7, but the average cost per head fell from Rs. 108-14-6 to Rs. 100-1-1. The average expenditure per head on diet was Rs. 38-10-7 as compared with Rs. 34-9-2 in 1892, the increase being attributed to the higher rates of rations prevailing, the average price of rice alone having risen from Rs. 3-7-3 to Rs. 3-13 per maund. In the Alipore Central Jail the expenditure per prisoner on diet in 1893 was only Rs. 27-12-6, and it is difficult to understand why the food of boys should cost so much more than that of men. The price paid for rice seems unduly high, and the Lieutenant-Governor trusts that by a judicious working of the system of storing grain at the cheap season of the year, a considerable reduction in expenditure under this head may be effected. The net profits from the manufacturing department fell from Rs. 12,259-3-4 to Rs. 10,886-14-9, being a decrease of Rs. 1,372-4-7, which occurred wholly under the heads 'Book-binding' and 'Printing.' The decrease is explained partly by the fact that the work of binding and printing, which is now done together, is slower of execution than when done separately, and partly owing to a large number of the boys having been engaged in making the small envelopes used in packing quinine—a work which is less remunerative than other kinds of binding.

5. The Hazaribagh School.—The daily average number of boys in the school was 302·38 as compared with 300 93 in 1892. Sixty-seven boys were admitted during the year, one died, and 63 were released, while the number remaining in confinement on the 31st December 1893 was 304. The general health of the boys was unusually good, the daily average of sick having fallen from 2·89 to 1·52, and for several months in the later part of the year there was not a single admission to hospital. The conduct of the boys was satisfactory, and there were no serious offences. The total number of offences committed and of punishments awarded was 272 against 266 in the preceding year. The arrangements for the education, work and recreation of the boys were practically the same as in former years. Gymnastic exercises were, however, for the first time introduced during the year, and the services of the instructor attached to the Alipore Reformatory were lent to the Hazaribagh School for two months to start the Gymnasium. It is reported that great progress has already been made by many of the boys, and that they are beginning to take an interest in these exercises.

6. The total expenditure per head was Rs. 73-1-5 against Rs. 77-11-7 in 1892. The expenditure per head on diet fell from Rs. 29-1-9 to Rs. 26-3-4, which is almost the same as the rate per head in the Hazaribagh Jail: the decrease as compared with last year is accounted for by the timely storage of wheat and rice at the cheap season of the year—a result which is creditable to the management of the institution. All the suitable land attached to the Reformatory was brought under cultivation, and the value of the crops produced thereon is estimated at Rs. 500. The net profits on articles manufactured in the school increased from Rs. 3,437-9-8 to Rs. 3,826-8-8. This was mainly due to the success in the cotton-weaving and clothes making trades, the profits on which alone during the last year amounted to Rs. 2,720. The packing and distribution of quinine were discontinued in the early part of the year. The Superintendent is, however, of opinion that some new and more profitable industry should be started, and the Superintendent of Jail Manufactures has suggested paper-making. On this question the Lieutenant-Governor would like a fuller report to be submitted through the Inspector-General of Jails.

7. The Lieutenant Governor regrets to observe that the reports received from District Magistrates regarding the conduct of boys released from the school are less favourable than in the preceding year. Such reports were received regarding 101 boys, and of these 72 were reported to be well-conducted, 13 were in jail, seven were viewed with suspicion, while only two were reported to be following the trade learnt in the school.

8. Several improvements in the arrangement of the school buildings were made during the year. In addition to the opening of the Gymnasium already referred to, a new cook-house on the model of that in the Presidency Jail has been completed, an elaborate pump has been fixed in the well, and pipes have been laid down to carry the water to the cook-house and feeding place. Sanction for the erection of 25 cubicles has been given, but additional accommodation in the school is urgently required, and should be provided without delay.

9. The results of the year are, on the whole, very satisfactory, and the successful working of the school reflects credit on Mr. Hill, the Deputy Superintendent, who is spoken of in high terms by the Inspector-General of Jails, and by all who have had occasion to visit the school.

ORDER—Ordered that a copy of this Resolution be forwarded to the President of the Board of Management of the Reformatory School at Alipore for information and communication to the Members of the Board.

Ordered also that a copy of the Reports, and a copy of this Resolution, be forwarded to the Inspector-General of Jails for information and communication to the Superintendent of the Hazaribagh Reformatory School.

Ordered also that the Resolution be published in the Calcutta Gazette.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

Chief Secretary to the Govt. of Bengal.

RESOLUTION ON THE ANNUAL REPORT OF THE ROYAL BOTANIC GARDEN, CALCUTTA, FOR THE YEAR 1893-94.

FINANCIAL DEPARTMENT—MISCELLANEOUS.

Darjeeling, the 13th June 1894.

RESOLUTION No. 3462 Mis.

The Annual Report of the Royal Botanic Garden, Calcutta, for the year 1893-94.

Read again—

The Annual Report of the Royal Botanic Garden, Calcutta, for the year 1892-93 with the Resolution recorded thereon.

Dr. King's report gives an interesting account of the operations during the past year. A severe storm occurred in May, and though in the conservatories little damage was done, several trees outside were completely uprooted. Among the principal improvements effected during the year may be mentioned the repairs to Colonel Kyd's monument—a beautiful urn and obelisk—raised in memory of the founder of the garden. Several garden roads were also repaired, and altogether the gardens have been maintained in a high state of efficiency.

2. Attention was given as usual to the cultivation and distribution of plants having an economic value, which are suitable for cultivation in the plains of India. Of these the principal were plants of the rhea, of sissal hemp, of the cola nut, seeds of bhabar grass (Ischæmum angustifolium) and coca. Dr. King remarks with reference to the latter that this alkaloid can never come into general use, and that the demand is at present greatly below the supply. The Lieutenant-Governor shares his regret that his efforts to extend in Bengal the cultivation of the Japan-paper mulberry tree have met with so little success as this tree (of which a small stock still is available) provides an admirable fibre for paper.

3. The collection in the Herbarium was increased by more than 16,000 specimens, the chief contributors being Mr. Thiselton Dyer, Director of the Royal Garden, Kew; Mr. Duthie, Director of the Botanical Survey of Northern India; and Mr. Ridley, Director of the Botanical Garden, Singapore. Valuable sets of plants were also received from Mr. Man (Port Blair), Mr. Elliott (Egypt), Dr. Radde (Tiflis), Mr. Curtis (Penang), Baron Von Muller (Melbourne), Mr. Wood (Natal), Mr. Sykes Gamble (Dehra-Dun), Mr. Talbot (North Kanara), and Mr. Haines (Jalpaiguri). To all these donors the thanks of the Government are due. The members of the garden staff, who also contributed to the collections, were Dr. Prain, Curator of the Herbarium, Mr. Pantling of the Cinchona Plantation, and two native collectors in Assam and Upper Burma. On the other hand a large number of specimens was sent out from the garden to various botanical institutions, among which may be mentioned the Botanical Survey Departments of Bombay and Northern India, the Botanical Gardens of Singapore and Penang, the Royal Garden, Kew, the British Museum, the Herbaria of Cambridge, Edinburgh, Cork, Berlin, Paris, Geneva, Leiden, Utrecht, Vienna, Upsala, St. Petersburg and Florence, as well as to Cooper's Hill College, and the Smithsonian Institution, Washington.

4. During a portion of the year Dr. Prain was deputed to undertake an enquiry into the cultivation and storage of ganja, and he submitted an interesting and valuable report, the final orders of Government upon which have been postponed till the report of the Indian Hemp Drugs Commission has been received.

5. The fourth volume of the Garden Annals was published during the year, comprising of a monograph by Dr. King on the Indian species of Anonaceæ. Both Dr. King and Dr. Prain contributed valuable papers on botanical subjects to the Journal of the Asiatic Society of Bengal.

6. The Lloyd Botanic Garden in Darjeeling has been kept in excellent condition by Mr. Kennedy, who also superintended the planting of trees in many parts of the station.

7. The thanks of the Lieutenant-Governor are again due to Dr. King for his excellent administration of the Garden during the year and to Dr. Prain for his assiduous and exhaustive enquiries above mentioned.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

J. A. BOURDILLON,

Offg. Secretary to the Govt. of Bengal.

No. 16G., dated Royal Botanic Garden, Sibpur, the 15th May 1894.

From—GEORGE KING, Esq., M.B., F.R.S., C.I.E., Superintendent, Royal Botanic Garden, Calcutta,

To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Financial Department.

I HAVE the honour to submit herewith the one hundred and seventh Annual Report of the Royal Botanic Garden.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE ROYAL BOTANIC GARDEN, CALCUTTA, FOR THE YEAR 1893-94.

THE most notable feature in the meteorology of the year was the severe storm, almost amounting to a cyclone, which raged for the greater part of three days during the month of May. This storm did considerable damage to the trees both in the way of complete uprootal and in the breaking of branches. So great was the destruction, that the whole of the out-door labour staff was engaged for about six weeks in setting up and fastening with wire such trees as were small enough to be set up, and in clearing away leaves and broken stems and branches. The garden buildings, however, escaped, and even the conservatories suffered little beyond the almost complete loss of their thatch. From the extra grant of money provided for the purpose, the road which circles round Kyd's monument, and two of the roads radiating from it, were raised in level and repaired. An old bridge on the main avenue, leading from Kyd's monument to the river bank gate, was remodelled, and the roadway was widened. As the result of these changes, a fine avenue of the uniform width of 22 feet now runs between Kyd's monument and the gate just mentioned. As the latter will, owing to the rapidly approaching completion of the new river bank road leading from Calcutta, soon be the main entrance to the garden by land, the improvement is one of prime importance. The platform on which Kyd's monument stands had for some years been in bad repair, the mosaic pavement having suffered greatly from the weather. During the year that pavement was replaced by one of more suitable material; so that the monument to the memory of the founder of the garden (a beautiful urn and obelisk by Banks) is now in a setting more befitting its beauty and interest. With the view of improving the part of the garden near what will shortly become its main entrance by land, much labour has, during the past two or three years, been spent on the three main roads which lead to that entrance. Two of these have already been put into excellent condition. But the third—that which runs along the river bank—is still in a bad state. During the year which has just been entered upon, I hope to put that road also into good condition. The existing road (like so many of the older garden roads) requires to have its levels altered in many places; its curves also require to be improved, and the slopes and undulations of the grass by the sides of it are sadly in want of improvement. This kind of work is so troublesome and laborious that only a limited amount of it can be undertaken in any one year. The current year should see the completion of the Palmetum roads. There will then remain the road leading from the river gate to the great banyan tree, and several other main roads in the centre of the garden. During the rainy season the river did but little injury to the bank; and the erosion near the engine-shed, which in my last report I referred to as probably pending, did not, I am glad to say, take place. During the year the flock of water-fowl on the orchid-house tank was increased by a further donation from Mr. Thiselton Dyer, the Director of the Royal Garden, Kew. There are now about as many birds in this tank as can conveniently be looked after and housed. For some years past there has been considerable difficulty in getting and keeping together a gang of coolies for the out-door garden work. During the past year this difficulty has been more keenly felt than ever. The coolies who prove by far the most suitable for garden work are the people known in Calcutta as "Dhangars." These are really Kols from Chota Nagpur. They are a hard-working docile race, and their merits as labourers are now so generally known, not only in the neighbourhood of Calcutta, but also in the tea districts, that there is great competition for their services; and higher rates of wages are everywhere being offered to them. Moreover, the cost of food has for some years been almost steadily on the increase. It seems clear, therefore, that, in order to secure the continuous services of a good gang of these coolies for this garden, better wages than heretofore will have to be given.

2. Economic plants.—Attention has, as usual, been given to the cultivation and distribution of plants of economic interest which are suited for cultivation on the plains of India. Rhea plants still continue to be in occasional demand, and supplies of these have been issued gratuitously to various applicants. Seeds of Coca have been freely given to various tea-planters. Coca is the plant from which the anæsthetic, known as cocaine, is prepared. This alkaloid can, from the nature of it, never come into very extensive use, and the demand for it is at present greatly below the supply. But, as high prices have occasionally within recent years been got for batches of coca leaves, planters have been led into taking up the cultivation with more enthusiasm than discretion. Plants of Sissal hemp were in active demand for a time, and these were met as far as possible. Cola acuminata (which produces the Cola nut) was also in demand to some extent. Seed of the grass, known variously as bhabar, babui, and sabai, was issued to a few applicants outside of India. This grass (of which the botanical name is Ischæmum angustifolium) first attracted my notice as a possible raw material for paper twenty-five years ago, while I was in the Forest Department in the North-West Provinces. It is very common in the Siwalik range, and in the Bhabar forests of the Gharwal and Kamaon Himalaya. Samples of it, sent home by me in 1873 to a paper-maker in Scotland, were favourably reported upon; and again in 1877 a sample sent by me to the India Office, having been submitted to the late Mr. Routledge of the Ford paper mills (then a leading authority on paper making), was declared by him to be little inferior to Esparto as a raw material for paper. A year or two subsequently to this it was discovered, by the help of Mr. J. S. Gamble of the Forest Department, that this grass is common in the forests of Chota Nagpur. Samples of it were accordingly sent by me to the Bally Paper Mill, then the only one near Calcutta. The sample was approved of at Bally, and since then the use of this grass has so increased that it now forms the chief raw material of an industry which, in this country, is yet probably only in its infancy. As seed of bhabar grass is now being applied for from abroad, it is possible that, before long, it may be cultivated in other tropical countries. It is a subject of much regret to me that my efforts to extend the cultivation of the Japan paper mulberry tree in Bengal have hitherto led to so little result. The fibre of this tree is much superior to bhabar, and, as I stated in several of my annual reports some years ago, it can be most readily grown in Bengal. There is still a small stock of the tree in the garden ready for issue to any applicant who may be forthcoming.

3. Herbarium.—The work during the year has been of the usual character, many scientific references having been answered and plants having been identified for numerous correspondents. The collection was largely increased during the year by the receipt of 16,387 specimens from other herbaria, from botanists in various parts of the world, and from collectors sent out from the garden. On the other hand, 12,517 specimens of Indian plants (all carefully named) were issued to various botanical institutions, both in this country and in Europe. The chief contributor has, as usual, been the Director of the Royal Garden, Kew (Mr. W. T. Thiselton Dyer), from whom no less than 5,854 named specimens were received. The gentlemen next to Mr. Dyer in the extent and value of their gifts were Mr. J. F. Duthie, Director of the Botanical Survey of Northern India, and Mr. H. N. Ridley, Director of the Botanic Garden, Singapore, who contributed respectively 1,427 and 1,509 specimens. A fine set of Andamans plants, amounting to 611 specimens, was collected under the supervision of Mr. E. H. Man of Port Blair, to whom this garden is indebted for much willing help. Valuable sets of plants were also received from the following:—Mr. J. Scott Elliot, who sent 295 Egyptian species; Dr. Radde of Tiflis, who gave 353 plants of the Caucasus; Mr. Curtis of the Forest Department who presented 221 species from Penang. Baron Von Muller of Melbourne also supplemented his liberal contributions of former years by presenting last year 305 interesting Australian plants. To Mr. Medley Wood, the Herbarium is indebted for 236 specimens from Natal; to Mr. J. Sykes Gamble, Director of the Imperial Forest School, for 164 plants from Dehra Dun; to Mr. W. A. Talbot and to Mr. H. H. Haines, of the Indian Forest Department, for 45 plants from the forests of North Kanara and from those of the Jalpaiguri district, respectively. The collections made by members of the staff during the year included 489 plants by Dr. Prain; 1,397 by Mr. Pantling of the Cinchona plantation; 376 by Abdul Huc, botanical collector in Assam; and 1,018 by Abdul Kholil, collector in Upper Burma. The chief recipients of specimens were the Directors of the Botanical Survey of Bombay and of Northern India, to whom 617 and 292 named specimens were respectively sent. The Botanical Gardens of Singapore and Penang received respectively 477 and 529 specimens. To the Herbarium of the Royal Garden, Kew, 423 specimens, and to that of the British Museum 679 specimens were sent. Other recipients were institutions from whom plants had been received, and the botanical institutions of England and of the continent of Europe, chief amongst which may be mentioned the Herbaria of Cambridge, Edinburgh, Cork, Berlin, Paris, Geneva, Leiden, Utrecht, Vienna, Upsala, St. Petersburg and Florence. Collections were also sent to Cooper's Hill College near London, and to the Smithsonian Institution, Washington. Full details, both of the specimens received and of those distributed, will be found in Appendices V and VI of this report.

4. Enquiry into Ganja cultivation.—During three months of the year, Dr. Prain, Curator of the Herbarium, was on special duty in connection with an enquiry into the mode of cultivation and storage of the various preparations of Indian hemp (Cannabis sativa) known by the vernacular names of ganja, charas, bhang and majun. The chemistry and physiological action of these drugs were also included in the scope of Dr. Prain's enquiry. The research was a very arduous one. It was, however, brought to a successful termination by Dr. Prain, who submitted, as the result of his labours, an exhaustive report which has, I understand, been of the greatest use to the Commission recently appointed to enquire into the whole subject of ganja.

5. Botanical publications.—During the year Dr. Prain contributed to the journal of the Asiatic Society of Bengal four papers on Indian Botanical subjects, in which a good many species of plants are described for the first time. The titles of these papers are "On two species of Pedicularis"; "A review of the genus Colquhounia"; "On the Flora of Narcandam and Barren Island," and a "Note on some methods of preparing Botanical specimens. To the same journal I contributed parts 5 and 6 of my "Materials for a Flora of the Malayan Peninsula," and a paper on the Indian species of Canarium. During the year also the fourth volume of the Annals of the Garden was published, the whole volume being occupied by a monograph by myself of the Indian species of Anonaceæ. Prefixed to the volume is a biography (with portrait) of Colonel Robert Kyd, the founder of the garden, who died a hundred years ago.

6. Library.—A small number of books were acquired by purchase, and a few were received as a donation from the Royal Garden, Kew, while many volumes were re-bound.

7. Interchange of plants and seeds.—In appendices I to IV will be found full details of the receipts and issues both of plants and of seeds. The totals of these are as follows:—

Plants—Received 18,403; issued 58,512;
Seeds—Packets received 858; issued 2,625.

As the lists show, the issues were chiefly for public purposes.

8. Lloyd Botanic Garden, Darjeeling.—This garden was, during the entire year, under the charge of Mr. W. A. Kennedy, who not only kept it in excellent condition during the year, but who also superintended the planting and conservation of trees by various roadsides and in odd corners in many parts of the station.

9. For both gardens the budget allotments of funds were spent in full, as was also an additional grant of Rs. 5,000 made to the Calcutta Garden for road-making and other improvements. The revenue derived from the sale of surplus plants and seeds at the Calcutta Garden was Rs. 2,215-9-6, and that at Darjeeling Rs 877, both sums being slightly in excess of the estimates.

10. On his return from special duty on the enquiry into Ganja, Dr. Prain (whose health had been much impaired by his labours) went on three months' privilege leave. During the remaining six months of the year he performed the duties of Curator of the Herbarium with his accustomed energy and devotion. While Dr. Prain was absent on leave, Mr. G. A. Gammie, of the Cinchona Department, officiated as Curator of the Herbarium and worked with great assiduity. Mr. Gammie is already known to Government by the interesting botanical tour which he made two years ago in a previously very little known part of the Eastern Himalayan. Mr. R. L. Proudlock was Curator of the Garden during the year and did excellent service. Mr. G. T. Lane, the Assistant Curator, also worked most cheerfully. Towards the close of the year the staff was recruited by the arrival from Kew of Mr. Davies. Mr. Kennedy was in charge of the Darjeeling Garden during the year and worked to my satisfaction, as did also Babu Gopal Chandra Datta and the other members of the Garden, office and out-door staff.

11. In the six appendices which accompany this report will be found full details of all receipts and issues for the nursery, seed-house and Herbarium.

Explanation.—... indicates that no rain has fallen. If the return for any day has not been received, the corresponding space is left blank. If any of the returns are wanting the corresponding spaces in the total rainfall columns are left blank. With reference to the column of rainy days, the definition of a rainy day is when at least 0·10 inch of rain has fallen.

CALCUTTA, the 19*th June* 1894.

SUMMARY OF THE METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN BENGAL, AND OF THE METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN ASSAM, FOR THE WEEK ENDING 8 A.M., SATURDAY, THE 16TH OF JUNE 1894.

At the close of the previous week the monsoon current in the Bay of Bengal had been advancing steadily northwards, and had passed over Burma. It was also creeping up the east coast of the Bay, and may have been already beginning to affect slightly the south-eastern districts of Bengal and Assam, and, on the last day of the week rather heavy and general rain had been reported in South-East Bengal. Over the remainder of Bengal conditions were a little disturbed, and local storms or nor'westers with rain were rather numerous. On the 10th of June, or the first day of the present week, conditions were to a great extent unchanged, except that an increase of pressure was reported at the north-western and north-eastern stations, while a fall was reported elsewhere. A slight low-pressure area existed on this day to the west of Orissa, and this gave rather disturbed weather on the 10th over that area and to the surrounding districts, and on the morning of the 11th, in addition to the fairly general rain which was falling in the east and north-east of the province, fairly general rain was also reported in the western and south-western districts, though the rain fell usually during thunderstorms. Pressure had also fallen in Orissa and at some of the South Bengal stations on the 11th, though elsewhere it had risen, and the pressure distribution was still a little irregular, as pressure was low in Orissa. On the 12th instant pressure fell rapidly over the whole province, the fall usually equalling an eighth of an inch, and a distinct low-pressure area commenced to develop in South-East Bengal and over the neighbouring parts of the Bay. At the same time the monsoon current in the Bay began to strengthen, and squally weather was reported in the north-east of the Bay. During the next 24 hours this depression concentrated and intensified very rapidly, and became a small cyclonic storm with a centre in the north-east angle of the Bay, not far from Chittagong. Pressure on the 13th had fallen at Chittagong by no less than 0·218", and the reading was only 29·353", or nearly a quarter of an inch below the normal. With the formation of the small storm weather became very squally over the north of the Bay, and rather strong winds set in from Akyab northwards. With the formation of the storm unsettled rainy weather also immediately commenced over practically the whole province. The small storm did not, however, remain stationary after its formation, but during the evening of the 13th it began to move in a north-westerly direction, filling up partially in its advance. On the morning of the 14th the small storm was very clearly defined between Jessore and Faridpur, and nearer the latter station than the former, but pressure on this day was only 0·15" below the normal at Jessore and 0·212" below it at Faridpur, so the small storm had filled up to a certain extent. In its advance inland it brought up with it a heavy wave of monsoon winds, and hence on the 14th rain was reported from practically all the stations in the province. On the 15th the small storm had moved away from the centre of the province, and a low-pressure area with an irregular cyclonic circulation of winds was indicated in the south of Chota Nagpur close to Chaibassa. This was clearly the same storm that had been near Faridpur on the 14th, and hence its line of advance must have been distinctly to the west of south, or almost west-south-westerly from the 14th to the 15th This is a most unusual direction, and there are only a few cases on record where storms in the rains in India have moved in a decidedly southerly direction. In its movement across Bengal the storm again gave moderate to heavy general rain. On the 16th the small storm had again moved away in a westerly direction, and had ceased to affect the province, and in the rear of the storm pressure was rising very rapidly over the whole of Bengal. A moderate monsoon flowed in over the province after the storm, and again general rain was reported on the 16th.

Hence the principal features in the meteorology of the week have been the formation of the small storm in front of the advancing south-west monsoon current, and its advance in a westerly direction across the province. This storm has therefore clearly caused the setting in of the monsoon rains, which may be said to have commenced over the province on the 13th and 14th instant.

Pressure.—The mean pressure for the week has only varied from the normal by small amounts. At those stations which were directly affected by the small storm pressure has been slightly below the normal, but over the remainder of the province very slight excess pressures have usually been recorded. The variations are usually not more than two or three hundredths of an inch, and thus Chittagong shows a defect of 0·03", while Purnea and Dhubri show an equal excess.

Temperature.—The mean temperature for the week has been distinctly below the normal in all districts except North Bengal and Assam, where an excess of from 1° to 1·7° has been recorded. The defect in East Bengal has been small, having been rather less than a degree, but over the remainder of the province the defect has equalled about two to three degrees. For the whole of Bengal the temperature variation for the week has been a defect of 1·5°.

Rainfall.—Average falls of from two to four inches have been received in all divisions except North Bengal, which has received the small amount of 0·76 inch. The falls have been largely above the usual amounts in South-West Bengal, Orissa and Chota Nagpur, and about normal in Bihar, but in East and North Bengal large defects have been recorded, the fall in East Bengal only equalling about three-fifths of the usual amount, while in North Bengal the actual fall is only about a sixth of the normal.

The following table gives the summary of the temperature and rainfall data of each of the six meteorological divisions of the province for the week ending Saturday, the 16th of June 1894:—

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard, Newman's No. 86, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The directions and the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

Uniform system of buoyage.

THE following Notice to Mariners (No. 234 of 1894), issued by the British Admiralty, is republished :—

The following uniform system of buoyage was adopted for Indian waters in 1892, and the Government of India has given notices that it has since been carried out at the undermentioned ports, viz., Karachi, Bombay harbour, Madras harbour, Balasor river, Akyab harbour, Bassein river, and Rangoon river.

The system is as follows:—

1. The Mariner, when approaching the coast, must determine his position on the chart, and must note the direction of the main stream of flood-tide.

2. The term Starboard Hand shall denote that side which would be on the right hand of the Mariner, either going with the main stream of flood, or entering a harbour, river, or estuary from seaward; the term Port Hand shall denote the left hand of the Mariner under the same circumstances.

3. Buoys showing the pointed top of a cone above water shall be called Conical, and shall always be Starboard Hand buoys, as above defined.

4. Buoys showing a flat top above water shall be called Can, and shall always be Port Hand buoys, as above defined.

5. Buoys showing a domed top above water shall be called Spherical, and shall mark the ends of Middle Grounds.

6. Buoys having a tall central structure on a broad base shall be called Pillar buoys, and like other special buoys, such as Bell buoys, Gas buoys, Automatic Sounding buoys, etc., etc., shall be placed to mark special positions, either on the coast or in the approaches to harbours, &c.

7. Buoys showing only a mast above water shall be called Spar buoys.

8. Starboard Hand buoys shall always be painted a single red colour.

9. Port Hand buoys shall be painted of another characteristic colour, either black or parti-colour.

10. Spherical buoys at the ends of Middle Grounds shall always be distinguished by horizontal stripes of white colour.

11. Surmounting topmarks, such as staff and cone, &c., shall always be painted of one dark colour.

12. Staff and Cone shall only be used on Starboard Hand buoys; Staff and Cylinder on Port Hand; Globes at the outer ends of Middle Grounds; and Half Globes, round part uppermost, at the inner ends.

13. Buoys on the same side of a channel, estuary or tideway, may be distinguished from each other by names of consecutive numbers or letters, commencing from seaward, and when necessary by a staff surmounted by the appropriate top mrk.

14. Fairway buoys shall always be painted in horizontal tripes of white colour, and shall be surmounted by a staff only.

15. Buoys intended for mooring, etc., may be of shape or colour according to the discretion of the authority within whose jurisdiction they are laid, but for marking Submarine Telegraph Cables the colour shall be green with the word Telegraph painted thereon in white letters.

Buoying and marking of Wrecks :—

16. Wreck buoys in the open sea, or in the approaches to a harbour, or estuary, shall be coloured green, with the word Wreck painted in white letters on them.

17. When possible the buoy shall be laid near to the side of the wreck next to mid-channel.

18. When a wreck-marking vessel is used, it shall, if possible, have its top-sides coloured green, with the word Wreck in white letters thereon, and shall exhibit :—

By day—Three balls on a yard 20 feet above the sea, two placed vertically at one end, and one at the other, the single ball being on the side nearest to the wreck.

By night—Three fixed white lights, similarly arranged, but not the ordinary riding light.

19. In narrow waters, or in rivers, harbours, &c., under the jurisdiction of local authorities, the same rules may be adopted, or, at discretion, varied as follows :—

When a wreck-marking vessel is used, she shall carry a yard on a mast, with two balls by day, placed horizontally, not less than 6 nor more than 12 feet apart, and two lights by night, similarly placed.

When a barge or boat only is used a flag or ball may be shown in the day-time.

The position in which the marking vessel is placed, with reference to the wreck, shall be at the discretion of the local authority having jurisdiction.

Special Notices to Mariners, Nos. 267 and 562 of 1892, and Nos. 86, 87, and 264 of 1893, have already been given for Karachi, Bombay, Akyab, Bassein and Rangoon.

RESOLUTION ON THE REPORT ON THE LEGAL AFFAIRS OF THE GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL FOR THE YEAR 1893-94.

RESOLUTION No. 1058J.—D.

The report on the Legal Affairs of the Government of Bengal for the year 1893-94.

The Reports of the two previous years, and the orders of Government thereon.

Since the issue of the Resolution on last year's Report on the Legal Affairs of Government, it has been decided that the latest date for the submission of these reports to Government should be the 15th of May following the close of the financial year to which they relate. In accordance with this decision, the present report was due on the 15th May 1894, but it was not received in this office till the 25th of that month.

2. At the close of 1892-93 there was only one appeal case pending before the Privy Council, in which the Secretary of State was respondent. The case is still undecided. No fresh appeal case was instituted before the Privy Council during the year.

3. The results of Government litigation in the Civil Courts in Bengal during 1893-94 are compared with those of the two preceding years in the subjoined table:—

	Original cases.			Appeals. Before Lower Courts.			Appeals. Before High Court.			Total.

The percentage of original cases decided in favour of Government, including land acquisition cases, was 76·8, which is a better figure than either of the years 1891-92 and 1892-93. Excluding these cases, it was 72·2 against 73·6 in 1892-93; but if analogous cases in which Government was unsuccessful and which were governed by a single decision are taken as one, the percentage of Government success in the Courts of First Instance becomes 74·8. The results of Government litigation in the High Court and the Lower Appellate Courts show a decided improvement as compared with those of the two preceding years.

4. Of the 11 cases decided against Government by the High Court, in 6 it appeared as appellant, and in the remaining 5 as respondent. Of the 6 cases in which Government was appellant, three were appeals from original decrees, and the rest appeals from appellate decrees. The most important among the former was a case in which the sale of a taluk under the Revenue Sale law for a demand, a part of which only was revenue, was declared to be illegal and invalid. It was held that procedure should properly have been taken under the Public Demands Recovery Act, VII (B.C.) of 1880. The three second appeals arose out of certain settlement proceedings, in which the question at issue was whether, in preparing a record of rights under section 102 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, a Revenue Officer is competent to determine the validity of rent-free titles set up by persons occupying lands within the area under enquiry, so as to resume such lands and to declare them liable to settlement of rent. The question was decided in the negative by a Full Bench of the High Court. Of the five cases decided by the High Court against Government as respondent, two were for the recovery of fractional shares of surplus sale proceeds of estates sold for arrears of revenue, in which the decision was based on the Full Bench ruling in the case of Secretary of State versus Guru Proshad Dhur, I. L. Reports, 20 Cal, 51; one was for khas possession of a certain share of a taluk by adverse possession of more than 60 years, and the remaining two were cases under the Land Acquisition Act. There was only one important case decided against Government in the Lower Appellate Courts, in which it was decided that the Tirhut State Railway was liable to pay damages for goods, even though the servant of the consignor had signed a risk-note. Of the cases in the Courts of First Instance in which Government was unsuccessful, many were for possession of lands formed by alluvion, setting aside the settlements made by the Deara authorities, and none were of special interest or importance.

5. The following statement shows the results of Court of Wards' litigation during the last three years in all Courts:—

	1891-92.	1892-93.	1893-94.
1	2	3	4
Decided in favour of Court of Wards ...	903	654	1,322
Decided against Court of Wards	139	73	140
Compromised, remanded or withdrawn ...	76	66	55
Percentage in favour of Court of Wards ...	86·6	89·9	90·4

The increase in the number of cases decided during the year is attributed to the institution of a large number of rent suits on behalf of the Burdwan Raj estate and the Dighapatia and Khagra estates in the districts of Burdwan, Hooghly and Bankura, Jessore, and Pabna and Purnea, respectively. In the only case decided by the High Court against the Court of Wards as appellant, viz., that of Tikari estate versus Raghunandan Persad Singh, it was held that all impositions upon tenants under the denomination of abwabs and other like appellations in addition to actual rent are illegal, and all stipulations and reservations to pay the same are void. Out of 108 cases decided against the Court of Wards in the Courts of First Instance, only 11 were of the nature of civil suits: the remainder were rent cases with a small number of bond suits which, under the Civil Suit Rules, are not reported to the Legal Remembrancer.

6. The following figures show the extent to which decretal amounts due to Government have been realized:—

	1891-92.	1892-93.	1893-94.
1	2	3	4
	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
1. Amount under realization	64,248	42,617	47,190
2. „ realized during the year ...	30,333	12,616	8,943
3. Percentage of recovery ...	45·25	29·5	18·95

The net outstanding balance at the close of the year was Rs. 37,154. The poor realization made during the year is said to have been due to the want of zeal on the part of the subordinate collecting agency added to the inherent difficulty of the task of finding out properties belonging to judgment-debtors which are very easily concealed or placed beyond the reach of attachment. The heaviest outstanding balances were in the marginally-noted districts. The large balance in the Sonthal Parganas is on account of a High Court decree obtained during the year.

	Rs.
Hooghly ...	1,778
Faridpur ...	4,090
Saran ...	2,075
Sonthal Parganas ...	14,080

7. The following table shows the amount of Wards' decrees realized during the year as compared with the two preceding years:—

	1891-92.	1892-93.	1893-94.
1	2	3	4
	Rs.	Rs.	Rs
1. Amount under realization	10,95,704	9,83,675	10,80,794
2. „ realized during the year ...	2,30,997	1,59,690	2,00,671
3. Percentage of recovery	21·07	16·25	18·56

This table does not include the decrees of 14 estates under the management of the Court of Wards, the figures relating to which had not been received by the Legal Remembrancer at the time of the submission of his report. The percentage of recovery of Wards' decrees during 1893-94 shows some improvement as compared with the preceding year; but the Lieutenant-Governor notices that the outstanding balance still remains excessive in spite of the large remission made during the year. In some estates there have been no realizations, and in many the amount recovered is small as compared with the outstanding balance. Thus, in the Moheshpore estate in Midnapore, out of Rs. 73,491 due to the estate, nothing was realized during the year. In the Tikari estate, out of Rs. 2,71,771 due to the estate, only Rs. 41,390 were realized. In the Burdwan Raj estate, out of Rs. 1,91,390 due, Rs. 95,953 were realized and a large sum is said to be not yet under execution. The results appear to the Lieutenant-Governor to be very unsatisfactory, and the attention of the Board of Revenue will be invited to the matter.

ORDER—Ordered that a copy of the Resolution be forwarded to the Superintendent and Remembrancer of Legal Affairs and the Solicitor to Government for information.

Ordered also, that a copy of the Resolution be forwarded to the Revenue Department of this Government and to the Board of Revenue for information.

Ordered also, that a copy of the Report and Resolution be submitted to the Government of India in the Home Department for information.

Ordered also, that a copy of the Resolution be published in the Calcutta Gazette.

Chief Secretary to the Govt. of Bengal.

RESOLUTION ON THE ANNUAL REPORT ON EMIGRATION FROM THE PORT OF CALCUTTA TO BRITISH AND FOREIGN COLONIES FOR 1893.

GENERAL DEPARTMENT—EMIGRATION

Darjeeling, the 23rd June 1894.

RESOLUTION No. 85T G.

READ—

The Annual Report on Emigration from the Port of Calcutta to British and Foreign Colonies for the year 1893.

This Report was punctually submitted by Dr. R. Macleod, who acted as Protector of Emigrants throughout the year, with the exception of a short period during which he was absent on leave and Dr. W. Forsyth acted for him. The Report follows the usual lines, and is illustrated by two maps indicating, by means of different shades of colour, the proportion which emigrants to the Colonies bear to the resident population, first, with reference to the native districts of the emigrants; and secondly, with reference to the districts in which they were registered.

Administrative measures.

2. Some amendments were made during the year in the rules issued under the Colonial Emigration Act, XXI of 1883, and, among other changes, a revised scale of the medicines and medical comforts, miscellaneous medical stores, and other stores with which emigrant vessels must be provided, was adopted and enforced.

Requisitions and despatch of emigrants.

3. Eight agencies, including seven British and one Dutch, were engaged during the year in collecting and despatching labourers to the Colonies, against five in the previous year. Nevertheless the number of adult labourers indented for suffered a further slight reduction from 10,558 in 1892 to 10,510 in 1893. The requisitions made by the Colonies were as follows:—

	Indented for.	Supplied.
Demerara	5,450	4,959½
Trinidad	1,800	1,807
St. Lucia	150	150
Jamaica	472	469½
Mauritius	465	350
Natal	361	547½
Fiji	700	750
Surinam	1,112	*1,034½
Total ...	10,510	10,068

In respect of four Colonies the supply was equal to or greater than the demand, while the deficiencies in the cases of British and Dutch Guiana were more than made good early in the present year. The deficiency in the case of Jamaica was trifling, but in that of Mauritius was relatively large, a fact which may be explained by the amount of the average savings per emigrant brought back from the different Colonies, which is far the smallest in the case of Mauritius. No emigrants were required by the Colonies of Nevis, St. Kitts, St. Vincent, and Grenada, and none were supplied to the French Colonies.

Recruiting operations.

4. Eight hundred and sixty-six recruiting licenses (of which six were subsequently cancelled for misconduct on the part of the holders) were granted during the year, against 857 (of which two were cancelled) in 1892. It is reported that recruiters are licensed to collect labourers for more than one Colony, and that they supply the requirements of each in succession. To this arrangement, so long as it is carried out with the consent of the different Agencies concerned, there appears to be no objection.

The total number of intending emigrants registered was 15,046 against 17,225 in the previous year. Of this number 4,682, or 31 per cent., were registered in Bengal and Bihar, and 10,364, or 69 per cent., in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, against 30 per cent. and 70 per cent. respectively in 1892. These figures point to a development of the tendency to recruit emigrants in the Lower Provinces, which was noticed in the Resolution recorded last year. A further development is the increase in the number registered in Bengal, which rose from 2,126 in 1892 to 2,520, and is accompanied by a more than corresponding decrease in the number registered in Bihar, which fell from 3,012 to 2,162. Of those registered in Bengal, 2,445 were registered in the 24-Parganas, Howrah and Burdwan, though only 57 of them were natives of these districts. These figures suggest the inference that the depôts for free emigrants established by contractors working outside the provisions of the Assam Labour and Emigration Act were largely resorted to, and indicate the method in which the greater part of the labour required may at some future time be obtained, if the practice receives no check. In respect of the number of registrations, the district of the 24-Parganas stands first, closely followed by Cawnpur, Fyzabad, and Benares, and at some little distance by Shahabad, all of which show over 1,000 registrations, while Allahabad, Ghazipur, Lucknow, Gorakhpur and Burdwan come next with over 500. If regard is had to the native districts of the intending emigrants, then Basti, Azamgarh, Gonda, and Shahabad head the list followed by Ghazipur, Fyzabad, Jaunpur, and Gorakhpur. The following table compares the Province of registration with that of birth as declared by the emigrants:—

		Bengal.	Bihar.	North-Western Provinces.	Oudh.
1		2	3	4	5
Number registered in ...	1892	2,126	3,012	9,212	2,875
	1893	2,520	2,162	7,463	2,901
Number who declared themselves to be natives of.	1892	2,743		14,028
	1893	2,649		11,791

Of the 606 emigrants whose Province of birth is not given in the above table, 372 appear to have been born in the Native States and 130 in the Punjab; the remainder include five natives of Demerara and one of Singapore.

History of intending emigrants subsequent to registration.

5. If to the number of intending emigrants registered during the year is added the number remaining in the mufassal sub-depôts at the close of the previous year, the total number to be accounted for amounts to 15,136. From this number a large deduction must be made on account of those subsequently rejected as unfit to proceed. One thousand four hundred and sixty-four or 9·6 per cent., against 7·9 per cent. in 1892, were so rejected before being despatched to the depôts at Garden Reach, and out of a total depôt population of 13,220 (including emigrants remaining over from the previous year and a few others) 1,079 were rejected on medical grounds, or 8·16 per cent. against 8·92 per cent. in the previous year. These results, though in the latter case a slight improvement is apparent in comparison with the previous year, indicate want of care in recruiting and inefficient medical examination before registration. It should be an especial object to reduce to the lowest limits possible the number whom it is necessary to reject after being brought to Calcutta, for while the rejected labourers are in that case put to much inconvenience, the needless expense of restoring them to distant homes is incurred by the Colonies concerned.

Attention, however, has already been directed to the point, and it is hoped that the measures which have recently been taken with the assistance of Government to ensure a stricter medical examination of intending emigrants in the first instance will prove effectual.

The case of labourers who desert after being registered, or who are released as being unwilling to proceed, is analogous, in so far as it may be attributed to the fact that their consent having been unwillingly given they should not have been recruited, or to the fact that they were not properly questioned at the time of registration. So many as 381 emigrants or 2·47 per cent. of those registered deserted before arrival at the depôts against 464 or 2·69 per cent. in 1892, and 81 were released as unwilling to proceed against 55. Subsequently 159 deserted from the depôts, and 101 were released against 211 and 104 in 1892.

The number of emigrants who arrived at the depôts was 12,264; prior to this seven deaths occurred against six in 1892. The remainder (including those who were rejected or were released or deserted) are satisfactorily accounted for, with the exception of 345 against 584 similarly unaccounted for in 1892. The introduction of sub-depôt registers during the year, which was mentioned in last year's Resolution, will no doubt effect still further improvement in this respect, and in fact if these registers are properly maintained, there would seem to be no reason why a complete record should not exist, showing the history of every intending emigrant subsequent to registration.

Sanitation and management of the depôts.

6. The report of the Medical Inspector of Emigrants, Surgeon Lieutenant-Colonel R. L. Dutt, shows that a remarkably high standard has been reached in the general arrangements, sanitation and management of the Calcutta depôts, and the Lieutenant-Governor regards the excellent results obtained in the past year as extremely creditable to all concerned. Out of a total strength of 13,220 emigrants, the small number of 359 or 2·71 per cent. were admitted into hospital, and only 14 or 0·10 per cent. died, figures which Mr. Dutt describes as incredibly low, regard being had to the fact that malarious fever was exceptionally prevalent in the neighbourhood. In 1892 the percentages of sickness and mortality were 4·44 and 0·37, and in 1891 they were 4·67 and 0·66 respectively. The improvement therefore is progressive, and indicates the continuous attention paid to drainage, water-supply and conservancy. Of the 14 deaths which occurred during the year, one was due to measles, three to fever, four to chest diseases, one to cholera, and five to other causes. The following remarks of the Medical Inspector in connection with the decrease of cholera are interesting, and may be regarded as a tribute to the excellence of the Calcutta water-supply:—

"Cholera.—Since the depôts were connected with the Calcutta water-supply, cholera has become a rare disease among emigrants. Up to the year 1891 several depôts were supplied with tank or river water after filtration for drinking purposes. Cholera was a frequent visitor previous to 1892.

"In 1891 there were 31 cases with 18 deaths. In 1892, when all the depôts were connected with the Calcutta main, the disease considerably abated. Only eight cases occurred with six deaths. In the year under report, when the emigrants had the Calcutta filtered water throughout the year, the number of cases has been only two with one death. One case occurred in the Fiji depôt on the 14th January last and recovered, and the other in the Demerara depôt, which proved fatal."

Embarkation.

7. The number of emigrants who embarked for the colonies during the year was 10,674, distributed between 20 vessels, of which 17 were sailing ships and 3 steamers, being an average of 533 persons for each vessel. The results of two voyages have not yet been reported, but the number of deaths which occurred in the 18 vessels which have sent in their papers was 121, being 1·27 per cent. of the number on board, while in the previous year the percentage was 1·31 in the course of 20 voyages. The steamers chartered for the conveyance of emigrants were the Pongola, the Congella and the Warora, of which the two former were in the trade in 1892. From the point of view of the health of emigrants, statistics are in favour of steamers as opposed to sailing ships: no deaths occurring on board the Pongola or the Warora, and only one on the Congella. This is partly because the duration of the voyage in the case of steamers is considerably shorter, the average being 22 days against 92 days in the case of sailing ships. The ship Volga was wrecked during the year at the mouth of Castries Harbour, but the emigrants and crew were rescued without loss of life. The Lieutenant-Governor notices with satisfaction that no vessel was detained on account of an epidemic of disease during the year.

Return emigrants.

8. Five thousand one hundred and seventy-three emigrants were reshipped from the various colonies in 6 sailing vessels and 10 steamers, as against 5,225 emigrants re-shipped in 8 sailing ships and 8 steamers in 1892. The number of steamers employed for the purpose has therefore increased, and it is noticeable that while only three steamers were chartered to convey out-going emigrants, 10 steamers were engaged in bringing emigrants back. The number of deaths (excluding the mortality among infants born on the voyage) was 88 or 1·70 per cent. against 87 or 1·66 per cent. in the previous year. In neither case can the percentage be regarded as high, looking to the fact that a certain proportion of the returning emigrants are advanced in age and enfeebled in health. Including the mortality among infants born on the voyage, the number of deaths was 91, and of these 19 occurred in steamers and 72 in sailing vessels, the ratio of deaths to the total number on board being 1·35 and 1·9 respectively. The average duration of the voyage in the case of steamers was 32 days and in the case of sailing vessels 143 days. The savings brought back averaged nearly Rs. 140 per emigrant embarked, against Rs. 156 in 1892, and Rs. 138 in 1891. The largest average, amounting to Rs. 297 per head, was shown by Natal, and the smallest, as in the previous year, by Mauritius. The number of return emigrants who went back to the colonies was 776 against 551 in 1892, and in both years the greater number selected Demerara and Trinidad.

Administration of estates.

9. The estates of deceased emigrants which came under the administration of the Protector were in 1893, 526 valued at Rs. 77,200-8-11, against 500 valued at Rs. 70,384-1-3 in 1892. Enquiries were completed in respect of 293, valued at Rs. 45,305-12, leaving a balance of 233, valued at Rs. 31,894-12-11, in respect of which enquiries were in progress at the close of the year. The Protector reports that a sum of Rs. 6,650 standing at the credit of 56 estates lapsed to the Indian or Colonial Governments, owing in some cases to the absence of heirs, and in others to inability to trace them, due to the falsified particulars furnished by their emigrant relatives at registration. This is an important fact in weighing the merits of free as compared with registered emigration, for it appears that the mere fact of registration does not furnish an effectual security that the identity of an emigrant or his correct address has been ascertained before he leaves his native country. The Lieutenant-Governor is gratified to learn that the Colonial authorities more generally recognize the importance of instituting prompt inquiries for persons who are legally entitled to succeed to the estates of deceased emigrants, and trusts that the subject may continue to receive attention at their hands.

Financial.

10. The receipts derived from the consolidated fee of Rs. 3 per head on each emigrant embarked fell from Rs. 35,272-4 to Rs. 30,270, a result due to the smaller number of emigrants embarked and to the fact that the fees payable on account of 584 emigrants despatched by the ship Bann, which left the Port of Calcutta on the 24th December 1893, were not realized till the following January. The expenditure increased from Rs. 29,617 in 1892 to Rs. 31,753 in 1893, and the year closed with a deficit of Rs. 1,483, against a surplus of Rs. 5,656 in 1892. The increased charges occur principally under the head Pay and Allowance of Emigration officers and have not been explained.

11. The Lieutenant-Governor desires to record his satisfaction with the general results of the year's operations, and his acknowledgments are due not only for the efficient manner in which Dr. Macleod and Surgeon Lieutenant-Colonel R. L. Dutt performed their duties, but also for the valuable assistance rendered to these officers by the Emigration Agents.

ORDER.—Ordered that a copy of the Report and of this Resolution be submitted to the Government of India, Revenue and Agricultural Department, for information.

Ordered also that a copy be forwarded to the Protector of Emigrants, Calcutta, for information, and to all Commissioners of Divisions for information and circulation to all District Officers subordinate to them.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

C. E. BUCKLAND,

Secretary to the Govt. of Bengal.

RESOLUTION ON THE REPORT ON CALCUTTA MEDICAL INSTITUTIONS FOR THE YEAR 1893.

MUNICIPAL DEPARTMENT—MEDICAL.

Darjeeling, the 25th June 1894.

RESOLUTION—No. 2613Medl.

READ—

The Report on the Calcutta Medical Institutions for the year 1893.

Read also—

The Report for the year 1892, and the Resolution recorded upon it.

Judged by the statistics contained in the report, the health of Howrah and of the town portion of Calcutta was much better in 1893 than in the previous year; and the rate of mortality in both places (21·4 and 25·9, per mille respectively against 23·7 and 27·1 in 1892) was remarkably low. The area added to the Municipality of Calcutta by Bengal Act II of 1888 was not, however, so healthy, and the death-rate in that locality rose from 34·8 to 37·1 per mille. The mortality from cholera shows a considerable decrease in all three areas, and in Calcutta it was the lowest known during the last ten years. On the other hand, the death rate from fever was above the average, and out of a total of 22,610 deaths registered during the year, 9,067 were ascribed to this cause. The prevalence of fever is said to have been due to excessive and prolonged rainfall amounting to 85·2 inches, against 46·6 in the previous year, which favoured the development of bacillus malariæ. Naturally the death-rate from fever in the Suburban area, which is still very imperfectly drained, was higher than in Howrah or the Town of Calcutta. Bowel-complaints caused a larger number of deaths than in the previous year. Small-pox shows a slight increase in Howrah and the amalgamated area; but there were only 39 deaths in all. The mortality from other causes shows a slight falling off in Calcutta, but in Howrah and the Suburbs there is a slight increase.

2. The following table gives the number of in-door and out-door patients treated in the several hospitals in the metropolis during the past two years:—

3. The above figures show a satisfactory increase of 25,287 in the number of out-door patients treated and of 155 in their daily average attendance. This increase is distributed over all the institutions, excepting the Medical College Hospital, the Chandney Hospital, and the Howrah General Hospital, and is said to be due partly to the inclusion for the first time of the statistics of the Dufferin Victoria Hospital, and partly to the increased prevalence of fever and bowel-complaints, while it certainly points to the growing popularity of the out-door departments of the several institutions. The out-door ward of the Campbell Hospital, opened in January 1892, to the efficiency of which the Inspector-General of Civil Hospitals bears testimony, has drawn away some of the patients who used formerly to attend the Medical College Hospital, but the decrease of 569 in the attendance at that institution was due to a temporary cause only. The decrease in the Howrah General Hospital was very small, while that in the Chandney Hospital was due to the fact that the admissions in the previous year had been abnormally large, owing to a severe epidemic of influenza in that neighbourhood.

4. The total number of in-door patients rose from 25,211 to 26,058. The increase occurred chiefly in the Police Hospital, the Campbell Hospital, and the Mayo Hospital, and is attributed to climatic causes, and to the high prices of food which tell chiefly on the poorer classes. Moreover, the Mayo Hospital was open for the whole of 1893, whereas it was closed for two months in 1892, and the figures for the Dufferin Hospital for women have been included for the first time. The large decrease in the Presidency and Howrah General Hospitals, which is observed chiefly in the numbers of Europeans, appears to be due to the better general health of the population in the port, since with a daily population in 1893, which was only $2\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. below that of 1892, the admissions to hospital were 25 per cent. less than in the former year.

5. Of the total number of patients, both in-door and out-door, treated in all the hospitals, 167,092 were adult males, 45,290 adult females, and 65,735 children. The corresponding figures for the previous year were 154,492, 37,707, and 59,784. There was thus an increase of 26,134 in the patients of both sexes. Of these patients, 49·06 per cent. were Hindus, next in order coming the Muhammadans, 32·61, the Eurasians 10·88, and the Europeans 3·002, The number of Europeans who sought relief in the hospitals fell from 9,233 to 8,351, owing partly to fewer sailors having visited the port, as has been stated, but chiefly to an improvement in their general health.

6. The death-rate among the inmates of the medical institutions was almost the same as that of the previous year, being 12·8, against 12·7 per cent. The proportion of deaths in the different hospitals, however, varies considerably, and the remarks of the Inspector-General of Civil Hospitals are so much to the point that they are quoted below:—

"Hospital statistics are the most misleading in the world, unless all the circumstances of each hospital are known. The nature and importance of the cases treated, the proportion of medical to surgical cases, the condition of the patients on admission, the admission or exclusion of particular diseases such as the exanthematous fevers, venereal diseases, eye cases, &c., are all important factors in the death-rate. Some of the finest and best managed modern hospitals have very high death-rates, and some of the worst and oldest, low ones; but the first take in by preference all cases whose need is greatest, while the others exclude all infectious or apparently moribund cases. At Sealdah and Howrah no patients are refused, and large numbers of dying persons picked up by the police are brought to each, while the majority of the patients are of the very poorest classes, living under the worst sanitary conditions. At the Chandney Hospital very few moribunds are admitted, and many of the in-patients are persons suffering from slight injuries. The female patients at the Presidency General Hospital are for the most part Europeans and Eurasians in fairly easy circumstances, admitting of no comparison with those treated at Sealdah or Howrah."

The mortality among adult males increased from 11·94 to 12·07, and that among female children from 9 81 to 14·78. An increase in the figures at Howrah is due to a great influx of pilgrims returning from Puri, many of whom were moribund from dysentery and diarrhœa when admitted.

7. The number of small-pox cases in Calcutta, all of which are now sent to the small-pox wards of the Campbell Hospital at Sealdah, rose from 35 to 49, of which 13 proved fatal, giving a death-rate of 26·53. It is noticeable that in only 13 of these cases were the patients said to have been vaccinated, and in 9 of them the vaccinal scars were indistinct. Among those who had been vaccinated, but who bore only indistinct marks of the operation, there were three deaths. Dr. Harvey remarks that "the mere operation of vaccination conveys no protection against small-pox unless it produces the disease vaccinia, and unless this is allowed to run its course to maturity. Vaccination with bad lymph or destruction of the vesicles by the application of mud, turmeric or other drugs—a practice common in this country—is followed by no security." The Lieutenant-Governor has no doubt that much of the dislike to vaccination felt by the public is due to the use of imperfect lymph or to the improper performance of the operation, and the Sanitary Commissioner will be requested to communicate to his subordinates the remarks of the Inspector-General of Civil Hospitals on the subject.

8. The number of admissions to hospital for cholera decreased in proportion to the relative prevalence of the disease among the general population of the town, but the percentage of death among the patients admitted was rather high, being 55·9. The death-rate among Europeans and Eurasians was 57·14, and among other classes 55·85. There were 10 cases of cholera among patients under treatment for other diseases. Eight of these occurred in the Howrah General Hospital, and are attributed to the insanitary condition of the town, and to the impurity of the water: it is very significant that with the exception of two cases in the Campbell Hospital for which no cause is assigned, no case originated in any Calcutta hospital, all of which enjoy a supply of pure water. In paragraph 11 of the report, Dr. Harvey has referred to the system of protective inoculation against cholera introduced by Professor Haffkine of the Pasteur Institute of Paris, and expressed his own views on its efficacy. His approval of the system should be noted, and efforts should be made to collect statistics as to the immunity afforded by the operation. An interesting report has recently been submitted by Dr. Simpson, the Health Officer of Calcutta, dealing with certain cases of immunity apparently due to this system of inoculation. The matter well deserves further investigation.

9. There was a large increase in the cases of dysentery and diarrhœa, and the proportion of deaths from these diseases was very high in all the institutions excepting the Police Hospital, where there were only 5 deaths from dysentery in 225 cases. It is, however, stated that a large number of these cases were examples of chronic and neglected disease admitted to hospital in a practically hopeless condition. The number of cases of malarial fever rose from 41,202 to 49,080, a result in keeping with the increased prevalence of the disease among the general population. The type of the disease is said to have been unusually severe, but the death-rate among the in-patients suffering from this disease was lower than during 1892. The total number of persons treated for venereal diseases was 14,483, against 13,072 in 1892, showing an increase of 1,411 cases, of which no less than 1,043 were cases of primary and secondary syphilis—the worst forms of venereal disease. The number of in-door patients admitted for these diseases, however, fell from 1,846 to 1,751, and there were only 2 deaths against 14 in the previous year. The disease is said to have been less prevalent among the European garrison. Admissions for leprosy show a reduction from 94 to 32, but all the patients admitted were at an advanced stage of the disease, and 10 of them died, giving a death-rate of 31·25 per cent. The largest number of these cases was treated at the Campbell Hospital, but some of them also found admission into the Presidency and Howrah General Hospitals and the Medical College Hospital. The Inspector-General of Civil Hospitals again brings to notice the natural disinclination to admit these cases into a public hospital unless they are in urgent need of help, and the Lieutenant-Governor thinks that all leprosy cases in Calcutta should be sent to the Leper asylum. This point will be considered in dealing with the question of increased accommodation required for that institution. There were 17 cases of enteric fever, against 12 in the previous year, and 12 of these patients were Europeans, among whom there were 5 deaths. The admissions for remittent fever show a little diminution, being 1,184 against 1,215 in 1892, and the rate of mortality was 29·05.

10. The total number of major operations amounted to 3,339, and death ensued in 110 cases, against 3,403 operations with 134 deaths in the previous year, the percentage of deaths being 3·15 against 3·78. This death-rate cannot, however, be fairly compared with that of the previous year, as many cases which were formerly classed as minor operations have now been included in the category of major operations. The hospitals in which the largest amount of general and important surgical work is done are the Medical College and the Mayo Hospitals, while the operations at the Eden and Shama Charan Law Hospitals are equally important, but of a more special character. The largest number of operations was performed at the Medical College Hospital, where the year has been one of great surgical activity, with very satisfactory results: the death-rate in amputation cases shows a noticeable improvement. The major operations performed at the Campbell and the Mayo Hospitals were also numerous, and gave a low rate of mortality, but at the former institution, beyond the amputation cases, there were very few really important operations, and the students of the Medical School at Sealdah, unlike those at Patna, Dacca, and Cuttack, had very limited opportunities of acquiring a knowledge of the higher surgery. The Inspector-General of Civil Hospitals does not hope for any great improvement in this respect until a proper surgical ward has been provided: the construction of such a ward has now been sanctioned, and the work is being taken in hand during the current year. The statistics of the Dufferin Hospital for women have for the first time been included in this report, and show 12 major operations. Dr. Harvey passes a severe but not undeserved condemnation upon the situation and surroundings of this hospital: his remarks will be communicated to the Secretary to the Bengal Branch of the Lady Dufferin Fund. In the Howrah General Hospital the number of major operations fell from 230 to 116, but the number is said to have been abnormally large in 1892 owing to the number of operations on the eye performed by Surgeon-Major R. D. Murray, who had a special reputation in ophthalmic cases. It is, however, observed that this hospital has been deprived of credit for 47 operations for the setting of fractures which have not been included in the present classification, though this important operation involves as much anxious work as any surgical case. The total number of minor operations was 19,001 against 19,880, showing a reduction of 879 cases, but it is said that no record of the minor operations performed at the Eden Hospital was maintained, which makes these statistics incomplete and accounts for the falling off noticed above. The Inspector-General of Civil Hospitals has taken the necessary steps to provide against such omissions in future. The number of dental operations performed during the year was 2,468 against 2,744 in the previous year. The Eurasians again head the list of persons applying for dental relief, while the number of Europeans fell from 702 to 695.

11. The number of admissions into the Eden Hospital was 1,367 against 1,546 in the previous year. The decrease is said to be due to cases of minor importance having been treated in the out-door department, but the attendance in that department also shows a reduction. There was, however, an increase in the average daily number of inmates, which indicates that the cases treated were severe in nature, requiring a long stay at the hospital. The death-rate among Europeans was very high, being 8·40 per cent. against 3·36 in 1892, while that among Hindus and Muhammadans shows a reduction from 8·98 to 8·42 per cent. The percentage of deaths among other classes was 12·02. There were 573 confinement cases against 501 in 1892, of which 25 ended fatally against 26. The number of cases of septicæmia was the same as in the previous year, viz. 31, but there were fewer deaths. A proposal for the construction of a special ward for the treatment of this disease is under consideration: such a ward is much wanted, and it is hoped that it may soon be taken in hand. The Lieutenant-Governor observes again in the statistics of this hospital proof of the lamentable tendency of natives to delay the removal of a patient to the hospital till the case is almost hopeless, but he is glad to learn that the usefulness of the institution is increasing year by year. In this hospital, 337 major operations were performed, against 365 in 1892, and death followed in 31 cases.

12. The number of in-door patients treated in the Shama Charan Law Eye Infirmary was almost the same as in the previous year, but the increase of out-door patients noticed last year has not been maintained. Most of the operations performed in this hospital were extractions of the lens, and 70·98 per cent. of these operations were entirely successful.

13. The number of out-door patients treated in the Ezra Hospital rose by 383, but that of the in-door patients was very small, being 281 against 350 in the previous year; and out of 22 beds provided in the hospital, only 14 were constantly occupied, owing, it is said, to the admission being restricted to Jews to the exclusion of Parsis, Arabs, Armenians, &c., who have hitherto received admission to this institution more or less freely. The Lieutenant-Governor regrets that this fine hospital is not more used, and he desires that the terms under which the hospital was originally built and equipped should be acted up to, and the sick of all nationalities admitted when there is room for them owing to the absence of Jewish patients. If the Jewish community desire that admission to this hospital should be strictly confined to the Jews, the Lieutenant-Governor must ask the wealthy members of that community to support it more liberally. It appears that out of a total expenditure of Rs. 7,547 incurred in the hospital during 1893, only Rs. 936 was met from the endowments of the founder, and Government had to pay the balance.

14. Very great improvement is said to have been made in the nursing arrangements at the different hospitals. The Medical College, the Eden and the Presidency General Hospitals are all supplied with a number of trained nurses from the Hospital Nurses' Institution; but at the Eden Hospital the bulk of the work is said to be done by pupil nurses and pupil dhais, of whom there are 20 and 19 respectively, and the Inspector-General of Civil Hospitals justly remarks that the work of the probationers cannot have been as perfect as that of the trained nurses. During the year 14 pupil nurses and 9 pupil dhais passed out of the Eden Hospital.

15. The invested capital of the Calcutta hospitals shows an increase from Rs. 5,83,000 to Rs. 5,87,000, the increase being chiefly at the Howrah General Hospital. The following table compares the main heads of receipts and expenditure of all the hospitals in the metropolis:—

The difference between the closing balance of the previous year and the opening balance of the year under report, is explained by the inclusion of the figures of the Dufferin Victoria Hospital.

16. Excluding the opening balance, the income of the year rose from Rs. 4,83,559 to Rs. 4,91,364. The increase was large under the head of Local Funds, and is due to a larger receipt from the Hospital Port Dues Fund for the treatment of sick sailors. The receipts from paying patients also rose to the extent of Rs. 1,038. The cost to Government shows a reduction of Rs. 18,818. Subscriptions from Europeans, however, show a considerable decrease, while that from natives rose from Rs. 1,371 to Rs. 3,706. The total expenditure was Rs. 4,80,931, against Rs. 4,83,770 in the previous year. The decrease was chiefly under the head of Buildings and Repairs.

17. There was a little increase under the head of Establishment, both superior and inferior. The cause of this increase has not been explained, but in paragraphs 54 to 57 of the report, the Inspector-General of Civil Hospitals compares the cost of establishment on each patient treated in the different institutions, and shows that the cost was highest in the Presidency General Hospital owing, it is said, to the staff there comprising several highly paid commissioned medical officers, whose entire salary is debited to the hospital, whereas the salaries of most of the officers employed in the Medical College Hospital, are charged to the College. The variation in the cost of compounders and dressers is said to be due to a difference in book-keeping. The Inspector-General of Civil Hospitals should correct this difference by laying down a sufficient number of heads of expenditure, to which all the institutions should conform.

18. The cost of European medicines also shows an increase of Rs. 1,649, and the comparison instituted by the Inspector-General of Civil Hospitals of the cost per head in the different institutions shows that the cost was higher in the Presidency General Hospital than in the Medical College. The Superintendent is unable to account for this difference, but is convinced that the medicines have been actually used. Considering, however, the high cost of each European and native patient, the Inspector-General of Civil Hospitals thinks that there is room for economy in both these institutions, and the Lieutenant-Governor desires that this conclusion should be enforced as far as possible. The high figures in the Dufferin Hospital are said to be due to the purchase of medicines at a high price in the local market. This defect will be amended by the arrangements recently made for obtaining medicines from England at wholesale prices, and then distributing them to the different institutions according to their requirements.

19. The cost of diet also shows an increase, but the maximum rate fixed for European patients in Government order No. $\frac{1\cdot D}{24}$ 4, dated the 4th December 1890, has not been exceeded in any of the institutions except the Campbell Hospital, where small-pox patients are treated, and where the average cost of dieting such patients is not restricted to the above maximum. In the Mayo Hospital, which at one time enjoyed the reputation of being the most economically managed medical institution in Calcutta, the cost of diets for native patients in 1892 (3 annas 8½ pies) exceeded the maximum rate, and the cost in 1893 (annas 3 and 5 pies) is still above the maximum. The Lieutenant-Governor trusts that the Superintendent will devote special attention to the subject, and to Dr. Harvey's remarks in paragraph 60, and endeavour during the current year to win back for the hospital its old reputation.

20. The Lieutenant-Governor regrets that the projected Hospital for South Calcutta, from which he anticipates so much advantage to the sick poor, and the erection of which has more than once been urged by the Government of India, has not been begun during the year under review. Grave difficulties were met with in the selection of a site and in the provision of funds, but it is believed that the first of these has already been surmounted, and the Lieutenant-Governor expects that the improvement of the Provincial finances and the liberality of the Corporation of Calcutta will enable him to commence the building before the close of the current year.

21. Dr. Harvey remarks, in conclusion, that there has been a marked advance of recent years in the general efficiency of the Calcutta Medical Institutions; the work has been better done, material improvements have been introduced everywhere, the patients have been provided with greater comforts, the death-rate has been lowered, and the cost, both to Government and in general, has been diminished. This is valuable testimony from an officer who knows Calcutta well, and who has now returned to it after an absence of about three years. The thanks of the Lieutenant-Governor are due to Surgeon Colonel Harvey for his interesting review of the year's work and for the punctuality with which it has been submitted. The report is a little longer than that of last year, but there is nothing in it which is unnecessarily minute or which the Lieutenant-Governor would like to have had omitted: on the contrary, the addition of paragraphs 53 to 62, in which the proportionate cost of different branches of expenditure is worked out, has much enhanced its value. The Lieutenant-Governor also agrees in the remarks made by the Inspector-General of Civil Hospitals regarding the thorough efficiency of the staff employed in the different institutions, and concurs in the praise bestowed by him on the work done by the physicians at all the Calcutta hospitals—work which, though less striking to the imagination, is probably more important, and benefits a larger number of persons than the skilful feats of the surgeons.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

J. A. BOURDILLON,

Offg. Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

ADMINISTRATION REPORT OF THE BENGAL METEOROLOGICAL DEPARTMENT FOR THE YEAR 1893-94.

THE following is published for general information.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

C. E. BUCKLAND,

The 26th June, 1894. Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

THE Administration Report for the year 1893-94 is intended to give a brief statement of the more important events only of the year, for the full report giving details of the administration of the Department for the previous triennial period appeared last year, and the next full report will be due only in 1896.

2. From the 1st to the 26th of April 1893 the Department was under my control, when I availed myself of 2 months and 22 days' privilege leave, returning to duty on the 18th of July. During this period the Department was under the control of Mr. C. Little. Again from the 5th of August to the 8th of November the Department was in charge of Mr. C. Little, as my services were placed at the disposal of the Government of India to officiate as Meteorological Reporter to the Government of India at Simla during the absence of Mr. J. Eliot on three months' privilege leave. Thus for about six months of the year the Department was under my control, and for the remaining six months under Mr. Little's charge.

3. Again during the year under review the changes in the administration of the Department have been of minor character, and have been confined entirely to steady extension in the work commenced in previous years, and to slight improvements which have been introduced to make previous arrangements work more smoothly. There have been, indeed, no radical changes or changes of principle introduced into the working of the Department in the period under review.

Meteorological observatories.

4. The number of meteorological observatories submitting reports to the Bengal Meteorological Department on the 31st March 1894 was 70, or two more than on the corresponding date in 1893. The additions made during the year consist of a third class observatory at Daltonganj in the newly-formed district of Palamau, which commenced to send in observations from 19th April 1893. In addition, also, a voluntary observatory was started at Guntak, through the kindness of Mr. J. C. White, Political Officer in Sikkim. The Guntak observatory was intended to continue the work which had been formerly carried out by the Revd. Father Desgodins at Pedong, the observatory at Pedong having been closed at the end of 1892-93. Rainfall returns are, however, still received from Pedong. The first observations from Guntak were received on 2nd June 1893.

5. The voluntary observatory at Kalimpong, which was started on 1st April 1891, but which was temporarily closed in 1892-93, still remains in abeyance, though efforts were made during the year to re-open it. One other change has taken place in the classification of the observatories, inasmuch as Coconada was raised from a third to a second class observatory from the 1st of May 1893, and under the new arrangement the observer receives a monthly salary of Rs. 23.

6. The second class observatory, which was for many years established at Dacca, was transferred on the 9th of March 1894 to a very similar site at Narainganj. The necessity of the change was due to the removal of the large Telegraph Office from Dacca to Narainganj, only a small combined Postal and Telegraph Office being left at Dacca, and the meteorological observatory at Dacca having always been in charge of the Telegraph Department.

Arrangements indeed were made in October 1893 to transfer the meteorological work to Narainganj, but owing to delays the removal was not carried out till March 1894. A break in the observations at Dacca from 2nd to 8th of October was, however, caused by the removal of the instruments to Narainganj and their retransfer to Dacca.

7. The seventy observatories are arranged under the following heads:—One first class (Imperial) observatory (at Alipore), 16 second class observatories, 39 third class observatories, six voluntary observatories and eight other stations reporting in connection with the storm-warning service of the Bay of Bengal, making 70 observatories altogether.

8. The following table will show the names and distribution of the observatories in question :—

Rainfall-recording stations.

9. The number of stations reporting the daily rainfall to the Bengal Meteorological Department on the 31st of March 1894 was 304. At the close of 1892-93 only 276 stations were reporting the daily rainfall. Hence during the year no less than 28 new rainfall-recording stations were added, the names of which are given below, together with the districts to which they belong:—

New rainfall recording stations added in 1893-94.

10. In addition to the 304 stations from which reports of rainfall are sent in daily, there are 16 other stations situated in rather difficulty accessible places, such as in the west of Chota Nagpur, the Orissa Tributary Mahals, Sikkim, Lushai Hills, &c., which send in rainfall statements for each month only. These returns are also regularly published, and thus the rainfall records from no less than 320 stations are published by the Bengal Meteorological Department.

11. The distribution of these 320 rainfall stations in the various districts, &c., is shown in the table below. It would appear that the number of recording stations in the great majority of districts is sufficient to give a fairly satisfactory estimate of the distribution of the rainfall and of its variations. In the case of a few districts however, such as Pabna, Faridpur, Bogra, Noakhali, Champaran, and Malda, the number of registering stations might perhaps be increased with advantage:—

Inspection of the meteorological observatories.

12. It is much to be regretted that only 12 observatories were able to be visited during the year 1893-94, a much smaller number than has been the rule for many years past. It has, however, been pointed out in several previous Administration Reports that with the present arrangements only a very limited amount of inspection of the Bengal observatories can be performed. The Bengal Reporter, who is mainly charged with the inspection of the Bengal observatories, is held responsible for warning the coast ports all round the Bay of Bengal of the occurrence of all storms throughout the whole year. Hence he can only leave Calcutta during such brief intervals when severe storms or bad weather are not expected in any part of the Bay, and when also he can arrange for the performance of his duties in Calcutta by some other responsible officer of the Meteorological Department. Again, too, the Bengal Reporter is only a half-time officer, and has to combine his meteorological duties with those as Professor in the Presidency College. He can therefore only do inspection work during the College vacations, and unfortunately these fall just at the time when severe storms and cyclones in the Bay are most numerous. Hence the Bengal Reporter can scarcely do any inspection work at all. During the past year, indeed, the Reporter did no inspection work in Bengal, and the work of visiting the meteorological stations had to be delegated to Babu Jati Lal De, a clerk in the Calcutta Meteorological Office, who visited 12 stations. Another and nearly as powerful a reason why little inspection of Bengal stations could be done in 1893-94 was that there were no funds available for more than was actually done. The grants for travelling allowances in the Meteorological Department have since 1890-91 been all amalgamated in the Indian Meteorological Budget, and during the last year exceptional expenditure was required for travelling purposes in other provinces, such as in Madras, in Burma, &c., and hence the inspection of the Bengal stations has had to be postponed. Indeed, the total cost of the visits to the 12 Bengal observatories in 1893-94 only amounted to Rs. 334.

13. It may here be remarked that during the past year the Government of India has temporarily sanctioned the plan of allowing a clerk from the head

Meteorological Office at Calcutta and other offices to proceed to observatories on visits of instruction, and it is on such visits that the state of the observatory is brought to light.

14. The amount of inspection done during the year under review has undoubtedly been less than is necessary to keep the observatories up to the proper standard of excellence, and in certain cases it would appear that some of the observers have been gradually drifting into a state of slackness from which only thorough and repeated inspection can rouse them. It is, however, but fair to say that all the visits made by the Instructor resulted in considerable improvement in the work at the observatories, and the work done by the Instructor in his tours was excellent.

15. The following observatories under the Bengal Reporter were visited during the year under review :—

Station.	Visited on
Arrah	17th and 18th September 1893.
Barisal	18th and 19th August 1893.
Bogra	4th and 5th March 1894.
Chaibassa	6th and 7th July 1893.
Dacca	7th to 12th October 1893.
Dehri	20th to 24th September 1893.
Dhubri	9th and 10th March 1894.
Faridpur	28th to 30th August 1893.
Rampur Boalia	1st and 2nd March 1894.
Rangpur	7th March 1894.
Raniganj	14th and 15th September 1893.
Sibsagar	15th to 21st March 1894.

16. As the result of these visits it was found that the observatories at Bogra, Dacca, Dhubri, and Rampur Boalia were in good order, those at Arrah, Barisal and Chaibassa were in fair order, those at Dehri, Rangpur and Sibsagar in bad order, and those at Raniganj and Faridpur in very bad order.

Work at observatories.

17. In the case of the greater number of observatories in Bengal, as they were not able to be visited during the year, the only test of the nature of their working which can be applied is by a careful study of the observations which have been sent in. In the following brief review of the work at the observatories of the different classes, this test has been mainly applied.

18. It may be here stated that the work at the observatories, the time of observations, and the nature of the instruments observed have been practically the same in the year 1893-94 as in the previous four or five years, and there have been no changes made in this direction in the routine of the Department.

19. First class observatory.—The only observatory of this class is at Alipore, and is under the direct control of the Second Assistant to the Meteorological Reporter to the Government of India. The observations made at Alipore are supplied daily to the Bengal Reporter, and in addition whenever extra observations are required for storm-warning purposes, they are always accurately taken and promptly supplied.

20. Second class observatories.—Three out of the sixteen observatories of this class only were inspected during the year, namely, Dacca, Dhubri and Sibsagar. When visited Dacca was in very good order, and throughout the greater part of the year the observations sent in from this place and during part of March from Narainganj were of a high order of accuracy. Dhubri was also in good order, and the observations sent in from this station have also been generally very accurate. At Sibsagar, on the other hand, the observations which have been received for the greater part of the year have been of little value, and the visit of the Instructor showed there were many points in which the observatory and the observer's methods were faulty. Hence the observer's pay was stopped for a considerable period. Since the visit, however, of the Instructor, the character of the observations has improved very materially.

21. In the case of the other second class stations, the observations sent in from Bankipore, Berhampore, Burdwan, Coconada, Cuttack, Darjeeling, False Point, Hazaribagh and Saugor Island were very good throughout the year, and appeared to show the observatories were in very good order. In the case of Akyab, Chittagong, Darbhanga and Silchar, on the other hand, the observations were not of such a high order of accuracy as they might have been, and probably the observatories were not looked after quite so well as they should be.

22. Third class observatories.—Only nine out of the thirty-nine third class stations were visited during the year, and the brief results of their inspection have been given. Judged only by the records received, very good and correct observations were sent in throughout the year from the following observatories:—Balasore, Gopalpur, Krishnagar, Madras (Port Office), Midnapore, Mymensingh, Naya Dumka, Rampur Boalia, Sirajganj, and Tavoy.

23. The observations were fairly good, and in the great majority of cases accurate from the following observatories:—Arrah, Bankura, Bhagalpur, Bogra, Buxar, Chapra, Dinajpur, Jessore, Malda, Motihari, Nellore, Pamban and Puri.

24. The observations were indifferent in quality, containing rather numerous mistakes as sent in by the observers at Chaibassa, Comilla, Gnatong, Jalpaiguri, Purnea, Ranchi and Rangpur.

25. The observations were bad, and contained a very large number of mistakes as sent in by the observers at the following stations:—Barisal, Cuddalore, Daltonganj, Dehri, Faridpur, Gaya, Muzaffarpur, Noakhali and Raniganj.

26. Voluntary observatories.—The observations received from Domagiri, Lungleh, and Tura have as usual not been very accurate, and have hence been of comparatively little value. At Shortt's Island, however, Mr. Tasker has continued to take excellent observations both daily and during stormy weather, when numerous extra observations have been made. In the latter case the observations have been of particular value, and Mr. Tasker was awarded a grant of Rs. 60 by the Meteorological Reporter to the Government of India out of the special storm observation fund. The observatory at Vizagapatam, under the direction of Mrs. A. A. Nursing Rao, continues to send in most excellent series of observations, and also sends extra observations of great value during stormy weather, and the thanks of the Department are again due to Mrs. Nursing Rao for her valuable assistance. In the case of the Guntak observatory, the observations sent in have, on the whole, been very accurate, and this observatory will prove very useful as representing an area, of which the meteorology is at present almost unknown.

27. The system of awarding small sums of money as an additional remuneration to those observers who take and submit special meteorological reports during stormy and unsettled weather has been continued during the present year by the India Meteorological Office, and several of the Bengal observers have competed for these awards. In addition to the observer at Shortt's Island, whose case has just been alluded to, the following observers under the Bengal Reporter have received small rewards for the good quality of their extra work:—

Bengal and Assam.—Barisal, Balasore, Berhampore, Burdwan, Chittagong, Comilla, Dacca, Darjeeling, Dhubri, Faridpur, False Point, Gnatong, Hazaribagh, Mymensingh, Patna, and Saugor Island

Madras.—Coconada, Cuddalore, Gopalpur, Madras (Port Office), Nellore and Pamban.

Work at and inspection of rain-gauges.

28. The rain-gauge stations have on the whole worked satisfactorily during the year, and there have been only a few cases where the returns have been shown to be incorrect. There has been, however, a considerable amount of slackness in the despatch of the returns, particularly of the weekly reports, during such periods when there has been either no rainfall or only small falls at intervals. As the rain-registering officers, however, receive no remuneration for their rainfall work, it is difficult to devise any scheme by which careless observers can be made to obey the rules of the Department.

29. The amount of inspection of the rain-gauge stations during the year 1893-94 appears to have been very small. The system of inspection was started in the year 1891-92, and on the 23rd of June 1891 the Government of Bengal in their letter No. 3T.R. directed all District Officers to see that the rain-gauge stations in their districts were inspected. Rules for the guidance of local officers inspecting rain-gauges were prepared, post-card inspection report forms were introduced, and a considerable number of inspecting instruments (measuring gauges and spirit levels) were supplied. The inspections were ordered to be carried out whenever any station at which a rain-gauge was maintained was visited either by the Collector himself or by the Deputy Magistrate or the Civil Surgeon. In the year of the introduction of these rules (1891-92), even though the rules were only nine months in force, 102 reports of inspections of various rain-gauges were received by the Department. In the second year (1892-93) the number of reports had fallen to 58, while in the year now under review, and which is the third year of the system, only 19 rain-gauges out of the 320 existing were inspected and reports sent in to the Department. It would therefore almost appear that the orders of the 23rd of June 1891 had been to a great extent overlooked or perhaps forgotten.

30. A few cases of improper exposure of rain-gauges and of defective instruments have, however, been brought to light during the year, and these have been remedied as far as possible. It is believed that on the whole the rain-gauge stations are working well. The exposure of the instruments as far as can be tested by correspondence is good in the great majority of cases, and the critical examination of the returns received from the stations goes to prove that considerable care is taken in the work of registration.

Departmental reports.

31. The short Annual Report of the meteorology of Bengal in the year 1892 was prepared as usual, and submitted on the 28th June 1893 for incorporation in the Bengal Administration Report. It was illustrated by the usual number of charts.

The report on the meteorology of Bengal for the monsoon season of 1893 was prepared and submitted to Government on the 2nd January 1894 It was also illustrated by maps. The report itself was published in the Calcutta Gazette of the 10th January 1894.

32. The Monthly Meteorological Reports for Bengal and Assam have been regularly published about the 10th to the 15th of the month following that dealt with. These reports give the meteorological and full rainfall statistics for Bengal and the meteorological data only for Assam, together with a brief discussion and summary. Monthly charts of the rainfall distribution, its variation from the normal, etc., and also for the monsoon season are prepared and submitted to Government and to the Sanitary Commissioner. The form in which these monthly reports is published has been unchanged throughout the year. The report is, however, rather larger than it was, and now contains the observations from the meteorological observatory at Daltonganj, so that meteorological observations are given for 49 stations, while in the case of the rainfall statistics there are 44 stations more than in former years, and returns are now published for 320 stations.

33. The Weekly Meteorological Reports for the weeks ending 8 A.M. on Saturdays have been published regularly throughout the year. These reports give similar data and summaries to those contained in the monthly reports, except that they are not quite so complete, particularly in the case of the rainfall data, as many stations are so far away that their postal returns do not arrive in time to be included in the report, which is published only four days after the actual observations are made. There has also been no practical change in these reports during the year except for the inclusion of Daltonganj and sundry rainfall-recording stations.

34. The Bengal Daily Weather Report dealing with the meteorology of the inland stations in Bengal and Assam was published during the period 29th April to 14th November 1893. Advantage was taken of the station of Malda being connected by telegraph to include this station in the daily report, and this report now contains the observations made at 48 stations. No practical change also was made in this report. Of this report 109 copies were issued to Government officers and 19 copies to private subscribers at the rate of Rs. 2-8 per month.

35. The Bay of Bengal Daily Weather Report with its accompanying chart was issued daily throughout the year, Sundays and holidays included, at about 10-30 to 11 A.M. This report is issued in connection with the Storm Signal Service, and gives 8 A.M. data for the stations round the Bay and neighbouring coast area. It was issued to 49 Government officials free of charge and to 28 subscribers at the rate of Rs. 2 per month. The subscriptions received during the year have been sufficient to pay the cost of the lithographic establishment, repairs to presses, etc., and at the close of the year there was a considerable cash balance in hand, which is kept to provide new presses, &c., when required. No change was made in the form of this report during the year, except that at its close the station of Narainganj took the place of Dacca.

36. In connection with the Bay of Bengal weather signal service immediately after the Bay report has been prepared, a daily telegram is despatched to Saugor Island (at about 10-30 A.M.), consisting of a code message of four signal flags, which flags are hoisted at the Saugor Island lighthouse to every passing vessel outward bound. These flag signals give a brief description of the weather at 8 A.M. of the day in question in each of four sections of the Bay, the Bay having been divided for the purposes of this code into four parts. Hence every vessel passing out to sea after about 11 A.M. is informed of the weather conditions of the Bay on the same morning, so far as they can be judged from the reports received. The Port Commissioners, Calcutta, pay the sum of Rs. 5 monthly to the khalasis at Saugor Island for their extra work in hoisting these signals.

37. In connection with the same report urgent telegrams are sent out daily to various ports round the Bay of Bengal, giving by means of a code a brief description of the weather conditions, pressure changes, wind directions, force, &c., &c., in each of eight sections into which the Bay is divided in this code. Telegrams of this kind are sent daily throughout the year to Madras, Akyab, Rangoon, Negapatam, and Coconada, and for portions of the year to Chittagong. In addition, too, the flag signal messages as described in the previous paragraph are now added to the telegrams to Rangoon, Negapatam, Coconada, and Madras, so that the shipping off these ports can be warned of the weather in the Bay by flag signalling in the same way as in the case of vessels passing Saugor Island.

38. The system of forwarding meteorological information from the pilot brigs at the Sandheads to the Meteorological Office by flag hoists, shown by the pilots of inward-bound vessels as they pass Saugor Island lighthouse, has been continued. Fifty-seven code telegrams were received in this way during the year, and in addition 339 post-cards were received from the pilot brigs giving the summary of these observations taken daily at the Sandheads. Mr. Marshall, the special pilot on the steamers passing from Calcutta to Rangoon, has also been good enough to send in throughout the year his special sets of observations taken on these voyages, and these have been found to be very accurate and reliable.

39. In the report for the last year it was noticed that through the kindness of Sir J. L. Mackay arrangements had been made by which, working with a special code, the Captains of the British India steam-vessels on arriving in various ports could telegraph to the Meteorological Office a summary of the weather they had experienced during their voyage. This plan has worked very successfully during the year 1893-94, and 207 telegrams and other reports of such voyages were received in this way during the year.

Storm-Signal Service.

40. The working of the Storm-Signal Service has been unaltered during the year, no stations having been added to the list of those receiving warnings, nor have any changes or additions been made to the signals employed.

41. The year on the whole was moderately stormy, but the full description of the storms is reserved for the Annual Report on the meteorology of the year 1893. The most noticeable of the storms during the year was one which occurred at the end of May 1893 in front of a large advance of south-west monsoon winds up the Bay. The first indications of the formation of the storm were seen on the evening of May 21st. The storm slowly developed from that date up till the evening of the 24th and morning of the 25th, when it formed a cyclone with a calm centre and an inner area of hurricane winds at some little distance from the Orissa coast. It advanced at first in a northerly direction, and crossed the coast a short distance to the west of Saugor Island at 4-30 A.M. of the 26th. It advanced to the west of Calcutta, and between 4 and 5 P.M. of the 26th was between Calcutta and Burdwan, when it suddenly recurved and afterwards moved in an east-north-easterly direction, breaking up in Cachar on the 29th. This cyclone, though small, was the most severe storm that has visited the head of the Bay in the month of May for the past 25 or 30 years. It was also remarkable for the excessive rain it gave to the districts over which it passed.

42. The dates of the principal storms occurring during the year are given in the first of the two following tables, and the action taken in the matter of issuing storm warnings and hoisting storm signals is indicated in the second of these tables:—

Table giving a brief statement of the storms which affected the Bay of Bengal coasts during the year 1893.

No. of storm.	Period of depression or storm.	Character of storm.	Coast affected.
1	April 25th to 27th ...	Small cyclonic storm formed in the Andaman sea on the 25th, and moving in a north-easterly direction, passed over Rangoon on the 27th, causing stormy weather in the east of the Bay and heavy rainfall in Burma.	Burma coast.
2	May 20th to 26th ...	Very severe cyclone formed off the Orissa coast, and moving slowly northwards into the north-west angle of the Bay, crossed the coast a few miles west of Saugor Island on the early morning of the 26th. 5	August 31st to 3rd September.	Small depression formed in the north of the Bay, and moving north westwards, intensified moderately on the 2nd, crossed the coast between Saugor Island and Balasore on the 3rd.	Orissa and Bengal coasts.
6	September 8th to 11th ...	Rather severe storm formed in the north of the Bay on the 9th, and after developing rather rapidly in its course, crossed the coast between Saugor Island and Balasore on the 11th. This storm gave heavy rainfall in Bengal.	Ditto.
7	Do. 20th to 23rd ...	Slight depression formed in the north of the Bay. It advanced in a north-westerly direction, and after developing rather rapidly into a severe storm, crossed the coast near Puri on the early morning of the 23rd.	Ditto.
8	October 19th to 22nd ...	Small but severe cyclone formed in the south-east of the Bay, and advancing up the Bay first in a north-westerly, and finally in a north-easterly or east-north-easterly direction, struck the coast near Noakhally on the 22nd.	Bengal and Burma coasts.

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph, and from observations made at 6h., 10h., 16h. and 22h.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard, Newman's No. 86, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The directions and the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

* Mean of six days.

Explanation.—Summary—The normal means of air pressure and temperature are the arithmetical average or means of the reading during the same period. The humidity of the atmosphere is expressed as percentage, saturated air being represented by 100. A clear sky is denoted by 0 and an overcast sky by 10. mean area or numerical means or average of the rainfall in that district determined from the returns sent in by the subdivisional stations for the period in q stations in the district sending in returns divided by the number of stations. A rainy day is one of which at least a tenth of an inch fell.

for the week ending Saturday, the 23rd of June 1894.

Explanation.—... indicates that no rain has fallen. If the return for any day has not been received, the corresponding space is left blank. If any of the returns wanting the corresponding spaces in the total rainfall columns are left blank. With reference to the column of rainy days, the definition of a rainy day is when at 0·10 inch of rain has fallen.

CALCUTTA, the 20th June 1894.

SUMMARY OF THE METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN BENGAL, AND OF THE METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN ASSAM, FOR THE WEEK ENDING 8 A.M., SATURDAY, THE 23RD OF JUNE 1894.

At the close of the previous week the south-west monsoon current had spread over the whole of the province, and general rain had commenced on about the 13th and 14th instants. The commencement of the rains was due to a small storm which advanced in a north-westerly and westerly direction across the province, and a moderate advance of the monsoon winds had followed in the rear of the small storm This inrush of monsoon winds, however, began to fall off from the beginning of the present week. On the 17th, or the first day of the week, pressure rose briskly at all except a few of the north-eastern stations, and became rather largely above the normal, the excess usually ranging from 0·09″ to 0·05″, and hence the pressure distribution was rather unfavourable for the continued free advance of the current. The rainfall reported on the 17th was decidedly local in character, and where falls occurred they were usually rather light. Pressure began to fall moderately on the 18th, but it was still in excess over the western half of the province, and the monsoon current continued light, and only local rainfall was reported in all districts except parts of North Bengal, where it was general and rather heavy. Pressure again fell slowly on the 19th, and the distribution became a little abnormal, an excess of 0·02″ being registered in the west of Bihar and Chota Nagpur, while in East Bengal and Assam defects were registered amounting to 0·07″ at Chittagong and 0·09″ at Silchar. Hence the differences of pressure over the province were much smaller than usual, and the western stations reported little or no rain, though fairly general rain was being received at the eastern stations. On the 20th pressure had again fallen over the whole province, the fall being largest in Orissa and over the north of the Bay, and smallest in Assam and Central Bengal, and pressure became below the normal by amounts ranging up to 0·13″ on the Orissa and South Bengal coasts. A distinct cyclonic circulation of winds also set up at the stations round the north of the Bay, and hence it was clear that a barometric depression had formed over this area. On the 20th, as usually happens in such cases, rainfall was again not very general. On the 21st pressure had fallen slowly in Orissa, South Bengal, Chota Nagpur and the west of Bihar, while it had risen elsewhere, the increase being very rapid in Burma, and winds were still cyclonic in direction in the north of the Bay. On this day the feeble barometric depression had developed very slightly only, and it was also advancing towards the north-west angle of the Bay, the centre being probably to the east of False Point. With the advance of the depression conditions became rather more favourable for rainfall, and on the 21st rainfall was almost general, but at the majority of stations it was not heavy. On the 22nd the depression had again advanced slowly in a west-north-westerly direction, and the centre was between Chaibassa and Balasore, but it was still very feeble, and the cyclonic circulation of winds accompanying it was only light to moderate in force. On the 23rd the depression had again moved in a west-north-westerly direction, and was probably to the west of Chota Nagpur, and pressure had continued to fall at the western stations, while a very rapid increase of pressure was taking place in the remainder of the province. The depression had hence practically ceased to affect the province on this day. The depression as usual brought up a moderate wave of monsoon winds, which continued to flow over the province in its rear, and hence for the last two days of the week, that is on the 22nd and 23rd instants, general and rather heavy rainfall was reported in all districts.

Hence for the first three or four days of the week only light monsoon conditions prevailed over the province, but for the last three days these conditions were much more strongly developed. The rainfall for the week has hence been considerably below the normal in all districts except Orissa and Chota Nagpur, the fall in the latter district being normal in amount and in the former considerably in excess.

Pressure.—The variations of the average pressure for the week from the normal have been to a great extent dependent on the feeble depression which has been previously described. In North and North-East Bengal and in North Bihar pressure has been almost normal, but in the southern districts, and particularly in the south-western parts of the province, pressure has been in decided defect, the defect ranging up to 0·06″ and 0·07″ in Orissa and in the neighbouring parts of South-West Bengal.

Temperature.—The mean temperature for the week has been below the normal in South-West Bengal, Bihar, Orissa and Chota Nagpur by about one to two degrees. On the other hand similar excess temperatures have been registered in North and East Bengal, while in Assam an excess of 1·9° has been registered. For the whole of Bengal the average mean temperature shows a defect of 0·4°.

Rainfall.—The average falls of rain in South-West Bengal, East Bengal, Orissa, and Chota Nagpur have equalled between two and three inches, while in North Bengal and Bihar they have equalled about an inch and a half. Compared with the normal falls for the week, and expressed as a percentage of that amount, the following figures are obtained:—South-West Bengal 73 per cent., North Bengal 33 per cent., East Bengal 55 per cent., Bihar 62 per cent., Orissa 127 per cent. and Chota Nagpur 99 per cent. Taking these provinces to have an equal value, the rainfall of Bengal for the week was equal to only 75 per cent. of the normal amount. In Assam, Dhubri has received 1·66 inches of rain during the week, Sibsagar 6·29 inches and Silchar 9·27 inches.

The following table gives the summary of the temperature and rainfall data of each of the six meteorological divisions of the province for the week ending Saturday, the 23rd of June 1894:—
